2010 Hispanic American Heritage Month

“Heritage, Diversity, Integrity and Honor: The Renewed Hope of America”

September 15 through October 15 marks the observance of Hispanic Heritage Month. This year’s theme, “Heritage, Diversity, Integrity and Honor: The Renewed Hope of America,” recognizes the extraordinary actions Hispanic Americans have shown in this nation from military service to science, art, education and even having the first Hispanic American female nominated to the supreme court.

What is Hispanic Heritage Month? In 1968, President Lyndon B. Johnson obtained authorization from Congress to proclaim a week in September as National Hispanic Heritage Week. The purpose was to honor the culture and traditions of United States residents who trace their roots to Spain, Mexico and Spanish-speaking nations in Central America, South America and the Caribbean.

President Ronald Reagan extended the observance to a month-long commemoration in 1988 from September 15 to October 15. September 15 was marks the independence anniversary of five Latin American countries: Costa Rica, El Salvador, Guatemala, Honduras and Nicaragua. In addition, Mexico and Chile celebrate their independence from Spain’s colonial rule on September 16 and 18, respectively. Hispanic Heritage Month includes Dia de la Raza (Day of the Race) observed on October 12 in some Latin American countries. In the United States it is recognized as Columbus Day.

According to the US Census Bureau, on July 1, 2009, the estimated Hispanic population was 48.4 million in the United States. This made people of Hispanic origin the nation’s largest ethnic minority. Hispanics constitute 16 percent of the nation’s total population. In 2007, the number of Hispanic veterans of the U.S. Armed Forces was 1.1 million. In addition, 43 men of Hispanic heritage have been awarded the Medal of Honor. This observance bestows acknowledgment to numerous Hispanic men and women from past and present generations for their discoveries in science, education, commerce, exploration, arts and athletics.

“I am an ordinary person who has been blessed with extraordinary opportunities and experiences,” said Sonia Sotomayor, Associate Justice of the Supreme Court.

Hispanic Americans’ extraordinary actions have been the highest tradition to their ancestry and our nation.

A multi-cultural fest is scheduled to take place Oct. 29 at 1 p.m., at Mission’s End. This fest will include music, native dancing, food tasting and cultural displays representing Hispanic Heritage Month, Native American Heritage Month, African American Heritage Month, Women’s History Month and National Disability

Employment Awareness Month.

131st Bomb Wing challenged to 'Be the Best'

By Lt. Col. Michael Francis
131st Bomb Wing vice commander

As the summer comes to a close and the leaves start to turn, I find myself enjoying the cool weather of fall and, of course, the great American game of football. As I watched, the St. Louis Rams last week, it occurred to me that we in the 131st Bomb Wing are in a very similar process as a National Football League franchise that goes through rebuilding years after a long championship run. After the Super Bowl years of the “Greatest Show on Turf,” I watched the Rams lose player after player to free agency, injury and retirement. As I watched the game last week, what I saw was a team with a new coach, a new quarterback and a new attitude.

We, in the 131st BW are in the process of rebuilding our unit with a new mission, at a new location and with a new team. We have some veterans from the old team, but we’ve also brought on some free agents from the 509th BW, and we’ve got some rookies that we have acquired through the draft (i.e. our great staff of recruiters).

Our mission is to build ourselves into that championship team that we want to be. It is not an easy process, and it doesn’t happen overnight. I think for most of us, the hardest part is the speed at which the process takes place. We are all working hard to build this team and we want to see results. Unfortunately, this is a process that will take years to accomplish. It is only through the countless exercises, inspections, and the maturity of our members that are we going to be able to attain the level of performance that we expect from ourselves and our organization.

As the wing works toward its final goal of being fully operational capable we have several hurdles to overcome. This year, we will bring over the remaining parts of the wing that have yet to make the transition. Once we get the rest of the mission support group, medical group, and wing staff moved to Whiteman, we can focus on the job at hand, which is partnering with the 509th Bomb Wing to operate the premier Air Force Global Strike Command platform, the B-2 Spirit.

As we work toward this goal, realize that the level of performance of the team is the result of the hard work of the individuals. It is here that I lay my challenge to each and every member of the 131st Bomb Wing — Be the Best.

For each of us, those three words mean something different, but the way you achieve them is the same. We should always be striving to be better than we were yesterday. If we can continually improve our performance, over time our capabilities will increase dramatically. It is through this individual improvement that we will see our team rounding into championship form.

Col. Gregory Champagne, 131st Bomb Wing commander, continues to lay-out a game plan for us to achieve our goals. It is now up to our commanders, chiefs and senior NCOs to bring us together as a team. Team chemistry is always the most elusive part of building a truly outstanding organization. It is a combination of team goals being more important than individual desires and camaraderie between teammates. It takes leadership from all levels to achieve, but once you get it, the results are limitless.

I have always been very proud to be associated with the 131st BW. Whether it was a fighter wing or now as a bomb wing it has been made up of outstanding individuals striving to be the best. Building something special is not an easy task. We are embarking on a new chapter in the organization that is going to take some time. But make no mistake, we will get there. And in the end, I have no doubt that the 131st Bomb Wing will be all we want it to be.

WOW draws 75,000 spectators

By Senior Airman Torey Griffith

509th Bomb Wing Public Affairs

Monday morning found Whiteman back to business as usual after two-days of hustle and bustle at the 2010 Wings Over Whiteman Air Show and Open House, Sept. 18 and 19.

The 2010 WOW is the first for Whiteman under Air Force Global Strike Command, attracting approximately 75,000 people.

Entertaining acts in the air, from a barnstorming Stearman bi-plane to the U.S. Air Force Air Demonstration Squadron Thunderbirds; combined with a variety of static aircraft, cars, trucks and motorcycles represented a broad spectrum of military and civilian aviation.

"Thanks to the outstanding efforts of the planning team and the lineup of performers we all expected to have a solid weekend," said Lt. Col. Michael Wittrock, WOW director. "The show exceeded our expectations. The performances were fantastic, and for the most part, the weather was beautiful."

Storms in the area Saturday afternoon cut the Thunderbird performance short, and 300-foot ceilings prevented the Golden Knights opening ceremony jump Sunday morning, but the weather was generally fair, with temperatures in the 80s.

"Sunday morning I watched a young boy about three years old jump up and down as he pointed at the B-52 parked near the entry control point he and his father had come through," said Maj. Catherine Roberts, assistant director of WOW 2010. "'Daddy, Daddy, look! Planes, planes!' he exclaimed. That boy's excitement, along with the gratitude of many civilians, especially veterans, made the long hours worthwhile. That was the highlight of the air show for me."

Both Colonel Wittrock and Major Roberts attributed the success of the event not only to the performers, but to the planning committee, support personnel and volunteers who poured their efforts into the event, from setup to tear down.

"The success of the show was directly related to the amount of planning, effort and teamwork that was put into it from all of the air show staff as well as the volunteers that worked through the weekend to make it happen," Colonel Wittrock said. "To all who helped put it together, thank you!"

Global Strike Command units cooperate on successful simulated launches

By Airman 1st Class Kristina Overton

341st Missile Wing Public Affairs Office

MALMSTROM AIR FORCE BASE, Mont. – Airmen from the 341st Missile Wing performed multiple tests Sept. 8 and 9 as a part of a Simulated Electronic Launch-Minuteman, also known as a SELM.

The tests are an integral part of Air Force Global Strike Command's on-going program to evaluate the operational readiness of Minuteman III intercontinental ballistic missiles.

Six different launch facilities and two launch control centers in the 490th Missile Squadron underwent testing. Unlike operational test launches at Vandenberg AFB, Calif., where an actual missile launch occurs, SELMs validate the ground hardware and software that commands and controls the Minuteman III prior to launch.

"These tests are critical because they demonstrate the wing's nuclear surety by thoroughly evaluating the safety, security and reliability of the weapon system," said

Col. Anthony Cotton, 341 Missile Wing commander.

The primary objective of the SELM tests are to evaluate weapon system launch reliability and suitability, collect vital test information and demonstrate the ability of the nation's Minuteman IIIs to launch if needed.

"Conducting these SELM tests ensure the response capability of the wing," said Lt. Col. Richard Cross, the 341st Maintenance Operations Squadron commander. "The evaluation runs through a series of tests to make sure the weapon system will perform its mission without error. The data we collect provides critical reliability data."

A test readiness review board met Sept. 7 to certify the wing's readiness to execute the mission.

Two tests are conducted for SELM. An airborne test is a launch simulation from an aerial launch control center. A ground test is an electronically simulated launch from a remote launch control center.

"This is the fifth set of SELM tests

I've participated in," said Master Sgt. Christopher McCabe, 341st Missile Maintenance Squadron SELM non-commissioned officer in charge. "We complete rigorous training in preparation for them, which starts almost two months prior to the actual test. Training includes step-by-step technical orders and procedures for execution, and reviewing specific instructions and test sequence documents."

Air Force Global Strike Command conducts SELM tests amongst its three missile bases twice each year. The first test this year took place in June at Minot Air Force Base, N.D. The Command's 576th Flight Test Squadron, located at Vandenberg AFB, Calif., has overall responsibility for SELM tests and also for operational test launches.

"The success of the SELM test relies on numerous agencies," Sergeant McCabe said. "Many Airmen played a significant role in ensuring that our weapon system is reliable and that the tasks, from posturing the test launch facilities to launch control centers, are performed effectively."

Servicemembers earn incentive flight with Golden Knights

By Heidi Hunt
509th Bomb Wing Public Affairs

For many Airmen, Soldiers and civilians, an incentive flight can be a rare experience. Some would say ‘landing’ an opportunity to feast their eyes on skies, up high, with the U.S. Army Golden Knights Parachute Team is a chance of a lifetime.

But for more than 30 Whiteman servicemembers experienced just that during the 2010 Wings Over Whiteman Air Show and Open House, Sept. 18 & 19, as they were chosen to fly in the Fokker C-31A Troopship, courtesy of the Golden Knights Gold Team.

“Incentive flights are offered at the wing level to servicemembers who distinguish themselves as outstanding performers,” said Capt. Paul Howerton, 1-135th Attack Reconnaissance Battalion acting administration officer.

One supervisor, Master Sgt. Valincia Western, 509th Medical Operations Squadron NCO in charge, said she selected Air Force Global Strike Command Staff Sgt. Sharon Catana for the incentive flight because she excels at every task given.

“If I had to use one word to describe Sergeant Catana, it would be phenomenal,” said Sergeant Western. “She was an excellent choice to represent the 509th MDOS. When a rare opportunity such as this comes along, it’s rewarding to nominate someone who is truly deserving. Sergeant Catana will remember this for a lifetime, and this event was her reward for her hard work and dedication.”

From 12,500-feet and with temperatures below freezing, Whiteman servicemembers observed the airborne soldiers suit-up and prepare for departure via parachute to entertain the WOW crowd.

“The flight was a dream come true,” said Airman 1st Class Ian Sondergaard, 509th Munitions Squadron storage crew member. “I’ve wanted to do something like this all my life. I’m very thankful to the team and my squadron for allowing me this opportunity.

“Having the bay doors open, seeing the base from above with the wind and the noise from the engine, and being up there with the team was just an amazing thing to be a part of,” he said. “It was a once in a lifetime experience, and I certainly enjoyed every minute of it.”

The team earned the nickname the “Golden Knights” – Golden, signifying the team’s stellar reputation of bringing home gold medals; Knights, alluding to the fact that the team had “conquered the skies” and portraying that members of the team are champions of a set of ideals and principals.

Whiteman hosts Absentee Voters Week Sept. 27 - Oct. 4

By 509th Bomb Wing Public Affairs

Air Force Global Strike Command is supporting the Department of Defense organized Absentee Voters Week, Monday through Oct. 4.

"We set this week aside to recognize the military's focus on preserving the right to vote and encouraging the absentee voters to do so," said Maj. Sohrab Nejad, Installation Voting Assistance Officer.

The week's goal is to remind voters to register and request absentee ballots if they have not done so. Those who have registered and received their Federal Post Card

Application should complete the ballot and return them to their local election officials.

If ballots have not been received, the Whiteman Air Force Base Voting Assistance Officers are available to help fill out and turn in the Federal Write-in Absentee Ballot (a back-up in case the registered absentee ballot doesn't reach officials before the November election).

Both the FPCA and FWAB can be completed and turned in during Absentee Voters Week, if voters have not taken prior registration steps.

If state ballots are received after a voter submits a FWAB, still turn in the ballot. The state counts the FWAB only if the state ballot is not received.

FWAB can be filled out online at <https://www.fvap.gov/r3/fpca/home>.

The Whiteman Air Force Base Voting Assistance Officers will provide voting help and answer questions at the base exchange and Mission's End, Monday through Oct. 4 from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. County voter registration personnel will also be available at the base exchange, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m., to help with registration and answer questions.

For more information, find Absentee Voters Week 2010 at www.whiteman.af.mil, or call unit reps.

Supporting Total Force Integration, one of the team pilots, Maj. Sean Gustafson was a Traditional Reservist before joining. This is his second year assigned active duty to the team. The most eligible for the job are taken whether active duty, guard or reserve.

The Thunderbirds hour-long performance consists of nearly 30 maneuvers on both the ground and in the air. Eight shows remain this season, including demonstrations at their home base Nov. 13 and 14, marking the end for the year.

Reserve F-16 pilot fulfills life-long dream as Thunderbird #4

By Lt. Col. David Kurle
442nd Fighter Wing Public Affairs

Maj. Sean Gustafson has a simple, but important, message for his fellow Air Force reservists: "If they can dream it, they can do it - the opportunities available to reservists today are truly unlimited."

The major should know. He's currently in the middle of a four-year Active Guard and Reserve tour fulfilling his own childhood dream as the number-four (or, slot) pilot for the U.S. Air Force's demonstration team, the Thunderbirds.

He's also the first Air Force Reserve pilot chosen for the prestigious aerobatics team - flying the F-16 Fighting Falcon in front of millions of spectators.

"I think me being on the team demonstrates reservists are really out there doing every job in the Air Force," Major Gustafson said. "I think the lines between active duty and reserve are fading because we're all working and deploying side by side. Reservists are everywhere - we truly are deployed globally."

In almost two years of traveling around the world with the Thunderbirds, he said he's met reservists in almost every Air Force specialty code.

"One of the best parts of traveling for the past two years is meeting other reservists," Major Gustafson said. "They're excited when they find out there's a reservist flying on the team."

He also said being a Thunderbird pilot is the highlight of his 14-year Air Force career.

It was something I thought I wouldn't have the opportunity to do once I became a reservist, Major Gustafson said.

"There was never a push to get a reservist on the team until two years ago," he said.

Like most reservists, the major started on active duty and after a decade, he began a civilian career flying passenger jets for Delta Airlines. He also continued serving in the military and joined the Air Force Reserve's 482nd Fighter Wing at Homestead Air Reserve Base, Fla.

Two years ago, Major Gustafson applied for and was chosen as a Thunderbird pilot after competing against pilots from the regular Air Force and Air National Guard.

He credits his experience as an F-16 instructor pilot with his success. With more than 2,000 hours in the Fighting Falcon, he's the team's "high-time" pilot (and the only one over the 2,000-hour mark).

"One thing about the Air Force Reserve that's an asset is our level of experience," he said. "The Reserve has an incredible amount of experience because they've been performing the same missions so long and there's more continuity in a Reserve unit because people tend to stay in the same unit their whole careers."

During this - his second - season with the Thunderbirds, Major Gustafson will fly a red, white and blue F-16 at 73 performances. He will end his stint with the team after its last show in November and finish his AGR tour at Air Force Reserve Headquarters at Robins Air Force Base, Ga.

"The biggest job satisfaction is having people thank me for my service," he said. "What our generation is doing right now to preserve American freedoms is fantastic when you think about it."

Major Gustafson is joined on the team by Staff Sgt. Andru Donaldson, an Air Force Reserve crew chief who joined the team in 2010 from the Reserve's 926th Group at Nellis AFB, Nev.

"The young reservists of today should focus on their strengths, develop those and keep in mind we're being trained to do the same mission as our active-duty counterparts," Major Gustafson said. "The total Air Force is truly one team."

Eat Pray Love

Liz Gilbert had everything a modern woman is supposed to dream of having — a husband, a house, a successful career — yet like so many others, she found herself lost, confused, and searching for what she really wanted in life. Newly divorced and at a crossroads, Gilbert steps out of her comfort zone, risking everything to change her life, embarking on a journey around the world that becomes a quest for self-discovery. In her travels, she discovers the true pleasure of nourishment by eating in Italy; the power of prayer in India, and, finally and unexpectedly, the inner peace and balance of true love in Bali. Rated PG-13 (brief strong language, some sexual references and male rear nudity) 133 min

FREE Classified Advertising in the Whiteman Warrior READ ALL RULES BEFORE PLACING AN AD

1. Advertising is free to all active-duty, guard and reserve military members and civil servants who work on base or at the MoARNG in Warrensburg only. Military or civil service rank must be included in the space for "rank." We do offer free advertising to retired military members.
 2. Ads of a commercial nature such as baby-sitting, lawn maintenance, house cleaning, product sales, apartments or houses for rent, work-at-home opportunities or any other service in which the person makes a profit must be prepaid. Paid ads must be placed directly through the Sedalia Democrat at 1-800-892-7856, dropped off at 700 S. Massachusetts Ave., Sedalia, Mo., 65301 or e-mailed to theclassifieds@sedaliademocrat.com. They accept VISA, MasterCard, cash, personal check or money order.
 3. Free ads are for one-time sale of personal items only. Free ads can't be placed for churches, groups, clubs, organizations or friends not affiliated with the military. Each item must be sold for $150 or less.
 4. Only one free ad*, maximum 30 words, will be allowed to run at any given time by the same household, for a maximum of eight weeks. Ads over the 30-word maximum will be edited at the publisher's discretion.
- *People who are PCSing may place more than one ad and sell the items at any price.

5. Include your home phone in the ad so people can contact you. USE OF DUTY PHONES IN ADS IS AGAINST AIR FORCE REGULATIONS.
6. Print legibly, and place punctuation and spaces where necessary. Use only one word per line.
7. Free ads aren't taken over the phone. They must be dropped off at or mailed to the 509th Bomb Wing Public Affairs Office, 1081 Arnold Ave Blvd, Bldg 59, Whiteman AFB, Mo., 65305. Ads may also be faxed to 660-687-7948.
8. Many offices on base are using old forms. If you would like a copy of the new ad form to keep in your office, call 687-6123 and we'll fax a new form for your use. Or, you can download it at <http://www.whiteman.af.mil> and click on "Whiteman Warrior Classified Ad Form."
9. Homes for sale that are listed with a realtor must be paid for. Only people who are PCSing and selling homes FSBO (for sale by owner) qualify as a free ad.
10. Free yard sale ads are for active-duty, guard, reserve and retired military members living on or off base. People who live on base must have their yard sale approved by the housing office first.
11. The deadline for placing new ads, canceling or making changes to ads is 10 a.m. Friday, one week before desired publication.
12. Ads that don't meet these guidelines will not run. Free advertising is a privilege extended to you by the publisher, and your cooperation is greatly appreciated. Submissions do not guarantee publication. Publication is on a space available basis.
