The alphabet of commissioning: From E to O

By Senior Airman Wesley Wright
442nd Fighter Wing Public Affairs

There is a multitude of options available for Air Force Reserve enlisted members to transition from the enlisted ranks to the officer corps, one of which being the Deserving Airman Program.

When there is an officer vacancy, the wing commander can appoint a Deserving Airman Commissioning Board. The board is comprised of group and unit commanders, a company- and a field-grade officer, and a chief master sergeant. The force support squadron also has a non-voting member present.

Master Sgt. Nicole Willeford, 442nd Force Support Squadron, has sat in this capacity on boards in the past. As a non-voting member of the board, Sergeant Willeford does not have an official say in the board's decision, but she is instrumental in setting up the board, approving and

CSAF signs munitions realignment program action directive

By Vicki Stein
Secretary of the Air Force Public Affairs

WASHINGTON (AFNS) -- Air Force Chief of Staff Gen. Norton Schwartz signed the Program Action Directive Nov. 20 that details the transfer of munitions squadrons responsible for nuclear mission support from Air Force Materiel Command to Air Force Global Strike Command.

The realignment has formally begun and will complete this December. The realignment of functions will place the command, control and authority for the operational mission with the wing commander.

This is another step in continuing to strengthen the nuclear enterprise. Under a previous move, these munitions squadrons were consolidated under AFMC's Air Force Nuclear Weapons Center.

With Air Force Global Strike Command now fully mission capable, the time is right for a final realignment under the command that also has responsibility for daily nuclear deterrence operations, Schwartz said.

"The munitions squadrons were placed under Air Force Materiel Command at the outset of our effort to reinvigorate the nuclear enterprise," Schwartz said. "AFMC and its leaders have done an outstanding job restoring excellence in munitions operations, and they, along with the Air Force Nuclear Weapons Center, will remain a key part of the nuclear munitions sustainment and integration process."

The realignment will allow for enhanced unity of command under a single major command responsible for most of the nuclear operational mission, he said. This will continue focused oversight and standardization of nuclear weapons, cruise

MEMORANDUM FOR ALL AIR FORCE PERSONNEL
SUBJECT: Holiday Safety Message

Safety never takes a holiday is this year's Holiday Safety Campaign. We urge all Airmen, uniformed and civilian, to take a few extra minutes to thoroughly think through your holiday plans and use sound risk management when traveling and participating in winter activities.

We also thank our Airmen, commanders, family members, and safety professionals who are working very hard to reduce mishaps. Your efforts are paying off. We lost no Airmen to personal motor vehicle mishaps between Christmas and New Year's Day during the past two years. This year, we are on track to achieve the Secretary of Defense's goal to reduce preventable, off-duty automobile mishaps.

We still have work to do in other mishaps area and will roll out a "Quest for Zero" initiative in the coming year to reduce preventable on-duty fatal mishaps. This year's Holiday Safety Campaign focuses on stress management, winter driving, winter sports, responsible drinking, and preventing complacency. All Airmen have a responsibility to ensure a safe holiday for themselves, their fellow Airmen, and their families by being alert to safety risks, both on- and off-duty. By employing personal Wingman risk management concepts, we might once again enjoy a successful winter holiday season with no preventable mishaps.

Whether you are deployed or serving at home, your dedication and sacrifice are profoundly appreciated. Happy holidays to you and your families. Travel celebrate with care, and remember that safety never takes a holiday.

Commander's Corner

Team Whiteman,

Earlier this year the Air Force awarded a housing contract to Balfour Beatty Communities, beginning a new phase at Whiteman in the near future: housing privatization. Although we are just now crossing the threshold, multiple other bases have already crossed over, successfully transitioning to privatized housing with 50-year lease plans.

As your commander and neighbor, my commitment to you is that our transitional phase goes smoothly.

This process isn't new, and some of you may be veterans at it like me. Almost three years ago I was the wing commander at Ellsworth when we started the privatization process. As more and more bases have implemented, the process has become more refined and efficient. There are initial fears of change and the unknown, which is understandable, however communication is our most important tool in creating the smoothest transition possible for you and your family.

To achieve this, I am requiring all on-base military housing residents to attend one of the three Town Hall meetings Dec. 6 at the Base Theater. The first meeting will be held at 8 a.m., and the second will be at 4:30 p.m., and the third will be at 7 p.m. Spouses are welcome and highly encouraged to attend these meetings as I want as many Team Whiteman residents addressed as possible.

Life itself is enough to handle with deployments, long hours on the job and spouses staying home caring for the family or fostering their own career, and the last thing I want is for you to become overwhelmed with this change. That is why these meetings are paramount to on-base residents. Issues you are concerned about need to be addressed upfront and if your specific concerns are not addressed in the larger meetings, you will be able to talk with professionals one-on-one from BBC and Whiteman's Housing Management Office after the meetings have been dismissed.

Defensor Vindex.

Giving back

By Col. Eric Overturf
442nd Fighter Wing Commander

My wife recently told me about a "grateful campaign" on Facebook. I managed to sign on to Facebook (with the help of my teenage daughter) and I found a lot of examples of people talking about good things going on around them. Some were thankful for the weather, others for their families, and one person was even grateful for high-definition televised football.

As a member of Team Whiteman, I don't have to look far to find good things happening. One of the Airmen in my wing recently lost almost everything he owned in a house fire. He contacted his supervisor who quickly got the first sergeants involved with a message asking for help.

Two days after that email was sent, this Airman had everything he needed to start rebuilding his life with his wife and two young children. People from across the whole base and local community pitched in to help him get back on his feet. One 509th Bomb Wing commander contributed an entire bedroom set. One civilian gave $500 cash. Operation Homefront provided furniture, and the Red Cross pitched in vouchers and Walmart gift cards.

One reservist drove his truck more than 400 miles roundtrip to pick up Christmas Store donations for the Airman and other families who need a little help during the holiday season.

People from almost every unit answered that call for help -- National Guard, Reserve, active duty, civilian and other branches of the military, contributed in one way or another. None of these good Samaritans asked to be reimbursed for their contributions. None of them asked for recognition. None of them cared where on base the Airman worked. Most of them never met him, and they won't get to see how their gifts will make this holiday season so much brighter for this Airman and his family. They only knew he was a wingman in need of help, and they did it because it was the right thing to do.

So if I did know how to post something on Facebook, I'd say I'm grateful for being a part of a unit, base, community and military family that takes care of each other. The random acts of kindness I see every day inspire me to try to live by the words of Sir Winston Churchill, Prime Minister of the United Kingdom, "We make a living by what we get, but we make a life by what we give."

During this year's holiday season, I'm going to do my best to give back, from the little things like donating to the Operation Warmheart bell ringers at the commissary or the big things like helping an Airman who needs help. I encourage you to do the same -- it will make someone else's holiday season better, and I guarantee it will make your holiday season brighter too.

Aircrew Flight Equipment specialists help aircrews and pilots get off the ground every day. The Aircrew Flight Equipment specialists are in charge of ensuring flight equipment is in perfect working order -- from flight helmets to oxygen masks.

The Airmen work to ensure emergency safety equipment such as parachutes and survival kits are ready to go should they be needed. If an aircrew needs to make use of emergency equipment, it could mean the difference between life and death.

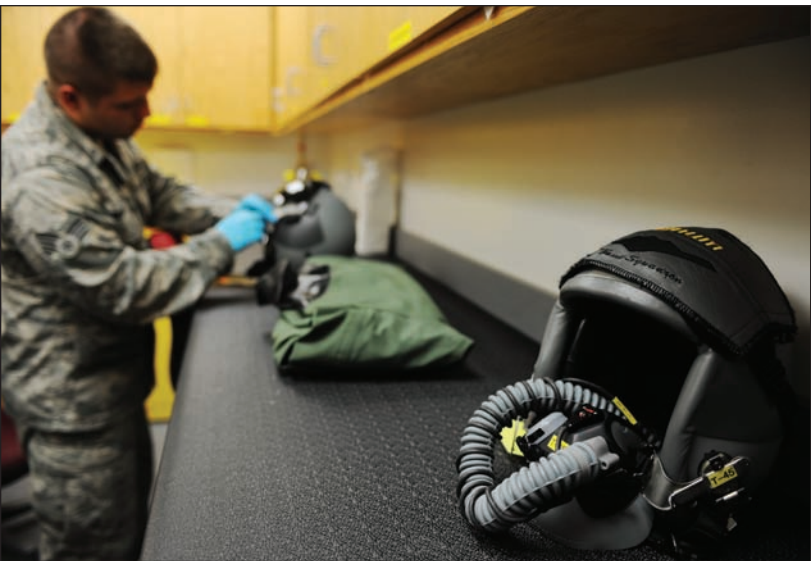

The job requires Airmen are 100 percent accurate and pay attention to detail to ensure the pilots survival equipment is in top condition prior to stepping to the jet.

The Airmen are also responsible for flight equipment such as helmets, oxygen masks, parachutes, flotation devices, survival kits, night vision goggles, anti-G garments, aircrew eye and respiratory protective equipment and other types of AFE.

missiles, and re-entry vehicles/systems maintenance, storage, accountability, handling and control.

"Most important, by doing this we are continuing to strengthen the nuclear enterprise while seeking constant improvement and doing things the best way possible for safe, secure and effective operations," Schwartz said.

Squadrons will realign in place as well as remain about the same size organizationally, so disruptions to operations and people at the units will be minimal.

"Almost two years after being established, Air Force Global Strike Command is now a mature organization capable of integrating the munitions function into the larger nuclear mission," Schwartz said.

Affected organizations are: the 798th

Munitions Maintenance Group at Minot Air Force Base, N.D.; 498th Munitions Maintenance Group at Whiteman AFB, Mo.; 15th Munitions Squadron at F.E. Warren AFB, Wyo.; 16th Munitions Squadron at Malmstrom AFB, Mont.; 17th Munitions Squadron at Minot AFB; 19th Munitions Squadron at Whiteman AFB; 498th Nuclear Systems Wing at Kirtland AFB, N.M.; and 798th Munitions Maintenance Group, Detachment 1, at Vandenberg AFB, Calif.

During the next several months, officials at the Air Force's Strategic Deterrence and Nuclear Integration Directorate, as the Air Staff nuclear mission integrator, will lead the internal implementation process, including specifics regarding final manpower and unit realignments.

1-135th ARB maintains Longbows

Story and photos by Senior Airman Nick Wilson
509th Bomb Wing Public Affairs

Since entering the U.S. Army's service in 1998, the AH-64D Apache Longbows have been used frequently to support the mission of the U.S. Armed Forces by providing armed reconnaissance when required in day, night, obscured battlefield and adverse weather conditions. To accomplish this mission, steady maintenance is required to troubleshoot any major emergencies with the aircraft that could occur.

Aircraft mechanics from the 1-135th Attack Reconnaissance Battalion are responsible for performing the necessary maintenance needed to keep the Army's AH-64D Apache Longbows flying.

"We take it pretty much all the way apart and inspect every piece of the aircraft before putting it all back together," said U.S. Army Sgt. Bo Maze, 1-135th ARB aircraft mechanic.

The 1-135th ARB just received eight Longbows in October to replace an older version of the helicopter.

Due to the fact that these aircraft have new airframes, the mechanics working on it must adjust to the maintenance needed to keep it in the skies. However, the new airframe makes it easier to maintain, according to U.S. Army Staff Sgt. Josh Deaton, 1-135th ARB aircraft mechanic.

"Even though it's a totally different airframe, it's better for me to work on because I'm more familiar with it," said Deaton. "In technical school I was trained on the delta models. They still had alpha models when I was hired on here so it was a game changer for me."

It takes the Longbows approximately two to three months to undergo the phase process, which is required every 500 flight hours. However, Soldiers like Maze and Deaton are responsible for routine maintenance necessary to keep the helicopters on the go.

"We do daily and quick maintenance," Maze said. "If something breaks we'll replace it. We do what we have to do to keep them flying."

ALL PHOTOS: Soldiers from the 1-135th Attack Reconnaissance Battalion perform maintenance on an AH-64D Apache Longbow Nov. 23. Each Longbow goes through a phase inspection every 500 flight hours, where major components of the aircraft are inspected and fixed.

Maj. Joe Walter, 442nd Force Support Squadron commander, received his commission through the Deserving Airman Board. The board selects an enlisted Airman to attend Officer Training School and earn a commission. Several officers in the 442nd Fighter Wing have received a commission through the DAB. The 442nd Fighter Wing is an A-10 Thunderbolt II Air Force Reserve unit at Whiteman Air Force Base, Mo.

reviewing applicants' records and forms. Willeford said she thinks it can benefit many officers to be enlisted first.

"It gives them a better understanding of our job and mission," she said.

Willeford said she has seen three enlisted Airmen get commissioned through the program in the last year.

One of the officers in the 442nd Fighter Wing commissioned by a Deserving Airman Board was Capt. James Patrick Chevalier, 442nd Maintenance Group Executive Officer.

Chevalier enlisted in the Air Force Reserve 11 years ago, and said he wanted to be a leader and had his mind set on this opportunity to provide a balance of leadership along with technical know-how. After the board voted to approve his application, Chevalier was commissioned. He attended officer training school, subsequently serving in the 442nd

Equal Opportunity and Treatment Office, 442nd Military Personnel Flight and finally in the 442nd Maintenance Group.

Chevalier had some good advice for anyone seeking a commission.

"Talk to people who have done it," he said. "Maximize your involvement and get your hands into everything you can."

He said self-motivation and development are important characteristics for Airmen hoping to move up the ranks. Valuable goals for each Airman, and specifically officers, he said, include core values, willingness to continually learn and having goals and a vision are vital to reaching that goal.

Lt. Col. Roxane Williams, 442nd FW performance manager, who has served on Deserving Airman boards, agreed it is important to have a vision. She said that the board reviews records, such as letters of recommendation and school transcripts, submitted by the applicant.

"Beyond grades, what you have done with your schooling and how you have learned from your life experiences helps us make our decision."

Williams acknowledged that everyone makes mistakes, but she said, owning up to them is a valuable quality every leader should possess. She said officers need to be malleable, agile and resourceful.

"It all comes down to making it happen," she said.

Senior Airman Mike Addis, 442nd Communications Flight, stood before a Deserving Airman board this past spring. Addis said the reason he wants to transition from the enlisted ranks to the officer ranks is he likes being in a leadership role and using his experience to help others as he did as an element leader in basic military training. He also said that he saw more opportunities for his advancement in the officer ranks in the Reserve versus the enlisted ranks.

There are many options available for reservists to transition from the enlisted ranks to the officer ranks; Deserving Airman Commissioning is an option for qualified Airmen seeking to become the officers of the future. For Airmen who have the push to self-develop, and are malleable, agile and resourceful as Chevalier and Williams said, talk to your supervisor and see what it'll take to "make it happen."

"Team International" won the Combined Federal Campaign-Overseas 10K Relay Nov. 16 in Southwest Asia. The team finished in a time of 33:54, averaging just under 5:30 per mile. Team members included (left to right): Royal Air Force Cpl. David Adam, 901st Expeditionary Air Wing, a native of Dundee, Scotland; Royal Australian Air Force Flight Lt. Andrew Shearer, RAAF Detachment, a native of Wodonga, Victoria; 1st Lt. Ben Coffman, 379th Expeditionary Contracting Squadron, a native of Edwardsville, Kan., deployed from Whiteman Air Force Base, Mo.; and Tech. Sgt. Donnie Gray, 379th Expeditionary Communications Squadron, a native of Barbourville, Ky., deployed from Aviano Air Base, Italy.

By Master Sgt. Matt Summers
379th Air Expeditionary Wing Public Affairs

SOUTHWEST ASIA -- The Combined Federal Campaign-Overseas is literally sprinting to the finish in Southwest Asia.

Case in point: More than 100 people took part in a CFC-O-sponsored 10K Relay race Nov. 16 which raised $378 for the Family Support and Youth Programs here.

The event raised not only dollars, but the overall general awareness of the campaign which runs through today. The money donated at the race comes back to the wing commander to be used for morale purposes, according to Capt. Benjamin Crandall, 379th Air Expeditionary Wing CFC-O project officer.

"The run gave us a conduit to increase awareness, participation and excitement about the campaign - and it was fun," he said. "Participants really enjoyed the teamwork that a relay-style race allowed and they were excited to be out doing something fun to support the CFC."

The winning team finished in a time of 33:54, averaging just under 5:30 per mile. "Team International" was made up of: 1st Lt. Ben Coffman, 379th Expeditionary Contracting Squadron; Tech. Sgt. Donnie Gray, 379th Expeditionary Communications Squadron, a native of Barbourville, Ky., deployed from Aviano Air Base, Italy; Royal Air Force Cpl. David Adam, 901st Expeditionary Air Wing, a native of Dundee, Scotland; and Royal Australian Air Force Flight Lt. Andrew Shearer, RAAF Detachment, a native of Wodonga, Victoria.

Coffman said there were several reasons for taking part.

"A mix of the great incentives - who doesn't want a free massage [winner's prize], the camaraderie we could form as a four-man team, and knowing that we were supporting a great cause like the CFC combined to get us excited about the race," said the Edwardsville, Kan., native deployed from Whiteman Air Force Base, Mo. "Also, we wanted to win and we couldn't let Colonel Kennedy's [379th Air Expeditionary Wing vice commander] team come away with bragging rights."

To finish strong in the CFC-O, contributors can go to www.cfcoverseas.org to research charities and complete a paperless contribution via credit card, debit card or e-check. Donations can also be made via payroll allotment, cash or check on a paper Pledge Card, which are available through unit CFC-O key workers/representatives.

"There is still time to give to your favorite charities through the CFC," added Crandall.

Use of Official Mail Center

Official Mail -- Any items belonging to or exclusively pertaining to the business of the U.S. Government

Courtesy illustration

The Official Mail Center offers the following flow chart to guide Team Whiteman members to the proper protocol to mailing official government business here. For questions about what can be mailed, and how it should be prepared, contact the activity distribution officer within each squadron, or contact the Official Mail Center personnel at 660-687-5107.

Submission by Harold Eagleson
509th Communication Squadron Official Mail Manager

Did you know the Official Mail Center is the primary means of mailing official business at Whiteman AFB?

According to Air Force Manual 33-306 and the Department of Defense Manual 4525.8 (DoDM4525.8_AFMAN33-306), the OMC is responsible for metering, postage, consolidation, distribution, and tracking administrative communications and packages.

The Air Force Supplement 1 states that outgoing non-production mail shall be processed through the OMC unless the OMC is unable to provide service. Additionally, mail cannot be processed if the origination activity can demonstrate it is not cost-effective to do so and/or mail transit times will increase.

Official mail is any items belonging to or exclusively pertaining to the business of the U.S. Government and is required by the addressee to complete their government business.

Care packages are not official business.

Appropriated funds cannot be used for movement of issued or purchased personal gear in a TDY status. Personnel are required to maintain and carry their equipment with them.

The OMC uses the U.S. Postal Service exclusively for mailing:

□ If a package weighs more than 70 pounds, has a girth of over 108 inches (length, plus two times the width, plus two times the height -- in essence, measure around the package and add the length).

□ Or contains explosives or radioactive materials, the OMC will refer the customer to the Traffic Management Office.

For questions about what can be mailed, and how it should be prepared, contact the activity distribution officer within each squadron, or contact the Official Mail Center personnel at 660-687-5107. The OMC is located in building 410, the same building as Post Office and Military Clothing Sales and is open from 7:30 a.m. to 4:30 pm.

The Three Musketeers

Dec. 3, 7 p.m.

Logan Lerman, Milla Jovovich -- They are known as Porthos, Athos and Aramis—three elite warriors who serve the King of France as his best Musketeers. After discovering an evil conspiracy to overthrow the King, the Musketeers come across a young aspiring hero, D'Artagnan, and take him under their wing. The four embark on a dangerous mission to foil the plot that threatens the Crown and the future of Europe itself. PG-13 - sequences of adventure action violence. Genre: Romance, Action & Adventure. 110 minutes.

Footloose

Dec. 4, 3 p.m.

Kenny Wormald, Julianne Hough -- Craig Brewer's remake of the popular 1984 musical romance about a big city teen, Ren McCormack, who moves to a small town where rock 'n' roll and dancing have been banned. Uprooted from Boston and reluctantly transplanted to the small, Bible belt town of Bomont, his rebellious spirit shakes up the populace. Shortly before he arrived there, five local teens perished in a tragic car accident following a local dance. As a result, the upstanding Reverend Shaw Moore and the local councilmen passed a strict ordinance outlawing both dancing and excessively loud music. Convinced the new law is hopelessly misguided, Ren puts on his dancing shoes and wins the heart of Reverend Moore's distraught daughter Ariel in addition to show his fellow classmates that it's normal to blow off a little steam with loud music and good friends. PG-13 - some teen drug and alcohol use, sexual content, violence and language. Genre: Action, Comedy, Dance, Drama, Family, Music & Romance. 113 minutes.

Movie showings are featured at the Whiteman AFB Movie Theater.

Call the movie line at 660-687-5110 for more information. Cash or check only.

*Movies are $4.50 for adults and $2.25 (3-11 years). Doors open 30 minutes prior to show time.

*Movies and ticket prices are subject to change without notice.
