More than just a morning stroll

Maintainers and crew chiefs with the 509th Maintenance Squadron and 131st Bomb Wing prepare to perform a Foreign Object Debris walk before starting their day, Sept. 28. FOD mishaps can potentially result in extensive aircraft damage, ultimately hindering the Air Force's flying mission. To counter such events, crew chiefs, maintainers and other personnel working on the flightline take responsibility for eliminating FOD to keep the aircraft safe and the flying mission soaring. See page 15 for full article and photos.

Air Force Global Strike Command reaches full operational capability

BARKSDALE AIR FORCE BASE, La. – Air Force Global Strike Command was declared to be at Full Operational Capability on Sept. 30, on schedule, and less than 14 months after its initial activation as a command.

To reach that milestone, the Command accomplished more than 700 action items identified by the Secretary and Chief of Staff of the Air Force in 2009, when they chartered Global Strike Command to strengthen the nuclear enterprise by aligning all Air Force long-range nuclear-capable forces under a single command.

Lt. Gen. Frank Klotz, Global Strike Command commander, reported Full Operational Capability status in a memorandum to the Secretary and the Chief of Staff of the Air Force today.

Full Operational Capability status is the final step in any military unit's stand-up. Air Force Global Strike Command is the first completely new major command the Air Force has activated in over 27 years.

"Our successful stand-up was possible because of the commitment, innovative spirit, and sheer hard work of Global Strike Command Airmen," said General Klotz.

"This talented team of professionals put in place all the functions of a major command while simultaneously executing those functions. This unique challenge was a lot like building an aircraft while actually flying it," he added.

Prior to activation as a major command, what was then Air Force Global Strike Command, Provisional was launched in January 2009, at Bolling AFB, Washington D.C., under the leadership of then-Brig. Gen. Jim Kowalski, now a two-star general and the Command's vice commander. General Kowalski has been nominated by the President, and confirmed by the Senate, for a third star and to become the next AFGSC commander when General Klotz retires early next year, after more than 37 years on active duty.

The Command was formally activated at Barksdale on Aug. 7, 2009, on the premise that no mission is more important than operating, maintaining, securing and supporting the nuclear enterprise, officials said.

Since then, according to General Klotz's official memo, the Command has established and manned a fully-functional headquarters. It also assumed responsibility for all units of both 20th Air Force, headquartered at F.E. Warren AFB,

Top officials send letter to Airmen

To the Airmen of the United States Air Force:

The Air Force is engaged in a long-term effort to improve our Nation's energy security through energy efficiency and conservation. We have made solid progress in these areas over the past year, but our work is far from done. In order to meet our strategic energy goals, we must continue to instill energy efficiency and conservation into our daily routines within our aviation and our installation communities.

October is the federal government's Energy Awareness Month; appropriately timed with the start of a new fiscal year. This year's Air Force theme is "A New Culture: Energy as an Operations Enabler." This theme highlights the ties between energy and mission success by raising awareness of the energy costs associated with our daily activities. As such, we must continue to emphasize the pillars of the Air Force's Energy Plan: Reducing Demand, Increasing Supply, and Changing our Culture.

Achieving our energy goals requires sustained effort, a systematic approach, determined leadership, and a firm commitment from all of us to identify and implement workable solutions. You are an integral part of this effort. Through commitment, innovation, teamwork, and discipline, we will free up funding for other Air Force priorities and enhance our energy security.

Thank you for all you do for our Air Force and for our Nation.

Wyo., and 8th Air Force, headquartered at Barksdale.

The Command is fully engaged in long-range planning for the nuclear deterrence and global strike mission, now having in place a strategic master plan that aligns AFGSC with the larger Air Force strategic plan.

Global Strike Command assumes full responsibility for planning, programming and financial management activities on Oct. 1, and will be lead for both sustainment and modernization of the Minuteman III intercontinental ballistic missiles operated out of F.E. Warren, Minot AFB, N.D. and Malmstrom AFB, Mont.; the B-52 Stratofortress nuclear-capable bombers here and at Minot; and the B-2 Spirit nuclear-capable bombers at Whiteman AFB, Mo.; as well as UH-1N Huey helicopters.

The Command has also established an inspector general function and has already conducted at least one major inspection at each of the Command's six operational wings, the general said.

Additionally, the Command formed a Crisis Action Team, as well as a Response Task Force to deal with emergency situations and potential incidents.

Other Command missions include targeting analysis at the 625th Strategic Operations Squadron at Offutt AFB, Neb., and the ICBM test launch operations of the 576th Flight Test Squadron at Vandenberg AFB, Calif.

Thank You to the Global Strike Command Team

By Lt. Gen. Frank G. Klotz
Air Force Global Strike Command commander

On September 30, Air Force Global Strike Command achieved Full Operational Capability...on time and on target!

Reaching this historic milestone would not have happened without each and every one of you, the women and men of Global Strike Command. Your professionalism, hard work and personal sacrifice allowed us to accomplish what at first may have seemed nearly impossible.

In the 14 months following our formal activation as a major command on August 7, 2009, we've built Global Strike Command in a methodical, step-by-step process. Along the way, we've had to meet the urgent need to create a model organization while continuing to provide safe, secure and effective nuclear deterrence and global strike capabilities to the President and Combatant Commanders around the world. It's been said that this task was a lot like building an aircraft while actually having to fly it.

Achieving success has been a total team effort, with each and every member of the Command playing an important and indispensable role. First on the scene were the early pioneers who formed the Provisional Command in January 2009 at Bolling Air Force Base. Later that same year, hundreds of temporary duty and permanent party members answered the call and made the journey to Barksdale Air Force Base to stand up the permanent Headquarters. Next to join the team were the operators, maintainers, security forces and support Airmen of 20th Air Force and 8th Air Force who relentlessly performed their enduring missions while becoming an integral part of a new major command... their very own major command. And, throughout the process, the communities around our bases continued to offer steadfast, magnificent support to our Airmen and their families.

Thank you one and all for what you have done to bring us to this historic moment. By reaching Full Operational Capability, we've kept our promise to our senior leaders to deliver a full-up major command that aligns all Air Force long-range, nuclear capable forces under a single chain-of-command, with a special trust and responsibility for the most powerful weapons in our Nation's arsenal.

NEWS BRIEFS

Multicultural Fest

The second annual multicultural fest is Oct. 29 from 2-4 p.m. at Mission's End. Free food, music, entertainment, cultural displays, and puppet show and ballroom art will be provided. For more information, call (660) 687-1950.

AADD poster contest

Airman Against Drunk Driving is accepting submissions for a new poster beginning Oct. 15 through Nov. 14. All entries must incorporate AADD's name, phone number and logo. To obtain a digital copy of the logo, e-mail Paul.Denton@whiteman.af.mil. Submissions must not have crude language or explicit images. The contest is open to all base members. An AAFES gift card will be awarded to the top three winners. For more information contact Airman 1st Class Denton at (660) 687-2595.

Domestic Abuse Awareness Month

October is Domestic Abuse Awareness Month and the Whiteman Family Advocacy Program is spearheading a campaign to raise awareness and assist the Warrensburg Survival Adult Abuse Center. In 2009, the shelter assisted nearly 500 women and children to include Whiteman family members. Family Advocacy is sponsoring a "Supplies for Survival" donation campaign through Oct. 15 which will benefit the local shelter for battered families. The 509th Bomb Wing first sergeants will collect donation items such as non-perishable food, cleaning products and paper goods. For more information or to donate to the 'Supplies for Survival' campaign, contact Ms. Jeannine Johnson at (660) 687-4341 or a unit first sergeant.

Retroactive Stop Loss claims

Airmen, veterans and beneficiaries who were involuntarily extended under Stop Loss between Sept. 11, 2001, and Sept. 30, 2009, are eligible for Retroactive Stop Loss, and have yet to file a claim for RSLSP, the last day to file is Dec. 3 (extended deadline). For links to the claim forms and instructions on how to file, log on to www.afpc.randolph.af.mil/stoploss.

Officials seek Spirit of Hope Award nominees

Air Force officials are soliciting nominations for the 2011 Spirit of Hope Award. The award recognizes a military member, civilian or an organization that epitomizes the values of Bob Hope -- duty, honor, courage, loyalty, commitment, integrity and selfless dedication. Each major command, field operating agency and direct reporting unit may only submit one nomination. Organizations and base-level personnel must contact their MAJCOM, FOA or DRU for applicable suspense dates and additional information regarding nomination procedures. Completed nomination packages must be sent to the Air Force Personnel Center by March 15, 2011. For more information on this and other Air Force recognition programs, visit the AFPC personnel services website at <http://gum.afpc.randolph.af.mil> or call the Total Force Service Center toll-free at (800) 525-0102 or DSN 665-5000.

Brymer receives Chief's Choice Award

By Heidi Hunt
509th Bomb Wing Public Affairs

Air Force Global Strike Command Senior Airman Joshua Brymer, 509th Maintenance Squadron Aerospace Ground Equipment journeyman, was awarded the Chief's Choice Award by the 509th Bomb Wing Chief's Council, Sept. 29, for his outstanding knowledge, dedication and overall excellent attitude, according to Chief Master Sgt. Dan Peters, 131st Aircraft Maintenance Squadron.

The monthly award, selected by the Whiteman Chief's Group, recognizes E-5's and below who exemplify 'Service Before Self,' and dedication to the mission, fellow Airmen and their families.

"Airman Brymer volunteered to deploy to Red Flag, Alaska," said Chief Master Sgt. Steven Gardner, 509th Maintenance Operations Squadron. "During the deployment, Airman Brymer assembled four-50 ton jacks within three of the six-hour standard, facilitating the first-ever outdoor/apron B-2 gear swing. He mobilized 31 aircraft ground equipment units with zero frustrations ensuring a 100 percent staging and cargo mission times.

Additionally, Airman Brymer logged more than 60 on-time AGE deliveries which were lauded by the 13th Bomb Squadron commander. "He also fixed an electrical power unit saving more than $4,200 in replacement cost. He repaired a burner control unit wire harness averting a possible ground mishap and injury to maintenance personnel," said Chief Gardner.

Sergeant Brymer said he was proud to receive the award.

"It is an honor to be recognized with the Chief's Choice Award and to have my accomplishments lauded," Airman Brymer said. "It really keeps me motivated to set a great example for all the younger Airmen."

In addition to a certificate of recognition, award winners also receive a $25 gift card, food court meals and movie passes, courtesy of the Whiteman Base Exchange.

Airman's Attic re-opens for E1-E5

Airman 1st Class
Cody H. Ramirez
509th Bomb Wing Public Affairs

After a two-month hiatus, the Whiteman Airman's Attic reopened Tuesday with a ribbon cutting ceremony hosted by Brig. Gen. Scott Vander Hamm, 509th Bomb Wing commander, ensuring Air Force Global Strike Command Airmen in need have a quality place to get necessary living and working items.

The attic was closed due to the suspicion of mold, which was later cleared. Volunteers needed to run the attic had families of their own to take care of over the summer, which also delayed the reopening process, said Meladee Bay, Airman & Family Readiness chief.

The 509th Civil Engineer Squadron removed any items that could have contained mold, repainted and laid in new carpet. Donated uniforms were taken to the dry cleaners to remove any chance of contamination.

Cosmetic changes weren't the only change to come with the re-opening. Whiteman's top three also took charge of a board to begin overseeing the direction of the Airman's Attic.

"So far we (the board) have curtailed the large furniture items, such as couches and televisions, because no one seems to need them," said Senior Master Sgt. Todd Sparks, Airman's Attic board member. "It's more about the uniforms, clothing items, baby clothes and other small items that Airmen need.

"If anyone has items that they would like to donate to families, they can give those items to the Airman's Attic," Sergeant Sparks added. "We send items we can't store and extra clothing received to other organizations like Big Brothers, Big Sisters and the Salvation Army in Warrensburg."

"We are getting a new shed to store the items being dropped off, and directional signs will soon be posted to lead those donating to the drop-off spot," Sergeant Sparks added.

There has been a limit set to specific items being taken from the attic due to quantity.

"Since we had to clean out the attic, we're starting fresh and each family can fill up one sack," he said. "We're here to help out as much as we can, but we also don't want to run out of clothes."

The Airman's Attic is here to help all Airmen. The rules stipulate those who can use the Airman's Attic have to be between the ranks of airman basic to staff sergeant, but if someone is in need, the attic is here for them.

Those interested in donating can leave items at the drop-off spot located behind the attic. To get to the Airman's Attic, follow Spirit Avenue to the first stop light and take a right on Vandenburg Avenue. The first left off Vandenburg is a road between the back of the base-exchange and the left-side of community center, turn onto it. The drop-off is at the end of the street.

For more information, call Mrs. Bay at (660) 687-6533.

From the Frontlines: Capt. Jordan Clark

“Give a man a fish and you feed him for a day. Teach a man to fish and you feed him for a lifetime.”- Chinese Proverb

This is essentially what Capt. Jordan Clark, 1-135 Attack Reconnaissance Battalion AH-64 Apache pilot did during the 11 months he volunteered to deploy to Jalalabad, Afghanistan. He returned from his deployment in September. While deployed, Captain Clark was an agricultural specialist assigned to the Missouri Agribusiness Development Team 3.

Their mission was to create stability within Afghanistan through economic opportunity. Captain Clark said since 80 percent of the Afghan economy is based on agriculture, it was the most logical target to improve.

“I was primarily the animal veterinary specialist,” he said. “I helped build slaughter facilities, administer the veterinary facilities, provided training and mentored students at the veterinary university and the Nangarhar University.”

The ADT taught Afghans different farming and irrigation techniques to aid them in being more efficient with their techniques, time and supplies.

“Teaching and helping the Afghans gave us a chance to look at their livestock and for them to see us in a more assisting role,” said Captain Clark. “The Afghans absolutely loved it.”

He said they were there to help the Afghans rebuild their economy and to win their hearts and minds. By legitimately helping people, Captain Clark’s unit was able to have the Afghans who were on the fence, without a complete devotion for a specific cause to side with them.

“We tried work with people who are not completely dedicated to one cause or another, who are just trying to find a way of life and feed their families and get them to our side,” said Captain Clark. “They’re just going with what pays, so we teach them how to fend for themselves.”

The advantage that helped the ADT execute so many projects was that they had the civilian educators, but also the added security that allowed them to enter places and execute tasks other organizations couldn’t accomplish.

Assisting with security was a joint force of Army and Air Force personnel.

“We were unique because we had 13 Air Force security forces members with us,” said Captain Clark. “The guys were

Airmen can avoid fraud

Airman 1st Class Montse Ramirez
509th Bomb Wing Public Affairs

Since the first day of basic training, Airmen are instilled with the three core values. Integrity First, Service Before Self and Excellence In All We Do. Integrity First is what ties the other two values together. To Airmen, this value is essential. Unfortunately, not everyone possesses it.

Recently, an Airman, stationed at this Air Force Global Strike Command base, was victimized through an online scam by a person who lacked integrity. He was looking for a car and found one he liked online.

The Airman contacted the seller via e-mail about the car he was interested in. The seller introduced himself as a fellow Airman from another base. This introduction made the Airman feel more at ease about the business deal, falling into the seller's scheme.

After interchanging numerous e-mails, they decided to go through with the transaction. The seller told the Airman to use Google Checkout; a tool that holds payment to the seller until the buyer receives the said goods.

When the buyer sent the money to the Google Checkout, he never received delivery notification and was never able to get in contact with the seller.

Turns out, the seller and alleged Airman was a scammer. The account he gave the buyer to send the money to, wasn't a Google Checkout account.

At this point, the Airman sought guidance from the legal office here on what his next step should be. The legal office investigated his case and are trying to help him as best as they can, and advised the Airman to seek assistance from the FBI.

"Airmen need to be especially careful in situations like this because not everyone seems to believe in core values," said Capt. Michael Pierson, 509th Bomb Wing assistant staff judge advocate.

A good rule to remember when dealing with online transactions or purchases is if it's too good to be true, it probably is, said Capt. Kevin Normile, 509th Bomb Wing assistant staff judge advocate.

"Online scams are very common," said Captain Normile. "It's easier to make up a back story online when buyers don't know any better. That's why you have to be especially careful."

Captain Pierson recommends Airmen double check every person listed on a transaction to verify they are a credible source. He also encourages them to verify account numbers and try to use a transaction method with live customer support.

"Airmen are probably more willing than civilians to make online transactions since we're constantly on the move," said Captain Pierson. "We are more likely to make a large purchase online because it's more convenient for us."

Commanders "eyes and ears" provide solutions for population

Airmen 1st Class Cody Ramirez
509th Bomb Wing Public Affairs

Wing commanders have busy schedules, which can make it difficult for them to find the time to address every Airman's question or problem directly. Serving as the "eyes and ears" of the commander, Rosana Sales, 509th Bomb Wing Inspector General and Air Force Global Strike Command member, is here to assist Airmen of all ranks, family members, civilian employees and retirees and mediate issues to the commander.

Inspector Generals primarily serve their commanders and their assigned organizations by executing the complaint resolution process and by proactively training all members of the organization about IG processes and Fraud, Waste, and Abuse (FWA) issues, according to Air Force Instruction 90-301.

"I love everything about my job, but having the one-on-one access with the commander would have to be on the top of my list," Mrs. Sales said. "If I receive a complaint that requires immediate action, it's extremely beneficial to have unimpeded access.

Mrs. Sales said these IG systems were set in stone to solidify unit morale and productivity.

"I keep the commander informed on areas of concern, or matters that indicate systemic problems that could affect mission effectiveness, through waste management and execution of the Complaints Resolution Program and the Fraud, Waste and Abuse program," Mrs. Sales said.

"I'm continuously analyzing complaint data, and if the complaints reflect trends, I inform the commander of those trends, so the necessary corrective measures can be taken," she said. "The data allows commanders the opportunity to resolve underlying problems that are negatively impacting personnel. The sooner the issue is addressed, the happier the base personnel are, and that's my goal here."

Mrs. Sales compiles a thorough complaint on each issue addressed to her. The analysis is a review of assertions, evidence and validity of a complaint. Depending on the outcome, the IG has five directions to take the issue; assistance, dismissal, referral, transfer or investigation.

Assistance is made when a FWA, or violation of law, regulation or policy is found, and the complaint is dismissed when none is proven. Referrals are made when the complaint can be better addressed by a different base agency. She said investigations are conducted in every direction, but the actual investigation direction leads to the full involvement from the Air Force IG chain. Paperwork is sent up to MAJCOM and Air Force IG channels before an investigation of that scale is allowed.

She said no matter which avenue is taken,

Whiteman CAC, Vet Clinic host 2010 Bark in the Park

By Senior Airman Jason Barebo
509th Bomb Wing Public Affairs

The 509th Force Support Squadron Community Activities Center and Veterinary Clinic hosted the 4th annual Whiteman Bark in the Park dog show Oct. 2 at Ike Skelton Park.

The event included more than 50 participants of all breeds, sizes and colors to compete in 14 categories and 4 events.

Members of Team Whiteman arrived with their dogs primped and prepped for contests such as smallest dog, largest dog, best costume and cutest dog.

The Bark in the Park is an event intended to meet the Air Force Global Strike Command values for Airmen moral and welfare.

"Bark in the Park is always a favorite event for participants and volunteers," said Connie Koch, Whiteman CAC director. "There's always something new to see each year with military members coming and going. It also provides family members an opportunity to meet new people and schedule play dates for their pets."

Bark in the Park began with an hour of social time for both owners and pets, also allowing for participants to register their dogs for the event.

The United Servicemembers Organization was also in attendance providing hot dogs and gifts for adults and children. The USO also gave away a pet carrier as a door prize.

"This was a great experience," said Tech. Sgt. Erin Connolly, 509th Medical Operations Squadron and owner of two dogs, Sam and Bear. Bear won most original trick. "This was our first year participating and I think my son enjoyed it more than our dogs did."

The winners for each category were:

Envision celebrates NDEAM

By Heidi Hunt
509th Bomb Wing Public Affairs

Imagine struggling to see the words in a newspaper and not having the help of a visual aid. For some, being visually impaired and severely disabled might pose as a challenge, but others will take the opportunity to work past their disabilities toward aspirations.

In 1988, Congress declared October as National Disability Employment Awareness Month.

In efforts to recognize NDEAM, the Whiteman Envision store celebrated 15 years of supplying base units with mission essential products to execute the Air Force Global Strike Command mission, while employing disable staff members.

The AbilityOne Program is the largest source of employment for people with disabilities, by providing products and services for the Federal government and Department of Defense.

"AbilityOne products available at Envision Xpress, were manufactured by blind or disabled individuals and most of our stores have two or more visually impaired employees," said Max Holden, Envision Xpress general manager.

Envision's mission is to enhance the personal independence of the individuals whose blindness, often accompanied by other disabilities, impacts their opportunities for employment success and integration into the community which is a direct reflection of what the AbilityOne program stands for.

Government customers support the employment of qualified professionals who are blind or have other severe disabilities with each purchase under the AbilityOne Program.

"The Envision store provides customers with office supplies, cleaning supplies, clothing issues, individual equipment, all while meeting the mission's needs and providing job to the visually impaired," Mr. Holden said.

impaired employees work as cashiers at the Envision store and share optimism and enjoyment about working at Envision.

"The best part of my job is working with the customers," said Mrs. Thompson. "I've been doing this job for more than 13 years and enjoy it. It's what makes me get up every day because if I had to sit at home I would probably be dwelling about my eye disease. Many people with visually impaired problems can fall by the wayside."

Mrs. Thompson has macular degeneration, an age related progressive disease of the retina wherein the light-sensing cells in the central area of vision (the macula) stop working and eventually die according to Webmd.com.

Mrs. Coombes said being employed there has helped the problem will be addressed and an answer will be given. Resolving the underlying cause of a complaint may prevent more severe symptoms or costly consequences, such as reduced performance, accidents, poor quality work, poor morale or loss of resources, according to about.com.

"Every day is memorable and I'm honored to be a part of this wing and to help its people," she said.

Any Air Force military or civilian member may file an IG complaint, and any civilian without Air Force affiliation can file a FWA disclosure. For more information, or to file a complaint, call Mrs. Sales at (660) 687-1733.

SIDENOTE (courtesy submission)

How to file a complaint

Step 1: A complaint can be filed if personnel reasonably believe inappropriate conduct has occurred or a violation of law, policy, procedure, instruction or regulation has been committed.

Step 2: Complete the personnel data information on an Air Force IMT 102, Inspector General Personal and Fraud, Waste and Abuse Complaints Registration.

Step 3: Briefly outline the facts and relevant background information related to the issue or complaint on Air Force IMT 102 in chronological order.

Step 4: List the allegations of wrongdoing briefly, in general terms and provide supporting narrative detail including chronology and documents later when interviewed, allegations should be written as bullets and should answer:

- a. What violation was committed?
- b. What law, regulation, procedure or policy was violated?
- c. When did the violation occur?
- d. Who committed the violation?

impressive. They did some things differently, but we all integrated well. They were incredibly proficient and spot on; I'd happily work with the Air Force in any combat situation any day of the week."

Captain Clark said having a common goal of accomplishing the mission while looking out for each other above all else was his favorite part of the deployment.

"Helping the Afghans was wonderful," said Captain Clark. "I think what we were doing mattered, but it's always our guys."

Even though he enjoyed his first deployment, he said he couldn't wait to come home to his wife and his two year-old daughter Abigail.

"It was an amazing deployment, but I missed them too much," said Captain Clark. "I wouldn't mind deploying again, but I don't think I will volunteer for it again."

A technical sergeant from the 509 Munitions Squadron received an article 15 for making a false official statement. Punishment was a suspended reduction to the grade of staff sergeant, a suspended forfeiture of $1462 pay per months for two months, 30 days of extra duty and a reprimand.

An airman first class from the 509th Security Forces Squadron received an Article 15 for drinking alcohol underage. Punishment was a reduction to the grade of airman, a suspended forfeiture of $811 pay per months for two months, restriction to base for 30 days and a reprimand.

"I make sure I do my homework with what I'm going to buy before I get into negotiations," said Airman 1st Class Andrew Porter, 509th Communications Squadron, assistant base records manager. "I also make sure to use secure sites."

He said if he was ever part of a scam, he wouldn't be too angry because he would know it's partially his fault for not researching the subject thoroughly and not taking enough precautions.

"Not everyone has integrity like we'd like to believe," said Captain Pierson. "It's essential to take as many preventative measures as possible."

Whiteman Airmen ensure aircraft safety with FOD checks

Senior Airman Kenny Holston
509th Bomb Wing Public Affairs

As the sun peeked over the aircraft hangers, and the morning dew dripped from the parked aircraft on the Whiteman Air Force Base flightline, Air Force Global Strike Command maintainers, and crew chiefs were found stretched across the aircraft ramp standing side-by-side with plastic bags in hand.

This was a sign of only one thing -- Foreign Object Debris walk, or better known as a FOD walk.

Crew chiefs, maintainers and other personnel working on the Whiteman flightline all take responsibility for eliminating FOD to keep the aircraft safe and the flying mission soaring.

With multiple aircraft taxing across the flightline around the clock, wear and tear on the thick concrete pad is tremendous. It often causes small pebble like chunks of the surface to break off. In the aviation world, these small rocks and pebbles are referred to as FOD and pose a very dangerous threat.

FOD mishaps can potentially result in extensive aircraft damage, ultimately hindering the Air Force flying mission and costing the Air Force millions of dollars. These incidents occur when FOD is either sucked into a jet engine or protrudes through an aircrafts tires while taxing.

"FOD is and will always be a dilemma, but it is absolutely one that we keep to a minimum by performing these walks and ensuring we collect even the smallest bits of FOD," said Tech Sgt. Kenneth Prenger, 131st Bomb Wing crew chief.

Since FOD is mostly made up of small rocks and pebbles, it's hard to remove the debris with sweeper trucks, so Airmen and civilian personnel working on the flightline have to physically remove the FOD themselves by lining up side-by-side and walking across the aircraft ramp.

"Tuesdays and Thursdays are our day's to perform FOD walks," said Airman 1st Class Nathan Siemns, 509th Maintenance Squadron crew chief. "It's easy to get complacent as we make our way across the flightline in search of debris, but we all realize how important it is that FOD is collected, so we do our best to stay focused."

With several multibillion dollar aircraft operating from the Whiteman flightline, to include twenty B-2 Stealth Bombers, Airmen must remain focused to keep the runway and parking ramps FOD free. This is accomplished by strict attention to detail.

"Since the B-2 is one of the main air frames operating from Whiteman, sharp objects that may pierce a tire is one of our biggest concerns," said Airman Siemns. "Because of this, we pay close attention when making our passes during FOD walks, as a punctured tire could lead to an aircraft becoming in operational."

After Airmen perform their FOD walks, the collected debris is combined into one bag and turned into Master Sgt. Michael Kelly, FOD and dropped object monitor. At the end of each quarter, the total amount of FOD collected is weighed. According to Whiteman statistics, 363.1 lbs. of FOD was collected at the end of the May.

Things such as FOD walks, tool accountability, FOD rollover checks and simply paying attention while on the flightline will continue to keep FOD mishaps to a minimum, according to Sergeant Kelly,

"FOD prevention is everyone's responsibility," Sergeant Kelly said. "We are all one team. If anyone sees FOD, it's their job to ensure it gets picked up."

Warrior Weekly Caption Contest

The Idea is simple. Each week, Whiteman Warrior readers will have a new photo that needs a caption. Readers of the Whiteman Warrior will then have a chance to submit their idea of the most fitting photo caption. The caption can be funny, cute, endearing, etc., as long as it is not disrespectful, profane or offensive.

Caption submissions for this week are due no later than noon on Wednesday, and should be sent to whiteman.warrior@whiteman.af.mil with "Caption Contest" in the subject line. Readers can submit more than one caption. When submitting captions, readers should include rank, first and last name, and unit with their entries. Civilian participants, please submit first and last name.

Youth center shoots for fit children

Airmen 1st Class Cody H. Ramirez
509th Bomb Wing Public Affairs

In support of the President Barak Obama's initiative to "solve the problem of childhood obesity within a generation," the Whiteman Youth Center has recently formed an archery class.

The Air Force Global Strike Command personnel assigned to the 509th Force Support Squadron Youth Services will host the eight-week class every Monday from 4:30 to 5:30 p.m., at the base archery range. Two youth center members attend as chaperones for the children each session, while three archery instructors teach the fundamentals of bow usage.

"The class teaches children all aspects of using a bow," said Doug Clifton, class instructor. "It includes how to use the range properly, how to shoot, aim and all safety precautions."

Mr. Clifton has been practicing archery for 30 years and is a registered hunter education and safety instructor for the Missouri Department of Conservation.

An archery course offered by the MDOC taught him proper safety measures while handling a bow, along with all other aspects of using a bow, which he passes on to each student through the youth center archery class.

"This class teaches us how to aim down the sights, how to shoot and how to be safe," said Matthew Gangemella, a 14 year-old-class member and son of Sharon Gangemella. He also said he likes how the class gave him an opportunity to meet new people and make new friends.

"Archery adds a different fitness outlet to our youth," said Connie Morton, Youth Programs lead recreation specialist. "Not all children have an interest in traditional sports, so this provides an alternative."

"It introduces kids to the outdoors, where there are a plenty of physical activities to do" Mr. Clifton added.

The center is planning to form a youth archery club, depending on the amount of interest the class sparks.

"If the children want, I would be happy to support a youth archery club," said Mr. Clifton. "The club could practice a few times a month and possibly join competitions."

With the class being maxed out at 15 attendees, a waiting list has been formed in anticipation of the next eight-week session.

The range charges a small fee of $15 for a year-pass. For more information on the archery range, call Master Sergeant Robert Jackson at (660) 687-6503. For more information on the archery class, call Mrs. Morton at (660) 687-3198.

This Week at the Movies

Saturday

Oct. 8, 2010 - 7 p.m.

Takers

Zoe Saldana, Matt Dillion

A notorious group of criminals continue to baffle police by pulling off perfectly executed bank robberies. They are in and out like clockwork, leaving no evidence behind and laying low in between heists. But when they attempt to pull off one last job with more money at stake than ever before, the crew may find their plans interrupted by a hardened detective who is hell-bent on solving the case. PG-13 - intense sequences of violence and action, sexual situation/partial nudity and some language 111 min.

Sunday

Oct. 9, 2010 - 3 p.m.

The Expendables

Sylvester Stallone, Jet Li

A group of mercenaries hired to infiltrate a South American country and overthrow its ruthless dictator. Once the mission begins, the men realize things aren't quite as they appear, finding themselves caught in a dangerous web of deceit and betrayal. With their mission thwarted and an innocent life in danger, the men struggle with an even tougher challenge one that threatens to destroy this band of brothers. Barney Ross is a man with nothing to lose. Fearless and void of emotion, he is the leader, the sage and the strategist of this tight-knit band of men who live on the fringe. His only attachment is to his pickup truck, his seaplane and his team of loyal modern-day warriors. R - Strong action and bloody violence throughout, and for some language 111 min.

FREE Classified Advertising in the Whiteman Warrior READ ALL RULES BEFORE PLACING AN AD

1. Advertising is free to all active-duty, guard and reserve military members and civil servants who work on base or at the MoARNG in Warrensburg only. Military or civil service rank must be included in the space for "rank." We do offer free advertising to retired military members.
2. Ads of a commercial nature such as baby-sitting, lawn maintenance, house cleaning, product sales, apartments or houses for rent, work-at-home opportunities or any other service in which the person makes a profit must be prepaid. Paid ads must be placed directly through the Sedalia Democrat at 1-800-892-7856, dropped off at 700 S. Massachusetts Ave., Sedalia, Mo., 65301 or e-mailed to theclassifieds@sedaliademocrat.com. They accept VISA, MasterCard, cash, personal check or money order.
3. Free ads are for one-time sale of personal items only. Free ads can't be placed for churches, groups, clubs, organizations or friends not affiliated with the military. Each item must be sold for $150 or less.
4. Only one free ad*, maximum 30 words, will be allowed to run at any given time by the same household, for a maximum of eight weeks. Ads over the 30-word maximum will be edited at the publisher's discretion. *People who are PCSing may place more than one ad and sell the items at any price.

5. Include your home phone in the ad so people can contact you. USE OF DUTY PHONES IN ADS IS AGAINST AIR FORCE REGULATIONS.
6. Print legibly, and place punctuation and spaces where necessary. Use only one word per line.
7. Free ads aren't taken over the phone. They must be dropped off at or mailed to the 509th Bomb Wing Public Affairs Office, 1081 Arnold Ave Blvd, Bldg 59, Whiteman AFB, Mo., 65305. Ads may also be faxed to 660-687-7948.
8. Many offices on base are using old forms**. If you would like a copy of the new ad form to keep in your office, call 687-6123 and we'll fax a new form for your use. Or, you can download it at <http://www.whiteman.af.mil> and click on "Whiteman Warrior Classified Ad Form."
9. Homes for sale that are listed with a realtor must be paid for. Only people who are PCSing and selling homes FSBO (for sale by owner) qualify as a free ad.
10. Free yard sale ads are for active-duty, guard, reserve and retired military members living on or off base. People who live on base must have their yard sale approved by the housing office first.
11. The deadline for placing new ads, canceling or making changes to ads is 10 a.m. Friday, one week before desired publication.
12. Ads that don't meet these guidelines will not run. Free advertising is a privilege extended to you by the publisher, and your cooperation is greatly appreciated. Submissions do not guarantee publication. Publication is on a space available basis.
