Medical Foster Home

Veterans who can no longer take care of themselves have a new option called Medical Foster Home. As veterans age, many no longer have families who can take care of them and many end up in retirement homes. MFH is a unique partnership of adult foster home and Home Based Primary Care, operating under Community Residential Care guidelines. MFH finds a caregiver in the community who is willing to take a veteran into their home and provide 24-hour supervision and personal assistance. This care includes everything from meals to medicine, as well as personal attendance. It is not free, but is cheaper than other 24-hour care facilities. The veteran pays money directly to the caregiver, ranging from $1,200 to $2,500 a month depending on the level of care. For more information on this program, call (202) 461-6786 or send an e-mail to: Thomas.edes@va.gov.

Special duty briefing

Airmen interested in becoming an Air Force Recruiter, Military Training Instructor or Military Training Leader should attend the AETC Special Duty briefing July 27 at 8 a.m., in the Ford Auditorium of the Professional Development Center. Spouses of potential applicants are also invited. Members from each of the previously listed special duties will conduct the briefing. For more information on the AETC Special Duty Team contact the Wing Career Assistance Advisor, Master Sgt. David Grisdale at (660)687-7829.

As in 2009, the EO office is asking each group to provide at least two volunteers. The group representatives can be one of the following: company grade officer, senior NCO or AF civilian employee (GS-09 or above, Non-Supervisory NSPS Pay band 2 or Supervisory NSPS Pay band 1). Often times, the sound of a rumbling engine doesn't leave the everyday driver with qualms of the path which lies ahead. Alternatively, a convoy driver can find themselves in difficult and dangerous situations with every mile they travel.

Although Senior Airman Joseph Adams, 424th Medium Truck Detachment, lost count of his mileage traveled, the challenges he's encountered while navigating the precarious roads of Kuwait and Iraq will not be soon forgotten.

Airman Adams is currently deployed to Camp Arifjan, Kuwait, and departed Whiteman in January, to Basic Combat Convoy Course, at Camp Anderson-Peters in Camp Bullis, Texas where he trained for 30 days before he arrived at his current location in February. Alongside other Airmen from Whiteman, Airman Adams learned basic combat skills required to integrate with joint forces in convoy operations.

Integrating the knowledge and aptitude he's learned from the BC3 course, Airman Adams said he is able to apply it in real world situations and convoy missions as a truck commander.

His convoy team made up of 12 people, drives cargo, which varies from food to ammunition, to forwarding operating bases in Iraq according to the Airman.

hours," Airman Adams said. "When we get to our destination, we download and repeat the process again and head back."

In addition to his responsibilities, Airman Adams is also the foreign national liaison and ensures that the foreign nationals in the convoy are taken care of and if any problems arise, he is

Airmen help keep construction in progress

Heidi Hunt
509th Bomb Wing Public Affairs

While some sleep, select Airmen and civilians here prepare to carry out the mission before sunrise.

The 509th Civil Engineer Squadron Escort Pool office is responsible for escorting contractors into restricted areas, giving restricted area briefings and keeping a vigilant eye while contractors accomplish their construction work, thus reducing reportable helping hands said Mr. John Orcutt, 509th CES escort supervisor.

A helping hand is a report of an unusual incident, possibly hostile.

The 509th CES escort pool office currently staffs 17 military members and two civilian personnel here.

"The escort office coordinates with squadrons to ensure the escort pool is properly staffed to assist in the plan for zero cost overruns for lost wages due to delayed construction starts," Mr. Orcutt said. "Escorts are tasked to work extended hours and weekends in support of short-notice construction efforts, due to distinguished visits or other projects."

There are 50-60 on-going construction projects, totaling $210 million, on-base at any given time, thus contributing in contractors being escorted into the restricted area said to Mr. Orcutt.

According to Mr. Orcutt, the escort office currently has extended 5,432 man-hours, escorting 156 contractors throughout base property in the fiscal year.

In addition, escorts have inspected 18,193 loads of concrete, asphalt, rock and dirt material prior to gate entry in the last year.

"This procedure increases the efficiency of the construction deliveries while decreasing the risk of a terrorist incident and prevention of security violations," he said. "The escort office is also tasked with escorting deliveries to and from construction sites. This assists the contractors in a smooth transition of construction materials."

According to Mr. Orcutt, escorts are expected to watch over the contractor while they perform their construction related duties and assist in the delivery of construction materials and supplies.

An early morning operation helps maintain and upgrade the base for the current and future and missions.

‘Re-building’ history

Airman 1st Class Montse Ramirez
509th Bomb Wing Public Affairs

In a time before the B-2 Stealth Bomber and unmanned aerial vehicles, the Waco Glider took to the sky spearheading all major invasions and operations of World War II, starting with the invasion of Normandy in June of 1944.

Whiteman Air Force Base’s proud history dates back to 1942 when U.S. Army Air Corps officials selected the site of the present-day base to be the home of Sedalia Army Air Field, a training base for Waco glider pilots.

More than 60 years later, Team Whiteman volunteers are making sure the proud heritage of the Waco Glider is not lost in the history books as they work to restore an original glider here.

Since 2006, a group of retired military members and civilians have put in almost 4,000 hours of labor into the restoration of a Glider airplane, in hopes of one day having it be in an Air Force museum, as a showcase of Missouri’s aviation history.

“This base was built for the Glider,” said Robert D. Rainey, a volunteer with the project and a retired Air Force master sergeant. “It’s so important for me to keep it here.” The volunteers said they hope to bring back a piece of history and with it some awareness about this retired plane.

“The problem with history is that the people who lived it died, so we need to record it before it’s too late,” said Frank McKinley the restoration coordinator and a retired Master Sgt.

Mr. McKinley said he has a fascination with the Waco Glider and wants to share his interest with the younger generations that aren’t accustomed to it.

“It’s amazing how people don’t know how crucial these planes were to their mission,” said Mr. McKinley, “They carried cargo such as barrels of gasoline, oil and diesel and sometimes also a squad of 15 people including 12 troops, a squad leader a pilot and co-pilot.”

With the contribution of the Whiteman Heritage Foundation, Commonwealth Aircraft Corporation, and numerous volunteers who have donated parts, the Glider’s reconstruction will hopefully be completed in the next few years.

Although the outside appearance of the Glider gives an illusion of simple construction, the final production models actually contain just over 70,000 parts.

As the project progresses, Team Whiteman members involved in the reconstruction welcome more helping hands and donations of time, materials and money, to speed up the development.

Once the reconstruction of the glider is finished, people will have a better idea of how special this motor less airborne apparatus was much like the grandfather of stealth aircraft.

Soaring silently behind enemy lines, delivering its payload under the cover of darkness, the Waco glider made significant contributions to World War II.

“The intrepid pilots who flew the gliders were as unique as their motor less flying machines,” said retired Army Gen. William C. Westmoreland, who was the Army Chief of Staff from 1968 to 1972. “Never before in history had any nation produced aviators whose duty it was deliberately to crash land, and then go to fight as combat infantrymen. They were no ordinary fighters. Their battlefields were behind enemy lines.”

“Every landing was a genuine do-or-die situation for the glider pilots,” said General Westmoreland. “It was their awesome responsibility to repeatedly risk their lives by landing heavily laden aircraft containing combat soldiers and equipment in unfamiliar fields deep within enemy-held territory, often in total darkness. They were the only aviators during World War II who had no motors, no parachutes and no second chances.”

American glider pilots fought and gave their all in the European, Pacific, China, and India theaters during WWII.

Americans continued to manufacture, assemble and fly gliders until the end of the war in May, 1945.

there to assist.

Combined with his training and work ethic it's not uncommon for Airman Adams to step up in times of need.

"Airman Adams has been one of my 'go to' guys since he arrived in 2006," said Mr. Mark Haywood, 509th LRS, distribution section manager. "It doesn't matter what task you give him, he always finds a way to get it done. He stepped up for the flight when we needed honor guard volunteers. He can be counted on whenever he's needed or called upon."

In between convoys, Airman Adams uses his time to prepare for the next mission and studies for college courses; in which he has completed two college level examination program classes thus far.

"I try to stay as busy as possible out here, it makes time go by faster," he said.

Airman Adams said he is scheduled to return to Whiteman in the Fall, but said he is enjoying his second deployment.

"The best thing about my deployment is the life-long friendships I've made because most of the Airmen here are vehicle operators also," he said. "I see faces I have been deployed with before or people I have gone through technical school with. I have also met a lot of new people. I also enjoy the experience of being in a different country and learning a new culture."

While Airman Adams misses his family, friends, bed and driving his own car, he said this is the most fun he's had in his Air Force career and would do it again.

FREE Classified Advertising in the Whiteman Warrior

READ ALL RULES BEFORE PLACING AN AD

1. Advertising is free to all active-duty, guard and reserve military members and civil servants who work on base or at the MoARNG in Warrensburg only. Military or civil service rank must be included in the space for "rank." We do offer free advertising to retired military members.
2. Ads of a commercial nature such as baby-sitting, lawn maintenance, house cleaning, product sales, apartments or houses for rent, work-at-home opportunities or any other service in which the person makes a profit must be prepaid. Paid ads must be placed directly through the Sedalia Democrat at 1-800-892-7856, dropped off at 700 S. Massachusetts Ave., Sedalia, Mo., 65301 or e-mailed to theclassifieds@sedaliademocrat.com. They accept VISA, MasterCard, cash, personal check or money order.
3. Free ads are for one-time sale of personal items only. Free ads can't be placed for churches, groups, clubs, organizations or friends not affiliated with the military. Each item must be sold for $150 or less.
4. Only one free ad*, maximum 30 words, will be allowed to run at any given time by the same household, for a maximum of eight weeks. Ads over the 30-word maximum will be edited at the publisher's discretion. *People who are PCSing may place more than one ad and sell the items at any price.

5. Include your home phone in the ad so people can contact you. USE OF DUTY PHONES IN ADS IS AGAINST AIR FORCE REGULATIONS.
6. Print legibly, and place punctuation and spaces where necessary. Use only one word per line.
7. Free ads aren't taken over the phone. They must be dropped off at or mailed to the 509th Bomb Wing Public Affairs Office, 1081 Arnold Ave Blvd, Bldg 59, Whiteman AFB, Mo., 65305. Ads may also be faxed to 660-687-7948.
8. Many offices on base are using old forms. If you would like a copy of the new ad form to keep in your office, call 687-6123 and we'll fax a new form for your use. Or, you can download it at <http://www.whiteman.af.mil/news/index.shtml> and click on "Whiteman Warrior Classified Ad Form."
9. Homes for sale that are listed with a realtor must be paid for. Only people who are PCSing and selling homes FSBO (for sale by owner) qualify as a free ad.
10. Free yard sale ads are for active-duty, guard, reserve and retired military members living on or off base. People who live on base must have their yard sale approved by the housing office first.
11. The deadline for placing new ads, canceling or making changes to ads is 10 a.m. Friday, one week before desired publication.
12. Ads that don't meet these guidelines will not run. Free advertising is a privilege extended to you by the publisher, and your cooperation is greatly appreciated. Submissions do not guarantee publication. Publication is on a space available basis.
