Welsh 'humbled' to serve as Air Force chief of staff

Secretary of the Air Force Michael Donley swears in Gen. Mark A. Welsh III as the 20th Air Force chief of staff, assisted by Welsh's wife, Betty, during a ceremony at Joint Base Andrews, Md., Aug. 10, 2012.

By Tech. Sgt. Shawn J. Jones
Air Force Public Affairs Agency

JOINT BASE ANDREWS, Md. -- The Air Force chief of staff flag passed to the service's 20th chief in a ceremony here Aug. 10.

Gen. Mark A. Welsh III, a 36-year Airman, stepped into the position, taking over for Gen. Norton Schwartz, who also retired from the Air Force during the ceremony.

"Mark is respected throughout the Air Force for his exceptional leadership and ability to connect with Airmen," Secretary of the Air Force Michael Donley said.

Raised in an Air Force family, Welsh said he found a role model in his father, a decorated combat pilot.

"Today, I think he'd be proud of me," Welsh said. "And any day a kid can make his dad proud is a great day."

Welsh emphasized the need for Airmen to understand the importance of the other services in joint operations, but also said Airmen shouldn't underestimate the combat capabilities of their own service in winning today's fight.

"No one else can bring what we bring to the fight, and any real warfighter knows that," he said. "Don't ever doubt yourself or this service."

Welsh also addressed his stance on issues affecting the well-being of Airmen.

"When it comes to Airman resiliency, suicide prevention, and sexual assault prevention and response, I believe you're either part of the solution or you're part of the problem," he said. "There is no middle ground."

Welsh also said the Air Force must shape the future and that will require innovative thinking and different approaches to problems, along with modernization.

Welsh was nominated by the president May 10 and confirmed by the Senate on Aug. 2.

In his previous position as the commander of U. S. Air Forces in Europe, he was in charge of Air Force activities in an area of operations covering nearly one-fifth of the globe.

Welsh, a 1976 graduate of the Air Force Academy, has served in numerous operational, command and staff positions, such as commandant of cadets at the U.S. Air Force Academy, vice commander of Air Education and Training Command and associate director for military affairs at the Central Intelligence Agency.

"When I became a squadron commander, I felt excited. When I became a wing commander, I felt proud. When I became a major command commander, I felt privileged and a little bit old," he said. "Today when I was sworn in as chief of staff of the Air Force, I felt humbled to be given the honor of leading its incredible Airmen."

His experience includes nearly 3,300 flying hours, most of which came in the A-10 Thunderbolt II and F-16 Fighting Falcon.

As the ceremony ushered in a new chapter in Air Force history, it also served as the final chapter for Schwartz's four years as the service's senior uniformed leader and his more than 39 years of military service.

Schwartz's career began in 1973 after graduating from the Air Force Academy. He has logged more than 4,400 flying hours and participated in military operations in Vietnam, Iraq and Cambodia.

"Anyone looking for an example of Air Force core values need look no further than Gen. Norty Schwartz," Donley said. "Thank you for your lasting contribution to our Air Force and the character and quality of your service."

Defense Secretary Leon Panetta presented Schwartz with the Defense Distinguished Service Medal, which is awarded to service members who perform exceptionally meritorious service in a position of great responsibility.

The award citation highlighted his success in restoring excellence in the Air Force nuclear mission, his efforts to partner with joint and coalition teammates in support of operations worldwide, modernizing the Air Force's air and space inventories, and care for Airmen and families. Schwartz's wife Suzie was also recognized for her devotion to Airmen and family support programs.

"The Air Force has afforded us an honorable and rewarding journey for the entirety of our adult lives," Schwartz said.

New TFIs help maximize AF resources

Commentary By Chief Master Sgt. James Nudd
442nd Fighter Wing Command Chief

Another “first” Total Force Initiative strikes Whiteman AFB again!

Most of you are already familiar with working with someone from a Reserve component – probably a guardsman with the 131st Bomb Wing, in fact. But now, active-duty members will be working more closely with reservists also, but this time, as an active-duty associate detachment.

The shrinking Department of Defense budgets and the reduction of the number of fighter aircraft in the Air Force fleet are driving new “active” associates units with Reserve and National Guard units.

These new TFIs helps maximize our existing aircraft inventories and manpower, while at the same time, ensures the Air Force can project the needed combat airpower when called upon by combatant commanders.

The 442nd Fighter Wing is the recipient of the Air Force Reserve’s first ever active-associate fighter wing. What does this mean for you? Active-duty Airmen who PCS to Whiteman, can now be assigned to the 442nd Fighter Wing.

Unlike a classic associate (like the 131st who works alongside the 509th to accomplish its AF Global Strike Command mission,) the incoming detachment of active-duty members will work with reservists to accomplish the Air Force Reserve Command-assigned mission.

This new association will be the first of several hitting the Air Force Reserve in the coming years and will soon be considered the norm for Air Force flying wings.

Although news about this association has been out on the street for a while now, and many have forgotten about the upcoming TFI, the dust was quickly blown off the story recently when the first wave of active-duty Airmen started arriving at Whiteman AFB and into the 442nd FW. Active-duty members around the world have begun receiving orders here to work with the fighter wing.

The world, and life, as this Reserve unit knew it, has officially changed, remarked one Airman. This association will bring in a combination of maintainers, pilots and support personnel who will blend in with the existing 442nd Fighter Wing’s squadrons and flights infrastructure. The detachment will be administratively controlled as detachment II of the 23rd Fighter Wing out of Moody AFB, Ga. This detachment recently received their new commander, Lt. Col. Joshua Ruddell, and first sergeant, Master Sgt. Cristofer Valenzuela, who hit the ground running and quickly began working to prepare their new unit for this inaugural mission.

The Air Force’s primary intent with this TFI is to tap into the Reserve’s years of expertise, politically correct way of saying seasoned workforce, and combat experience. Many of these new Airmen coming to the 442nd will be “pipeline” Airmen who will benefit from reservists, many of which have more than 15 years experience with the A-10. Additionally, active-duty pilots will have the opportunity to fly and train with veteran combat pilots with thousands of logged hours in the warthog. Of course this isn’t a one-sided story where only the active-duty benefits; the Reserve will gain in the form of the number of full-time workers present during the week.

The additional full-time manpower that the active-duty will bring to the table will help with providing the maintenance and support that sometimes overwhelms the skeleton AFRC workforce.

So if you ever thought it was difficult to tell the difference between the active-duty, guardsmen and reservists, it just got even harder!

CSAF Letter to Airmen

To the Airmen of the United States Air Force

Earlier today, I was sworn in as the 20th Chief of Staff of our Air Force. It was a pretty humbling experience. Since I haven’t met most of you, I thought my first move as CSAF should be to say hi. You’ll probably get tired of hearing me say that “every Airman has a story,” but it’s true, and I’m no different.

My story starts with family. My dad, who was the greatest patriot, officer, and leader I’ve ever known, taught me that no rank or title would ever be as important as the unit patch I wore. Today, I wear the Air Force patch, and my family has grown to 690,000 active, Guard, Reserve, and civilian Airmen, all serving as part of an unbeatable Joint team.

YOU are what makes our Air Force the best the world has ever known!

Thank you for your service, your sacrifice, your dedication and commitment. Most of all, thank you for the privilege of serving beside you and your families. Betty and I are so honored to represent you and will do everything in our power to do it in a way that makes you proud.

From Tooeey Spaatz’s drive and vision in 1947, to General Norty Schwartz’s steady hand and thoughtful leadership over the past four years, our Air Force has benefited from strong Chiefs of Staff throughout its rich heritage. I wish I could tell you I bring the same IQ and talent level to the job as they did, but that would be a stretch. So I just promise you I’ll do my very best, every day, every task...just like you do.

You need to know that I care about each of you, your mission, your training, your equipment, your professional development, your career, and your family. My job is to prove it to you.

I’ll get back to you after I’ve had a chance to sit down with Secretary Donley and benefit from his wise counsel. I’ll let you know what my focus areas will be and where I think we’re headed. In the meantime, you take care of the “Fly, Fight, and Win” part...and I’ll ensure that “Integrity, Service, and Excellence” aren’t just buzz words I use in speeches.

509th MXG competing for 2012 CSTE A

By Candy Knight

509th Bomb Wing Public Affairs

The 509th Maintenance Group's B-2 Window Change Continuous Process Improvement Team was recently selected as finalist for the 2012 Chief of Staff Team Excellence Award.

The award recognizes outstanding team performance and shares best practices within the Air Force. It promotes a systematic approach for enhancing mission capability, improving operational performance, and achieving sustained results while maximizing efficiency.

"This is phenomenal," said Michael 'Bo' Baumeister, 509th MXG Air Force Engineering and Technical Services technician. "Truly phenomenal."

To be eligible for the award, teams must have completed a performance improvement within the last two years. Since September 2010, this Total Force Integration team worked to streamline and enhance the window-change process, reducing the time from 40 days down to 27 days, with the potential of greater savings.

"When the B-2 is down, it is not viable for the mission," Bo said. "The whole purpose of this B-2 Window Change Continuous Process Improvement Team was to minimize downtime and put the aircraft back in to flight."

The 16-person team accomplished this by using AFSO21 and LEAN principles, eliminating workforce expenditures through quality control optimization and eradicating redundant tasks. The team even acquired a full-scale mock-up of the B-2 window so they can get more on-the-job training.

"Before, we couldn't train on window changing unless we had a window to change, which meant that an aircraft wasn't mission-ready or available to combatant commanders," said Senior Master

Staff Sgt. Kennrik Nelson, (center), 131st Aircraft Maintenance Squadron, melts a B-2 Spirit training windshield to clear a freshly sanded spot. Before the heating, the spot was sanded to remove scratches and scuffs starting a process to make the windshield clear again. The new process was thought out by an integrated team of Airmen and civilians here from the 509th and 131st Maintenance Group. The team was recently selected as a finalist for the 2012 Chief of Staff Team Excellence Award.

Sgt. Gregory Bicknell, 13th Aircraft Maintenance Unit's aircraft section superintendent. "The mock-up enables off-aircraft training scenarios, which in turn enables better real-world training results."

Bicknell added that having a 10-year AFETS guru in Bo training the team didn't hurt either.

Although grateful for the recognition, the team remains humbled by it, maintaining that they are "just doing their jobs."

"Personally, it is an honor and privilege, and I'm happy my team was recognized for their dedication and work ethic, but we're also pretty modest about it too," said Staff Sgt. Kennrik Nelson, team member from the 131st Aircraft Maintenance Squadron. "The fact that we get to brag to the Chief of Staff of the Air Force about our process, work ethic, and dedication is a pretty big deal, but at the end of the day, this is our job, and we'll keep doing it the best we can."

"This team built itself," Bicknell said. "In this job perfection is the only option. It makes me proud to work with individuals that stepped up and developed innovative ways of doing the job better. The attitudes displayed throughout the process showed that they are the right people for the job."

During an impromptu gathering to discuss the next day's schedule, Bo encouraged the team to be excited and happy about the recognition.

"You're being recognized by senior Air Force leaders," he told the team. "You took a process that wasn't up-to-par, used creativity to make it better, saved the Air Force money, and now the individuals coming up behind you are getting better training and are becoming more efficient at their jobs. That's what this is all about - making it better for those who follow us."

Have you heard of the 'Deadly Quartet?'

Courtesy of the TriWest Healthcare Alliance

You may have heard of musical quartets like the Beatles, R.E.M., or The Four Tops. But did you know that one particular quartet can be harmful to your health?

Known as the "four chronic conditions," or the Deadly Quartet, when this group of health issues comes together, the last thing you'll hear is music.

The first member of the Deadly Quartet is hypertension, better known as high blood pressure. If left untreated, high blood pressure can cause a stroke or heart disease. Strokes may lead to many other problems, including paralysis.

Heart disease is the number one killer of men and women in the U.S. High blood pressure often has no symptoms and should be checked yearly at your routine doctor visits.

The second member is high cholesterol. This condition, which may not trigger symptoms right away, increases "plaque" buildup in your arteries, especially in the heart. This buildup can cause a heart attack, and is also a major risk factor for heart disease. You can learn what your cholesterol numbers are through a simple blood test.

Next up is obesity. This bad boy will sneak up on you, tricking your mind into thinking your clothes are shrinking. However, a combination of unhealthy eating habits and lack of exercise are usually the real causes. Obesity strains your heart, joints and bones, and can cause other diseases common in adults, such as diabetes.

Obesity has become very widespread in children, too. According to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, obesity now affects 17 percent of all U.S. youth and teenagers.

In addition, childhood obesity often carries into adulthood, causing high blood pressure, arthritis, sleep apnea and low self-esteem, among other problems.

The last member in the Deadly Quartet is diabetes, a major result of obesity. Diabetes is a disorder that causes your body to produce an inadequate amount of insulin.

It can also affect your heart and blood vessels, causing a decrease in blood flow and eventually the loss of a lower extremity ... even your eyesight.

Here's the good news: some simple lifestyle changes could help prevent, and even reverse, any of these conditions. Some changes to consider:

- * Eating more fruits and vegetables.
- * Consuming smaller portions. For example, a single serving of meat is about the size of your palm.
- * Eating more lean meats, such as chicken and fish
- * Increasing regular physical activity. Just 30 minutes of walking a day, four or five days per week, can make a huge difference.

Whiteman newcomers off to a 'right start'

Senior Airman Brett Berry, 509th Bomb Wing civil law paralegal, addresses Right Start newcomers about the different services they provide. Right Start attendees receive briefings from several agencies on- and off base to help get them acclimated with base policy and familiar with the surrounding area.

By Heidi Hunt
509th Bomb Wing Public Affairs

Relocating to a new base can be overwhelming and a tedious process for Airmen, civilians and their families.

In an effort to help members with a smooth transition, Whiteman's Airman & Family Readiness Center, and the 509th FSS military personnel section, work together to support newcomers get off to a "Right Start" here.

Right Start is the wing commander's welcoming program to Whiteman AFB and is held every other Tuesday.

All incoming service members are required to attend within 30-days of in-processing the base, according to the Air Force Instruction 36-2103.

"The purpose is to help make the transition from their last base comfortable and easy," said Tech. Sgt. Laura Burton, 509th Force Support Squadron NCO in charge of the base INTRO program.

"The benefit for newcomers is that their briefings are in one central location instead of them driving all around the base," Burton said.

During Right Start, the wing commander and command chief welcome newcomers, and a comprehensive briefing is given about Whiteman's mission and heritage.

Also discussed are items of interest and base policies.

Goals also include helping newcomers get acclimated to the base, the local area and get them familiar with what the surrounding region has to offer, according to Sandi Williams, 509th FSS community readiness consultant.

"Representatives from the education center, local colleges, the base housing office, air force sergeant's association, the Warrensburg and Sedalia chamber of commerce and local banks are there to answer questions," Williams said. "Individuals are provided with all the information they could possibly want."

Following the briefings, newcomers are introduced to an information fair where agencies from both on-base and off-base provide material about the local area.

After the information fair, additional briefers are introduced from the following offices: safety, health, substance abuse, equal opportunity, sexual assault response coordinators, security forces, voting representative, civilian engineer fire prevention, inspector general, civil engineer preparedness and readiness, public affairs, legal office, finance transportation and the chapel.

"We aim to give newcomers the most pleasant and informative experience possible," Williams said.

Master Sgt. Brentt Johnson, 509th Munitions Squadron NCO in charge of line delivery, said the benefit was two-fold.

"We received valuable information about the local area and completed mandatory briefings all in one place," said Johnson.

Right Start briefings are held at Mission's End from 7:30-11:30 a.m., and newcomers are strongly encouraged to bring their spouse.

According to Burton, newcomers will receive a one day liberty pass for bringing their spouse.

Tops in Blue captivates Whiteman

WARRENSBURG, Mo. -- Receiving a standing ovation, Tops In Blue end their show in uniform at the University of Central Missouri Aug. 9. The two hour concert was targeted for Whiteman Air Force Base service members and their families, but fans from the local communities were welcome also. Tops In Blue travel throughout the United States and to more than 20 countries during their 10-month tour each year.

Senior Airman Cody H. Ramirez

The Air Force's premier entertainment ensemble, Tops in Blue, performed a free concert to a packed house of Whiteman Air Force Base community members and local fans at the University of Central Missouri, Aug. 9.

Col. Robert Spalding, the 509th Bomb Wing vice-commander, hosted the event, opening the show by thanking the local sponsors and the Tops in Blue for supporting the Whiteman community with entertainment for the night.

"I thought it was a great way for the Air Force to show its appreciation to the local community for all of their outstanding support," Spalding said. "In addition, all the Whiteman folks I spoke to loved the show."

Tops in Blue's primary mission is to perform for military personnel and their families throughout the world. For the past 59 years, these performers have promoted community relations, recruiting and served as ambassadors for the U.S. Air Force as they travel through 20 countries in a 10-month period performing approximately 130 shows.

The group is composed of 35 to 40 of the most talented vocalists, musicians, dancers and technicians in the Air Force. These Airmen, who come from a variety of career fields, always strive to put on a high-energy show. And according to one spectator, they pulled off what they strive for Aug. 9.

"It was a great show!" said Robert Kyser, a civilian employee with the 509th Logistics Readiness Squadron and a fan from Whiteman who has been to a decade worth of Tops in Blue performances. "It was the best performance I have seen in the past 10 years! The current music helped make the show really entertaining."

"Awesome!" the retired technical sergeant-tadded.

"The show was phenomenal! The performers displayed high energy for almost two hours," Spalding agreed. "The tribute to Michael Jackson was really good and the "moon walking" made the crowd go wild! The mime act was a hit as well."

"Overall it was a great evening for music and fun," the host added.

Tops In Blue perform a rendition of Michael Jackson's "Thriller" at the University of Central Missouri Aug. 9. Tops In Blue travel throughout the United States and to more than 20 countries during their 10-month tour each year.

New instruction puts spotlight on standards, culture

By Tech. Sgt. Shawn J. Jones
Air Force Public Affairs Agency

JOINT BASE ANDREWS, Md. (AFNS) -- When referencing fundamental standards, Airmen now have a single source: Air Force Instruction 1-1, Air Force Standards.

As one of the capstone acts of his 39-year career, Gen. Norton Schwartz, Air Force chief of staff, put his signature on the brand new instruction, which communicates in one document the required standards of conduct, performance and discipline expected of every uniformed Airman.

The instruction -- the first and only to be signed and certified by the chief of staff -- was preceded by Air Force Policy Directive 1, Air Force Culture, in which the secretary of the Air Force directed the chief of staff to develop and execute policy related to standards.

The new instruction is particularly noteworthy not because it offers many new standards, but because it consolidates many of the standards that had been spread among many separate instructions, officials said. In a single document, the instruction conveniently summarizes the expected standards of conduct for uniformed Airmen.

The intention for the instruction is to serve as a compass, providing a convenient overview of standards while directing Airmen to other instructions where more detailed information may be found, officials said.

Having a one-stop shop for standards-related guidelines, while not unprecedented, has long been absent in the Air Force. In fact,

U.S. Air Force graphic/Sylvia Saab

Air Force Instruction 1-1, Air Force Standards, was signed and certified recently. In a single document, the instruction conveniently summarizes the expected standards of conduct for uniformed Airmen.

the vast majority of the new instruction's initial content and structure were borrowed from the now outdated Air Force Regulation 30-1, Air Force Standards, which was not replaced in the early 1990s when Air Force instructions replaced Air Force regulations.

In December 2011, Schwartz directed the Air Staff to develop the new instruction. Much of the heavy lifting related to coordinating and drafting the instruction was performed by Scott Martin, a legal advisor on Schwartz's senior air staff counsel.

"We needed to capture and consolidate the existing Air Force standards," said Martin, a 23-year veteran who retired as a colonel in 2010.

From cover to cover, the instruction counts 27 pages, broken into three chapters.

The first chapter, the Air Force environment, focuses on topics such as core values, customs and courtesies, force structure and diversity. According to the chapter overview, the Air Force environment "encompasses the actions, values and standards we live by each and every day."

The second chapter focuses on standards of conduct, including sections on professional relationships, ethics, drug and alcohol abuse, and government neutrality regarding religion.

The instruction's final chapter addresses standards related to dress and appearance, physical fitness and government housing.

Martin said that while he borrowed a lot from the old regulation, it was incomplete for today's Air Force since so much had changed in the past two decades.

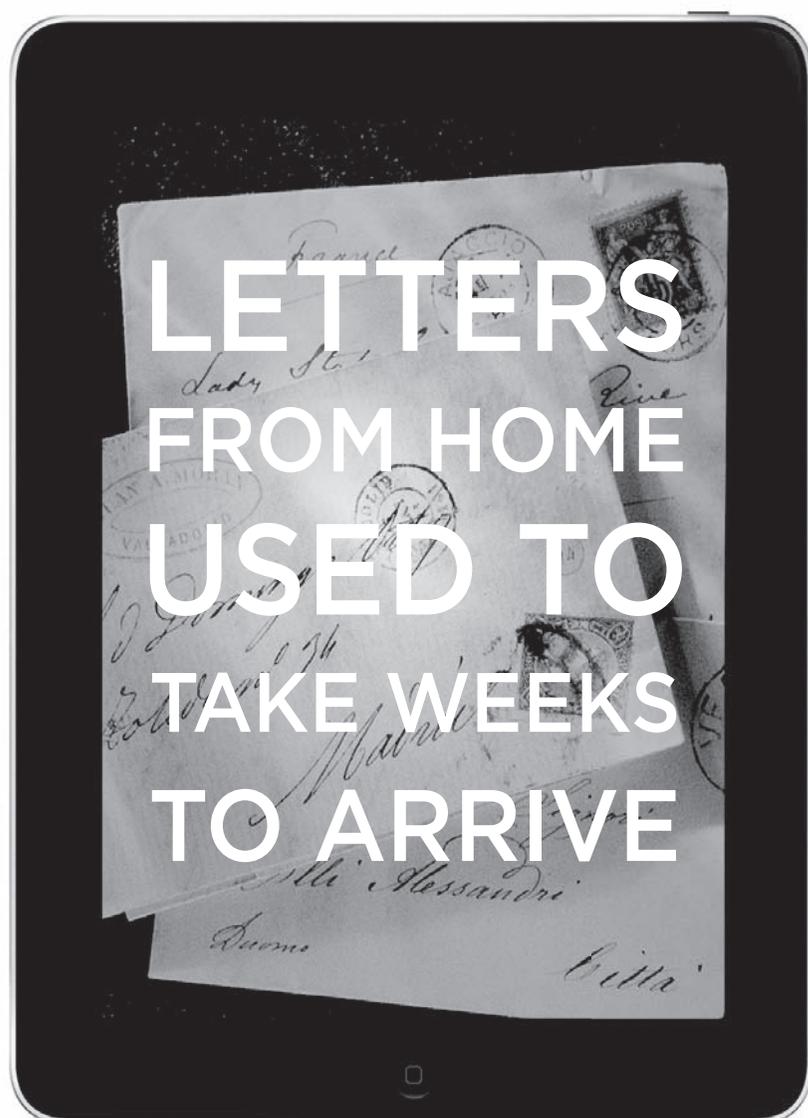

"We updated it and brought it up to the 21st century to address contemporary challenges that Airmen face," he said.

Some of those 21st century updates include standards related to relationships on social media, the wingman concept, resiliency, sexual assault prevention and response, tattoos and body piercing, and the Joint Ethics Regulation.

Martin said he expected the instruction to become a valuable resource for educating today's Airmen.

"If you have a young Airman who's not quite getting it, this will be a great tool for a mentoring session," he said. "Every Airman should periodically review these standards of conduct to assure he is living up to what the Air Force expects of him every day."

(Editor's note: AFI 1-1, Air Force Standards, and AFPD 1, Air Force Culture, can be found on www.e-publishing.af.mil.)

- Only one free ad*, maximum 30 words, will be allowed to run at any given time by the same household, for a maximum of eight weeks. Ads over the 30-word maximum will be edited at the publisher's discretion. *People who are PCSing may place more than one ad and sell the items at any price.

- Homes for sale that are listed with a realtor must be paid for. Only people who are PCSing and selling homes FSBO (for sale by owner) qualify as a free ad.
- Free yard sale ads are for active-duty, guard, reserve and retired military members living on or off base. People who live on base must have their yard sale approved by the housing office first.
