Commander's Corner

Team Whiteman,

Today is the Chiefs vs. Eagles softball game and brat burn beginning at 11 a.m., and tonight is the Performer's Party beginning at 7 p.m. to kickoff Wings Over Whiteman for us tomorrow and Sunday.

Up to this point, many individuals have worked hard and contributed long hours to make this year's air show a success; however, a piece of the overall success will depend on each of you. While you are having fun with family and friends, keep your eyes open for anything that could jeopardize the top priority -- safety.

We will have thousands of people on the flightline viewing the vintage aircraft, watching aerial demonstrations, listening to the Air Force Band "Shades of Blue," and enjoying many other scheduled events. We've got a great line up this year, but amidst the business, make sure you are on the lookout for anything that doesn't look quite right ... from an individual who might be in an area that isn't open to the public and isn't safe, to a young child who could be lost in the crowd and looking frantically for his/her parents, to an elderly patriot in need of some shade and a cool drink.

It is truly a team effort to maximize the fun by keeping safety at the forefront of your mind.

Remember, also, to keep hydrated as it warms up to the classic Missouri afternoon temperatures. The weather can change in an instant here, and although it is predicted to be nice, be ready for rain or shine!

I will see you out there today for the game and performer's party tonight, as well as this weekend for the big event -- Wings Over Whiteman 2012!

Defensor Vindex.

Vacation OPSEC: Protecting your family's critical information

By Ryan Finnegan
95th Air Base Wing,
OPSEC program manager

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. -- Vacation and permanent change of station time is quickly drawing upon us once again. As the weather warms up and children are getting ready to get out of school, many of us will be leaving the area, some for good.

With that being said, it is important to remember to practice good family Operational Security. While many of us associate OPSEC with protecting critical and sensitive military information, it is just as important you establish and safeguard your family's private and sensitive information.

Although there is no real family critical information list, the following are suggestions to think about what's important to your family: vacation dates, times, locations, someone to watch the house and where you'll be staying on vacation. This is key information that criminals need to take advantage of your possessions while you are away.

Protecting your family's information is easier than you think. There are a couple of quick and easy steps you can take that will make it hard for an adversary to obtain the information they need.

The first step is to decide who has a "need to know." Discuss the pertinent details of your trip with only those people. These could range from family members, closest friend, work supervisors and anyone who is watching your house for you while you are gone.

The second, and probably most important, is keep your travel plans off of social media sites such as Facebook, Google+ and Twitter. Although you may be excited to take a break, the entire world doesn't need to know about it. It is not difficult for a criminal to stumble across your post that you will be gone for two weeks; then when you "check-in" from the airport their clock starts ticking. Wait until you return to tell the world you had the most wonderful vacation and then post your pictures.

Lastly, remember you are on vacation and try to enjoy it. Leave your work at work. If you must work on a project, or take a work phone call, do so in private. Never work on a sensitive project in the open or where others can see what you are working on - you never know who is watching.

While checking into a hotel that requires you to show your Military Identification Card/Common Access Card, ensure it is not photocopied. You may present your ID for verification purposes, however, federal law prohibits photocopying of U.S. Government ID Cards. This is to preserve the integrity of these forms of identification.

Following these simple steps will allow you to protect the information that means the most to you and your family and will help you to have a more safe and enjoyable vacation.

The Whiteman AFB small arms range complex is located on the south end of the base at 747 12th St. The 40mm grenade range is located on the northeast side of the base adjacent to D Highway. Both ranges are surrounded by a perimeter fence with warning signs. During firing, a red flag or rotating red beacon will be present to signify firing is in progress. In addition, access roads to the 40mm range will be closed during firing. It is not only illegal to enter the range complex, but highly dangerous due to weapons fire. Those who need access to either of these areas can contact the 509th Security Forces Squadron Combat Arms section at 660-687-5122 during duty hours. After duty hours, contact the police services desk 660-687-3700.

American Red Cross Volunteer Opportunity at Whiteman AFB

The American Red Cross has multiple volunteer opportunities at the 509th Medical Group. Anyone interested in volunteering should first contact the Medical Group's volunteer coordinators in the Resource Management office, room 1130, or call 660-687-6782. # The 'Getting Back Up' Tour

Kurt Yeager, BMX rider and actor, and Erin Simmons Nemeč, X Games silver medalist and Olympic athlete, visited Team Whiteman with the Air Force Global Strike Command "Never Quit" series May 11. Yeager and Nemeč visited with Airmen at their duty stations to discuss resiliency. Yeager and Nemeč took part in judging a barbecue contest and Yeager gave a BMX bike demonstration at the skate park.

By Airman 1st Class Bryan Crane
509th Bomb Wing Public Affairs

American300 returned here May 11 for the third time after bringing Team Whiteman the resilient stories of Tom Whitaker, Dan Beery and Sean Colgan.

This time accompanying American300 founder, Robi Powers, on the Air Force Global Strike Command "Never Quit" series was Erin Simmons Nemeč and Kurt Yeager. Nemeč is a three-time X Games silver medalist and 2006 Olympics participant in Snowboard Cross. Yeager was an X Games Bicycle Motocross rider before a motorcycle accident left him as a leg amputee. He is currently the number one adaptive BMXer.

Nemeč became the first female to appear with the AFGSC "Never Quit" series. After winning three X Games silver medals, Nemeč joined the Canadian Olympic Team for the 2006 Olympic Games in Torino, Italy. In what was supposed to be the highlight of her career, Nemeč felt her team turned their backs on her.

"They never tried picking me up when I was down or congratulating me when I was doing well, they never had my back," Nemeč said. "It wrecked me mentally and emotionally, I was never able to bounce back during the Winter Games."

Nemeč failed to qualify for the finals of Snowboard Cross, thus ending her Olympic dream in 2006.

"Coming to Whiteman gives me a chance to tell my story, as well as hearing the Airmen's stories," Nemeč said. "I hope we can all take a piece from our experiences home and use it as future advice."

Yeager led a different path to Whiteman AFB. Yeager fell in love with BMX riding when he was young. He pursued his passion and garnered numerous sponsorships, to include Etnies.

Eventually, injuries started to take their toll and he decided to go back to college to pursue a master's degree in hydrogeology. While attending school, he was in a motorcycle accident which permanently altered the course of his life.

His left leg was amputated; his right anterior cruciate ligament and medial collateral ligament were torn, which are two of the four major ligaments of the human knee. His pelvis was torn in half along with his bladder, seven vertebrae were broken, his lungs collapsed, his ribs broken and he suffered a severe concussion.

"I was at an all-time low and in complete pain," Yeager said. "I didn't want to take it anymore. If it wasn't for my family and friends picking me up and supporting me I wouldn't be here today."

Yeager has made a full recovery and continues his BMX riding.

"I'm talking about riding kids bikes," Yeager added. "But what these Airmen do is real, they are true heroes. I hope they can take something from me and help anyone who is down because they can really save a life."

The "Never Quit" series continues to bring stories of resilient people throughout the year to all the AFGSC bases.

'Wingman Day' helps foster resiliency

By Lt. Col. Jeffrey Schreiner
509th Bomb Wing Safety Chief

Whiteman AFB is hosting the spring Wingman Day and Critical Days of Summer kickoff Thursday. This all-day event is designed to provide Airmen with the opportunity to choose briefings that interest them or meet their needs.

Gen. Philip Breedlove, Air Force vice chief of staff, has set the tone for the Whiteman Wingman Day schedule. The expectation is that units will participate in the all-day events, twice a year.

Throughout the day Airmen can choose to attend briefing topics that include: financial management, stress management, parenting for young children, couples communication, and an interactive seminar on alcohol awareness and myths.

Both officer and enlisted will have the opportunity to sit down in a town-hall style meeting with senior mentors to discuss career progression and voice issues and concerns from across the base.

Previous Whiteman Wingman days have utilized guest speakers and small group breakouts to help get the message of resiliency across. The upcoming event takes a new spin and allows Airmen to choose from a menu of interactive briefings instead of using a one size fits all approach.

Team Whiteman is strongly encouraged to take advantage of the briefings. Seats will be limited in some venues so arrive early and try again later in the day if the rooms fill up. In honor of Memorial Day, the entire wing will participate in a retreat ceremony at 4:30 p.m. Thursday, which will include a missing-man formation if weather permits.

Schedule of Events:

7 a.m. -- Free Zone opens to Hangar T-9 for kickoff event

U.S. Air Force Fact Sheet: Whiteman Air Force Base

In The Heartland

Located two miles south of Knob Noster, Mo., off U.S. Highway 50, Whiteman AFB's name and roots stem from World War II.

During the U.S.' mobilization following the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor in 1941, Whiteman AFB was activated Aug. 6, 1942, as Sedalia Glider Base.

In November 1942, the installation became Sedalia Army Air Field and was assigned to the 12th Troop Carrier Command of the Army Air Force. The field served as a training site for glider tactics and paratroopers.

Assigned aircraft included the Douglas C-46s, C-47s and the Waco CG-4A Glider. Following the end of the war in 1945, the base closed and many of the buildings were abandoned.

In August 1951, however, the base returned to life again and became a part of Strategic Air Command. SAC activated the 4224th Air Base Squadron to supervise the rehabilitation and construction of a new base, Sedalia Air Force Base.

The 4224th continued its activities until Oct. 20, 1952, when it inactivated while turning over the base to the 340th Bombardment Wing. SAC scheduled the 340th to receive the command's newest aircraft systems, the B-47 Stratojet and KC-97 Tanker. Construction workers soon completed runway repairs and other projects in November 1953, paving the way for the arrival of the first B-47 in March 1954.

2nd Lt. George A. Whiteman is the namesake for Whiteman AFB

Whiteman AFB is named in honor of 2nd Lt. George A. Whiteman, Air Corp, U. S. Army, who lost his life Dec. 7, 1941, while he was attempting to take off to defend Bellows Air Field, Oahu, Hawaii, during the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor

George A. Whiteman, the eldest of ten children of John and Earlie Whiteman, was born Oct. 12, 1919, at the Wilkerson farm near Longwood, Mo., in Pettis County. He graduated from Smith-Cotton High School in Sedalia and attended the Rolla School of Mines in Rolla, Mo., prior to enlisting in the service in 1939.

In the spring of 1940, Whiteman received orders to report to Randolph Field, Texas, for training as an aviator. He was commissioned as a second lieutenant in the Army Air Corps Nov. 15, 1940, and volunteered for duty in Hawaii early the following year.

As the sun rose over Oahu on the morning of Dec. 7, 1941, the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor began. Lt. Whiteman got to his P-40B aircraft at Bellows Field and had just lifted off the runway when a burst of enemy gunfire hit his cockpit, wounding him and throwing the plane out of control. The plane crashed and burned just off the end of the runway.

The news of Lt. Whiteman's death reached his family at 10:13 p.m. Dec. 7, 1941. In an interview with the Sedalia Democrat that evening, his mother, Earlie Whiteman, said: "It's hard to believe. It might have happened anytime, anywhere. We've got to sacrifice loved ones if we want to win this war." She gave the reporter a photograph of her son sitting in an aircraft with the inscription "Lucky, lucky me."

Lt. Whiteman is believed to be one of the first Airmen killed during the assault which marked the United States' entry into World War II. For his gallantry that day, he was posthumously awarded the Silver Star, the Purple Heart, the American Defense Medal with a Foreign Service clasp, the American Campaign Medal, the Asiatic-Pacific Campaign Medal with one bronze star, and the World War II Victory Medal.

Another honor was bestowed on Lt. Whiteman 14 years after his death. Gen. Nathan F. Twining, Air Force Chief of Staff, informed Mrs. Whiteman Aug. 24, 1955, that the recently reopened Sedalia Air Force Base would be renamed Whiteman AFB in tribute to her son. The dedication and renaming ceremony took place Dec. 3, 1955.

Whiteman History

Construction on Whiteman continued throughout the 1950s. During this period, the Air Force built military family housing units as well as a base pool and fitness center. However, a project on a much grander scale soon overshadowed this flurry of construction.

In June 1961, the Department of Defense chose Whiteman AFB to host the fourth Minuteman Intercontinental Ballistic Missile Wing. On Jan. 17, 1962, the firm of Morrison, Hardeman, Perrini and Level received the prime contract for construction of hardened, underground launch facilities and 15 launch control centers. The project called for the excavation of 867,000 cubic yards of earth and rock.

The contractors used 168,000 yards of concrete, 25,355 tons of reinforcing steel and 15,120 tons of structural steel. Additionally, the project called for the installation of a vast underground intersite cable network. If laid end to end in a straight line, this cable would stretch from Whiteman AFB to 100 miles beyond Los Angeles, Calif. Construction of the complex was officially completed in June 1964.

Before completion of the construction, SAC activated the 351st Strategic Missile Wing at Whiteman AFB Feb. 1, 1963. The 340th BMW gradually phased out operations during the same year with its remnants transferring to Bergstrom Air Force Base, Texas, Sept. 1, 1963.

After the mission change in 1963, life at Whiteman AFB remained relatively stable throughout the 1960s and 1970s. Still, there were programs to continually update and improve the base's weapons systems.

Whiteman AFB initially employed the Minuteman I weapons system until the mid-1960s when a force modernization program converted the Minuteman I to the Minuteman II. Throughout the ICBM's tenure at Whiteman AFB, it went through a variety of modifications to keep it at the forefront of America's defense.

Several new buildings emerged from time to time as the base matured. However, with the beginning of the 1980s, a new construction phase started. New missile operations, maintenance and security police facilities as well as several enlisted dormitories marked the start of a new era.

Meanwhile, the base continued to lead the way. In the late 1980s, the 351st fielded the first female Minuteman missile crew, the first male and female Minuteman crew, and the first squadron commander to pull alert in the Minuteman system. Under the provisions of the Strategic Arms Reduction Treaty, the Minuteman II system began inactivation.

Then came an announcement that would change Whiteman AFB forever. On Jan. 5, 1987, former Congressman Ike Skelton revealed that the first deployment of the B-2 Advanced Technology Bomber would be at Whiteman AFB. Beginning in 1988, a massive construction wave that created new buildings designed for B-2 operations, maintenance and support activities swept throughout the base.

509th Bomb Wing B-2 Spirit

On July 1, 1990, the 100th Air Division activated at Whiteman AFB and assumed host responsibilities for the base. Accordingly, the 351st Combat Support Group and the 351st Security Police Group, along with their assigned units and the squadrons under the deputy commander for resource management, inactivated at Whiteman AFB. Concurrently, the Air Force activated equivalent squadrons bearing the 800th designator to replace the inactivated 351st units.

Several months after the air division's activation, Sept. 30, 1990, the 509th Bomb Wing moved its headquarters to Whiteman AFB in an unmanned and non-operational state.

However, the 100th AD's tenure at Whiteman AFB did not last long as SAC inactivated the unit on July 26, 1991. Similarly, Whiteman AFB's host unit responsibilities reverted to the 351st.

During the next two years, Whiteman AFB's building infrastructure continued to grow as the arrival date of the first B-2 drew nearer. Meanwhile, another change developed in the Air Force.

With the end of the Cold War, the Air Force disestablished Strategic Air Command, Tactical Air Command and Military Air Command June 1, 1992. In their place arose two new organizations, one of which was Air Combat Command, the 509th's newer, higher headquarters.

On April 1, 1993, the 509th returned to operational status when people from Detachment 509, the base's B-2 overseers for the past two years, were formally assigned to the wing. On July 1, 1993, the 509th accepted the host responsibilities for Whiteman AFB from the 351st and a new era dawned for the base. Several days later on July 20, 1993, flying operations returned to the base after a 30-year hiatus when the first permanently assigned T-38 Talon landed at Whiteman AFB.

On Dec. 17, 1993, the event that Whiteman AFB had long awaited finally arrived. On that day, at approximately 2 p.m., a dark jet bomber swooped from the sky and landed on the Whiteman AFB runway. Amid much fanfare, the first operational B-2, the Spirit of Missouri, had arrived. Less than a week later on Dec. 22, 1993, Whiteman AFB again made history as it generated the first B-2 sortie from the base.

442nd Fighter Wing A-10 Thunderbolt

On June 12, 1994, the base welcomed the 442nd Fighter Wing. The 442nd, an Air Force reserve unit previously assigned to Richards-Gebaur AFB, Mo., transferred to Whiteman AFB after the closure of that installation.

Yet, the 442nd was not really a newcomer to the base. On Sept. 1, 1943, the then-called 442nd Troop Carrier Group activated at Sedalia Army Air Field. It subsequently remained at the base until December 1943.

In 1995 the base also lost one of its long-time resident units. On July 31, 1995, the 351st Strategic Missile Wing officially inactivated, ending its 33-year association with Whiteman AFB.

In 2009, the 131st Fighter Wing, a Missouri Air National Guard Unit stationed at Lambert-St. Louis International Airport, began transferring personnel to Whiteman AFB to become the 131st Bomb Wing, the only Air Guard unit to fly the B-2 Spirit. The 131st BW brought its own ground and flight crews making Whiteman truly a Total Force Base.

Whiteman AFB is also home to the Army National Guard 1-135th Attack Battalion and the Navy Reserve Maritime Expeditionary Security Division 13.

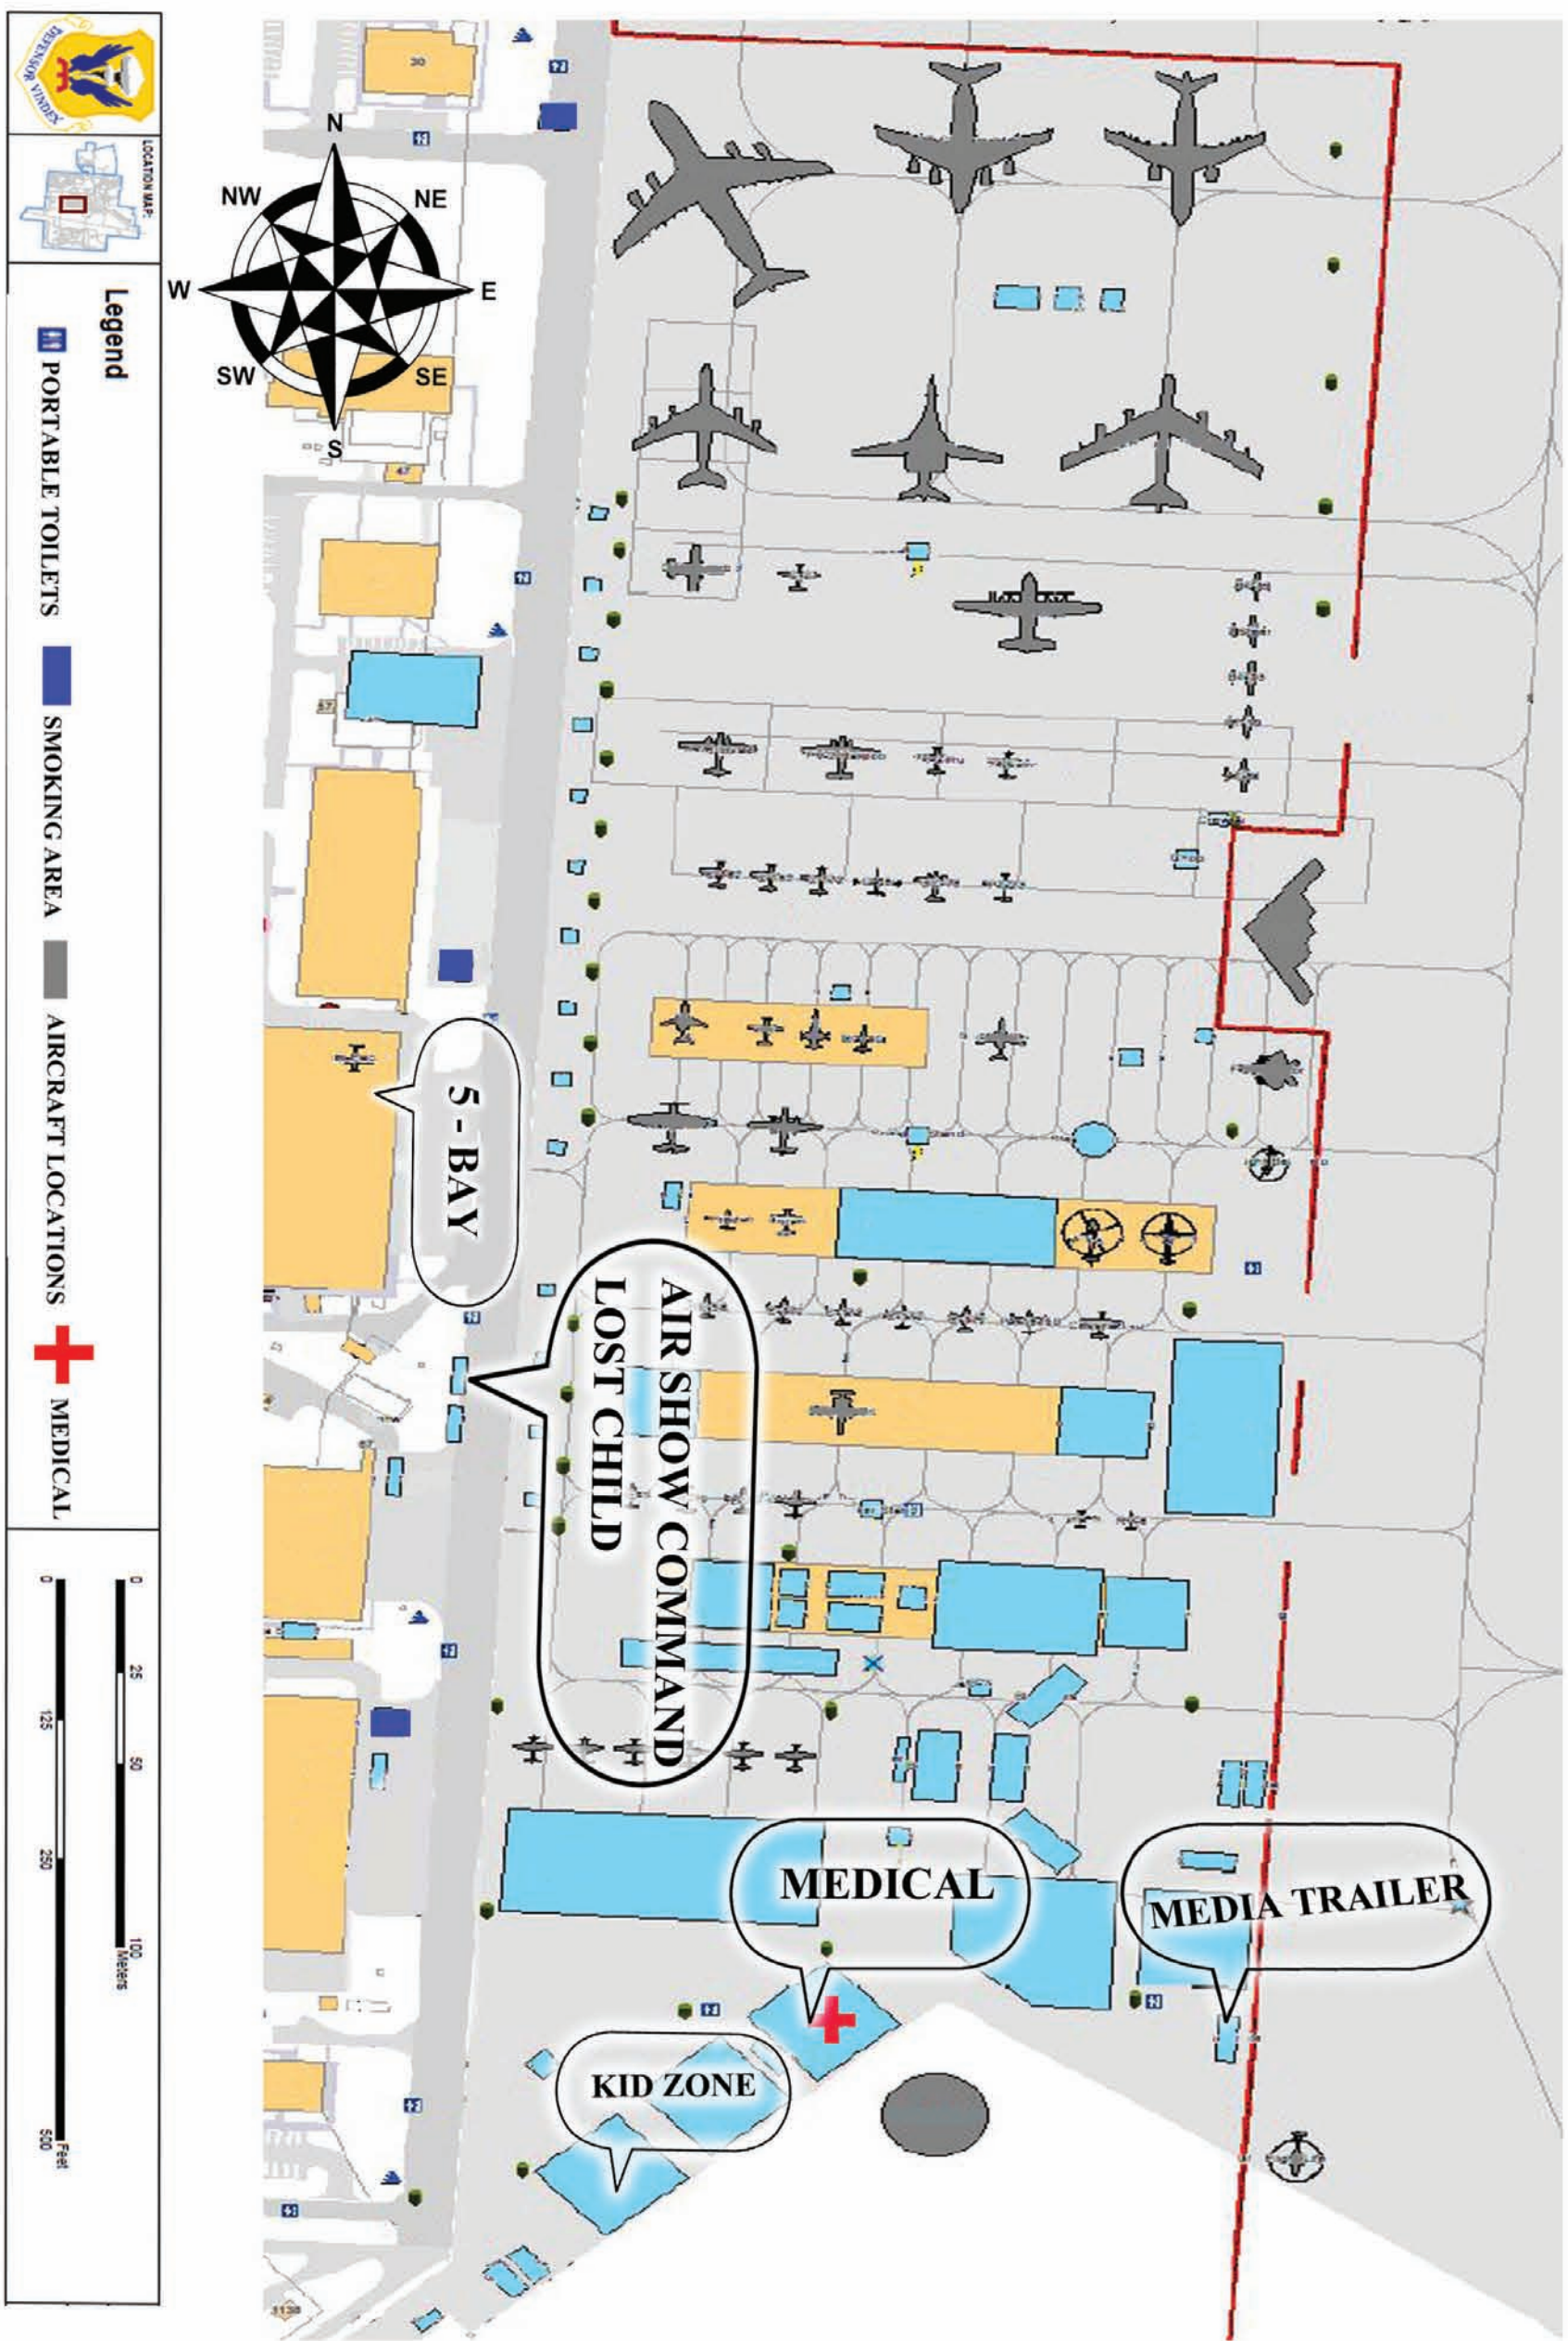

U.S. Air Force photo/Staff Sgt. Alexandra M. Boutte
1-135th Attack Reconnaissance Battalion AH-64D Apache Longbow helicopters

On Feb. 1, 2010, Whiteman AFB was assigned to the Air Force's newest Major Command, Air Force Global Strike Command.

Throughout its history, the base has always been at the forefront of national defense. With the arrival of the first B-2 and the subsequent assignment of others, the future for the installation does, indeed, look bright for many years to come.

READ ALL RULES BEFORE PLACING AN AD

- Advertising is free to all active-duty, guard and reserve military members and civil servants who work on base or at the MoARNG in Warrensburg only. Military or civil service rank must be included in the space for "rank." We do offer free advertising to retired military members.
- Ads of a commercial nature such as baby-sitting, lawn maintenance, house cleaning, product sales, apartments or houses for rent, work-at-home opportunities or any other service in which the person makes a profit must be prepaid. Paid ads must be placed directly through the Sedalia Democrat at 1-800-892-7856, dropped off at 700 S. Massachusetts Ave., Sedalia, Mo., 65301 or e-mailed to theclassifieds@sedaliademocrat.com. They accept VISA, MasterCard, cash, personal check or money order.
- Free ads are for one-time sale of personal items only. Free ads can't be placed for churches, groups, clubs, organizations or friends not affiliated with the military. Each item must be sold for $150 or less.
- Only one free ad*, maximum 30 words, will be allowed to run at any given time by the same household, for a maximum of eight weeks. Ads over the 30-word maximum will be edited at the publisher's discretion. *People who are PCSing may place more than one ad and sell the items at any price.

- Include your home phone in the ad so people can contact you. USE OF DUTY PHONES IN ADS IS AGAINST AIR FORCE REGULATIONS.
- Print legibly, and place punctuation and spaces where necessary. Use only one word per line.
- Free ads aren't taken over the phone. They must be dropped off at or mailed to the 509th Bomb Wing Public Affairs Office, 1081 Arnold Ave Blvd, Bldg 59, Whiteman AFB, Mo., 65305. Ads may also be faxed to 660-687-7948.
- Many offices on base are using old forms**. If you would like a copy of the new ad form to keep in your office, call 687-6123 and we'll fax a new form for your use. Or, you can download it at <http://www.whiteman.af.mil> and click on "Whiteman Warrior Classified Ad Form."
- Homes for sale that are listed with a realtor must be paid for. Only people who are PCSing and selling homes FSBO (for sale by owner) qualify as a free ad.
- Free yard sale ads are for active-duty, guard, reserve and retired military members living on or off base. People who live on base must have their yard sale approved by the housing office first.
- The deadline for placing new ads, canceling or making changes to ads is 10 a.m. Friday, one week before desired publication.
- Ads that don't meet these guidelines will not run. Free advertising is a privilege extended to you by the publisher, and your cooperation is greatly appreciated. Submissions do not guarantee publication. Publication is on a space available basis.
