Air Force Global Strike Command Supports Operation Odyssey Dawn

By Air Force Global Strike Command Public Affairs

BARKSDALE AIR FORCE BASE, La. -- Airmen piloting three B-2 Spirits returned to Whiteman Air Force Base, Mo., after striking targets in Libya in support of Operation Odyssey Dawn.

The B-2s returned after a more than 25-hour mission in support of the international response to enforce a no-fly zone over Libya.

The B-2s employed 45 guided joint direct attack munitions, each weighing 2,000 pounds, against hardened aircraft shelters in Libya, officials said.

A no-fly zone was imposed by the United Nations Security Council Resolution 1973, authorizing military action in order to ensure the protection of the Libyan people and compliance with the conditions of UNSCR 1973.

Airmen assigned to the 608th Air Operations Center here coordinated four aerial refuelings for the B-2s during the mission, officials said. The Airmen coordinated the transition of command and control between Global Strike Command and U.S. Africa Command as the aircraft flew from the continental U.S. to African air space and back, officials said.

The goal of coalition strikes is to reduce the Libyan regime's ability to defy the no-fly zone and to enhance protection of coalition air forces charged with implementing it.

U.S. Air Force aircraft strike Libya

RAMSTEIN AIR BASE, Germany (AFNS) -- U.S. Air Force B-2 Spirits, F-15E Strike Eagles and F-16CJ Fighting Falcons launched during the early hours of March 20 in support of Operation Odyssey Dawn to enforce U.N. Security Council Resolution 1973, which is centered on protecting Libyan citizens from any further harm from Libyan leader Moammar Gadhafi's regime.

Following the initial launch of Tomahawk missiles, three U.S. Air Force B-2 Spirit aircraft from Whiteman Air Force Base, Mo., led strikes on a variety of strategic targets over Libya. U.S. fighter aircraft created airspace where no enemy forces could advance on Libyan opposition troops.

"It was a spectacular display of Airmanship watching this coalition come together the way it did to execute the first air strikes on behalf of the Libyan people," said Maj. Gen. Margaret H. Woodward, Operation Odyssey Dawn Joint Force

Air Component Commander. "Our bombers and fighters performed magnificently and we are fully behind protecting the innocent Libyan citizens while ensuring the safety of coalition aircraft."

Joint Task Force Odyssey Dawn is the U.S. Africa Command task force established to provide operational and tactical command and control of U.S. military forces supporting the international response to the unrest in Libya and enforcement of United Nations Security Council Resolution 1973. UNSCR 1973 authorizes all necessary measures to protect civilians in Libya under threat of attack by Qadhafi regime forces. JTF Odyssey Dawn is commanded by U.S. Navy Admiral Samuel J. Locklear, III.

Protecting our community...a team effort

By Robert Striegel
509th Bomb Wing Anti-Terrorism

The further we get from the terrorism acts of 9/11 the more complacent people seem to become about the threat from global terrorism. The Security and Law Enforcement personnel do a great job protecting the community however; they cannot be in all places, all the time. It truly takes a total team effort to protect the Whiteman AFB community. Each person regardless of their military affiliation plays a vital role with the protection of the base.

Unfortunately, terrorism has become a grim reality and the number of terrorism attempts has increased over the past years. Our intelligence and law enforcement communities are doing a tremendous job thwarting many potential terrorist plots however, as terrorist change their tactics, techniques and procedures we too must change our methods of protecting the community. We may not always agree with some security precautions put in place but they are there to ensure the safety and security of you your family.

In May 2010 there was an attempted car bombing of New York City's Time Square. Fortunately, there were two street vendors that alerted police officers to a suspicious vehicle and subsequently led to the evacuation and disarming of the bomb within the vehicle.

Anytime one of these incidents occurs I can't help but wonder some of the possibilities; What if those vendors decided to ignore the suspicious vehicle and go about their daily business? What if the vehicle exploded as originally planned? What if it was a family member or friend walking by at the time of the explosion? Fortunately, those are questions that need no answer to since those street vendors had the awareness and courage to say something to the authorities when they saw something out of place.

Have you ever traveled on and off base and seen something that may have been out of place but choose not to say anything? In today's environment we must not allow ourselves to become complacent. So how can you help? Be alert and notify the law enforcement professionals if you see any sort of suspicious activities on or near the base. Know some of the behaviors to look for during your daily routines.

The Department of Homeland Security began the campaign "See Something, Say Something". This program is similar to the U.S. Air Force's "Eagle Eyes" program which encourages all personnel to be aware and report suspicious behavior to the proper authorities.

Signs to look for:

Surveillance: Someone recording or monitoring base activities.

Elicitation: Anyone or organization attempting to gain information about military operations or people. This includes through the use of social media networks.

Suspicious Persons out of Place: People who don't seem to belong in the workplace, neighborhood or anywhere else.

Test of Security: Any attempts to measure reaction times to security breaches or to penetrate physical security barriers or procedures.

Acquiring Supplies: Purchasing or stealing explosives, weapons, ammunition, uniforms, badges, or any other controlled items.

Dry Runs: Putting people into position and moving them about without actually committing a terrorist act.

Deploying Assets: People and supplies getting into position to commit the act.

Always remember to practice good operational security (OPSEC). This applies to military members and their families. Posting sensitive information on social media sites may seem harmless, however, complaining about work schedules or disrupting weekend plans on social media sites could paint an operational picture for our enemy. This could put people at risk if put in the wrong hands.

Nobody wakes up thinking they will be a victim of a terrorist attack. Through continual awareness by the Whiteman community we can ensure the safety and security of our families.

To report suspicious activity contact Eagles Eyes at (660) 687-3700 or the 509th BW AT office at (660) 687-3044.

Women's accomplishments climb to greater heights

By Jerald A.S. Alexander
509th Bomb Wing Equal Opportunity

"Never limit yourself because of others' limited imagination; never limit others because of your own limited imagination."
-- Dr. Mae C. Jemison, astronaut

During Women's History Month, we reflect on the extraordinary accomplishments of women in shaping the course of our Nation's history. From reaching for the ballot box to breaking barriers on battlefields and athletic fields, women today have achieved heights their mothers and grandmothers might only have imagined.

The year's theme is "Our History is Our Strength," paying tribute to the millions of women who helped create a better world in various public and private sector industries. Nevertheless, this fortitude would not exist without the women who remain at home caring and rearing a valuable asset-our children.

The observance's roots go back to March 1857, when women from New York City factories staged a protest over working conditions. International Women's Day was first observed in 1909, but it wasn't until 1981 that U.S. Congress established National Women's History Week to be commemorated the second week of March. In 1987, Congress expanded the week to a month.

Knowing the challenges these women faced, grappled with and overcame can be an enormous source of strength to all of us. Women's achievements were often distorted, disdained and denied. However, American women have been leaders, not only in securing their own rights of suffrage and equal opportunity, but also in the abolitionist movement, the emancipation movement, the industrial labor movement, the civil rights movement and other actions of injustice, creating a fairer and just society for all. Susan Brownell Anthony, prominent women's right activist, stated in 1906 that "failure is impossible." This is why women continue to persevere and succeed in diverse facet, of our society.

As our nation prepares to write the next chapter of women's history, let us resolve to build on the progress won by the trailblazers of the past. Every American must carry forward the work of the women who came before and ensure generations of younger women and girls have no limits on their dreams, no obstacles to their achievements, and no remaining ceilings to shatter.

Two Airmen walk away winners

By Heidi Hunt

509th Bomb Wing Public Affairs

The Health and Wellness Center announced the winners of the pedometer program 'stepping through the winter' March 18, selecting two Airmen who set the standard and helped encourage the base populace to get physically active.

The first place winner was Tech. Sgt. Don DeMarco, 442nd Aircraft Maintenance Squadron aircraft mechanic, with 1,976,786 steps, or 658.9 miles. The runner up was Chief Master Sgt. Tim Cooley, 509th Bomb Wing command chief, who took 1,972,560 steps, or 657.5 miles.

The competition at this Air Force Global Strike Command base drew more than 250 participants and totaled more than 35 million steps, enough to walk nearly halfway around the world.

"The program is a 150 percent increase from last year," said Dr. Nita Hawk, 509th Medical Operations Squadron health promotion director and fitness program manager.

Sergeant DeMarco won first place last year and said this year he was more competitive this time, outdoing his old record by 161,855 steps.

"My motivation is the simple fact that I try to provide a positive example for the younger Airmen," Sergeant DeMarco said. With a full schedule, Sergeant Heidi Wacker, 509th MDOS diet therapist NCO in charge, March 18. The pedometer program, 'stepping through the winter' is designed to encourage the base populace to get physically active.

DeMarco wants Airmen to understand that their job should not have bearing on their ability to make time to exercise.

"I am 44-years-old, married with a child, a flightline crew chief, mid-shift worker, a full-time student, yet I find time to workout."

Chief Cooley said the program provides motivation to stay in shape during the winter months, and he enjoys the competition because it allows him to relieve stress, stay fit and reenergize.

"On behalf of the HAWC, I'd like to congratulate Chief Cooley and Sergeant DeMarco and an honorable mention to Mr. Jack Allen, 509th Civil Engineer Squadron, with 1,321,780 steps,"

Dr. Hawk said. "Thank you to everyone who participated; it is amazing to see the increase in participation from last year's contest."

The HAWC provided pedometers to participants, who were required log their steps weekly. For more information about the contest, contact the HAWC at (660) 687-7662.

Members of Whiteman and the University of Central Missouri hosted a of fun and activities at UCM's Recreational Center March 18 for Airmen and students.

More than 100 Air Force Global Strike Command Airmen and UCM students attended the event which included basketball, rock climbing, video games, movies and free pizza.

"Typically on a Friday or Saturday night this age demographic would be doing something similar, but alcohol would be involved," said Jeff Huffman, program coordinator. "We're not abolitionists. We want to highlight the importance of responsibility, which means doing what the law allows, and for those which are following the law, being smart while doing so."

The attendance for the event was good, according to Mr. Huffman, especially since UCM's spring break started March 18.

"A good amount of people showed up for the night," said Senior Airman Katherine Althoff, 509th Communications Squadron. "I did a lot of the promoting for the event, so I was excited to see how it turned out."

"It was something to do around here other than going to bars," Airman Althoff added. "All the things they had sounded great and the rock climbing was cool."

Mr. Huffman said he relied greatly on his planning group to spread the word to other Airmen, which effectively drew Airmen who otherwise might not have heard about the event.

"I came to support my fellow Airmen. they asked me to come, so I did," said Airman 1st Class Synethia Edinborough, 509th Medical Support Squadron. "I enjoyed meeting new people and seeing the general outside his uniform."

Mr. Huffman said he wants Airmen to know the grant is for them and by them.

"I want Airmen to understand that I planned this event with the help of a handful of Airmen and I want their ideas for future events," Mr. Huffman said. "We had 30 Airmen sign up to help plan future events, which will help ensure even greater attendance." Mr. Huffman added. "I believe the next event we host will be even better with the word being spread."

Future events will be tailored to increase the attendance of not only Airmen, but UCM students. UCM has a program called Spotlight, which handles event planning for UCM. Mr. Huffman said in the future this internal information system will connect Airmen and students.

From the Frontlines: Staff Sgt. Blaine Caudill

By Airman 1st Class Cody H. Ramirez
509th Bomb Wing Public Affairs

The Airman drops his bag in astonishment. Sand, a handful of tents and emptiness are the only things in sight.

This is his first deployment and one that will leave him with overwhelming admiration for the teamwork and coordination required of deployed Airmen and for the loyalty of the local communities.

He is Staff Sgt. Blaine Caudill, 509th Operations Support Squadron tower-watch supervisor and Air Force Global Strike Command member. Sergeant Caudill deployed from Whiteman April 25, 2010 for a bare-base in Southwest Asia, returning seven months later in November.

"I was one of the first people to arrive at the base," he said. "We had minimal facilities; basically a shower and tents."

Sergeant Caudill said any free-time was spent improving the base. Tents were assembled, including recreation and base-exchange tents, and he watched the gym grow from nothing to a fully-functional facility, during his time there.

"It's not often you get to witness a base being built around you," Sergeant Caudill said. "We went from less than 100 people when I got there to more than 700 people when I left."

Sergeant Caudill said it was a great experience seeing everyone come together and complete a team concept.

SOUTHWEST ASIA. - Staff Sgt. Blaine Caudill, 509th Operations Support Squadron tower supervisor and Air Force Global Strike Command member, left April 25, 2010 for his seven month deployment to a bare-base location.

"Everyone worked an assortment of jobs," he added. "One day you might be working as a civil engineer after duty. It was sort of a jack-of-all-trades thing. Seeing the base built ground-up was an amazing experience."

His main mission while deployed was assisting the transportation of mine-resistant

Whiteman encourages its members to volunteer

By Airman 1st Class Montse Ramirez
509th Bomb Wing Public Affairs

"Daily we selflessly give to our family, our community and our nation for the common goal of building a better tomorrow," -- Whiteman Enlisted Spouses' Club motto.

The WESC is one of the many volunteer organizations at this Air Force Global Strike Command base whose goal is to help the community and its members.

"Any contribution you give to your community can impact someone in a positive way," said Debbie Kermick, Whiteman AFB volunteer coordinator and a 35-year volunteer. "I believe the strength of a community lies within its volunteers."

Cassie Belton, WESC president, agrees, and said volunteering not only helps the community, but is also a great resume builder, a way to make lifelong friendships and create job and life skills.

According to Mrs. Belton, the WESC participates in programs such as Angel Tree, Relay for Life, the Whiteman AFB College Scholarship Program, Special Olympics Missouri and breast cancer bingo. The main source of income for WESC is the thrift store, and she said they're always looking for volunteers.

"Since we live in a rural community, it's easy to feel isolated and not participate," Mrs. Belton said.

"There is always something you can do to contribute; you can do anything from building a social media webpage, make flyers or organize luncheons," she said. "You just need to find your cup of tea."

Mrs. Belton also encouraged Team Whiteman to get involved in community activities and volunteer or join a such as the WESC, officer spouse's club or girl scouts.

"It's all about having fun and paying it forward," Mrs. Belton said. "It's a win-win situation; you just have to have the right attitude."

"We only go through life once, so why not make the best out of it?" Mrs. Kermick said. "If you don't want to do it for others, do it for yourself or for a sense of accomplishment."

According to Mrs. Kermick, some members aren't able to volunteer because they do not have childcare available. She said free childcare is available for volunteers who need it.

For more information about volunteering, contact Debbie Kermick at (660) 687-7668.

Dream come true

A young man gets a chance to be an Airman for a day

By Capt. John Severns
 509th Bomb Wing Public Affairs

Andrew Swan is a slight young man with a surprisingly firm handshake, the kind you might expect from a carpenter or a wrestler.

Andrew is neither of those things. At 17 years of age, he is a high school junior from Garden City, Kan., getting ready for the summer break and other rituals of youth. But he also has weightier issues on his mind, problems requiring strength and perseverance far beyond most of his peers.

Andrew is ill with a chronic kidney condition. As a child he received a kidney donation from his mother in an attempt by doctors to reverse the slow organ failure that was threatening his life. Ever since, he has been in and out of the hospital, struggling to overcome his illness and lead a normal life.

For two days at this Global Strike Command base, however, Andrew was a part of Team Whiteman, joining Airmen in the tower, in a B-2 Spirit and on the firing range to help protect America.

Andrew's visit was made possible through the hard work of Team Whiteman Airmen and the Kansas City, Mo. chapter of the Dream Factory, a national non-profit organization dedicated to fulfilling the dreams of children with critical or chronic illnesses. Together, they helped make Andrew's dream of being a B-2 Spirit pilot-for-a-day come true.

Andrew was quick to describe why the B-2 was at the heart of his dream, following years of fascination with the aircraft.

 Andrew Swan peers through binoculars from the Whiteman flight tower during his visit March 18.

"It was always the B-2 and any stealth equipment," he said. "It's been [my dream] ever since I first saw it, a long time ago."

"My medicine makes me sick from time to time, and whenever I get sick I have to stay home," he added. Watching shows about the military on the History channel, especially shows featuring the B-2, was his favorite way to pass the time.

Although operational and safety requirements prevented Andrew from actually flying in the B-2, members of Team Whiteman found other ways to get him up close and personal with his dream aircraft, including a ride in a B-2 simulator and an in-depth tour of a B-2 by pilots who volunteered their time and came in on the weekend to be a part of Andrew's visit.

"It was the opportunity of a lifetime for us to be able to help make Drew's dream come true," said Lt. Col. Tony Monetti, 13th Bomb Squadron Assistance Director of Operations and one of the Airmen who helped organize the Dream Factory visit. "It's hard for us to imagine the challenges he has to overcome every day."

Andrew's visit started with a flight into Whiteman by Lt. Col.

Harold Bruninga, 131st BW traditional guardsman, where he was greeted by dozens of Airmen who came out to meet him, including Brig. Gen. Scott Vander Hamm, 509th Bomb Wing commander.

Once deplaned, it was time to start a busy day, with visits to the Air Traffic Control Tower, the 509th Security Forces Squadron's firing range, and a special pilot's roll call at Mission's End.

Day two was just as busy, with a stop at the 509th Operations Support Squadron for egress training, on the off chance his ride in the B-2 simulator later that day was rougher than expected. After that it was time for a visit to maintenance to see an A-10 belonging to the 442nd Fighter Wing up close and personal.

"It was life-changing for this boy and it was life changing for myself," said Elaine Apel, the Dream Factory coordinator for Andrew's visit. "We were so overwhelmed by everything they were able to do for him. When we landed at Whiteman and saw the marquee saying 'Welcome to Drew's Dream' and General Vander Hamm was there to greet us, our mouths fell open and I knew it was going to be an incredible day."

Skeet and trap shooting safety tips

By Heidi Hunt

509th Bomb Wing Public Affairs

While every skeet and trap shooter's competition level differs, all participants should aim equally to stay out of harm's way while at play. In order to prevent an unfortunate incident, skeet and trap shooters should keep safety in mind at all times.

"Each person handling a gun should practice safety because any gun can potentially kill," said Mr. Tim Allen, 509th Force Support Squadron outdoor recreations manager at this Air Force Global Strike Command base. "Participants should understand and follow safety posted guidelines and instructions."

Ms. Laura Brunner, 509th FSS outdoor recreation ITT representative, said that when you have any type of gun in your possession, you should always know the target and surroundings in order to prevent injury.

Before skeet and trap range shooters embark on this recreational sport, precautions and permits are needed to ensure shooting is done in a safe manner.

The following skeet and trap safety tips and rules are courtesy of the 509th FSS outdoor recreation:

- ❑ All rules and regulations governing the use of the trap and skeet range will be obeyed. Failure to comply will result in loss of range privileges.
- ❑ Only approved range targets from outdoor recreation will be permitted on the range for use. No glass or beverage can targets will be permitted.
- ❑ All shooting will take place on the designated shooting squares only.
- ❑ Shooting will not commence until all individuals are behind the firing line.
- ❑ No more than two shells will be loaded in the shotgun at any one time.
- ❑ Persons under 15 years of age must be accompanied by an adult.
- ❑ The consumption of alcoholic beverages on the range is strictly prohibited.
- ❑ No ammunition larger than #7-1/2
- ❑ Anyone on the range reserves the right to inspect any weapon that they consider unsafe. If the weapon is determined to be unsafe, the owner must immediately remove said weapon from the range area. A report must be filled out and forwarded to outdoor recreation for final determination.
- ❑ Shotguns will either be broke open or carried with the bolt in the fully rearward position unless the shooter is on a designated shooting square.

❑ Hearing and eye protection is mandatory for all shooters and range personnel.

❑ The range will be closed in the event of lightning potential within three nautical miles or sustained winds in excess of 25 mph. If you see lightning, leave the range. Do not wait for someone to tell you lightning is too close.

Customers wishing to use the skeet range must attend a hunter's safety course prior to any activity. For more information about the next available class, contact the outdoor recreation staff at (660) 687-5565.

When transporting weapons on and off base, reference the Whiteman Air Force Base Air Force Instruction 31-101v2 or contact Mr. Jerry Osban at (660) 687-4482. Those transporting weapons other than from base should follow Missouri State law.

The skeet range is located off-base and is open year round, seven-days a week and operating hours are 30-minutes prior to sunrise and after sunset. The range is open to active duty, guard, reserve, retired military personnel, Department of Defense civilians and dependents and registered members are allowed to bring non-military as guests.

T-38 completes 50 years of service

By David W. Roberts
Defense Media Activity

RANDOLPH AIR FORCE BASE, Texas (AFNS) -- Officials commemorated the T-38 Talon supersonic jet trainer's 50th service anniversary in a ceremony here March 17.

The T-38 was first deployed in March 1961, and has served as a training vehicle for multiple generations of pilots and pilot instructors throughout its five decades of service including here at Whiteman Air Force Base.

Col. Richard Murphy, the commander of the 12th Flying Training Wing, said the T-38 continues to play a central role in the Air Force's pilot training program.

"The T-38 has been an instrumental and foundational element (of pilot training) over the last 50 years," Colonel Murphy said. "The Talon continues to develop our combat Air Force pilots as they learn aviation and warfighting skills that are needed for today's Air Force and for our future."

The T-38 prepares pilots to fly fighter and bomber aircraft, including the F-15 Eagle, the F-16 Fighting Falcon and the B-1B Lancer.

"The aircraft obviously has been a tremendous work horse," Colonel Murphy said. "(And it will) continue to serve in this capacity for the foreseeable future."

Reflecting on the legacy of the T-38, Gen. Edward A. Rice Jr., the commander of Air Education and Training Command, said the 50-year history of the aircraft represents a "fundamental truth" about the Air Force.

"The Air Force utilizes the best equipment, provides the best training and possesses the world's most qualified and dedicated instructor pilot force," he said. "The complexity of both the modern battlespace and that of our aircraft inventory have increased dramatically, and the T-38 has evolved to meet these very, very high demands. From the 'glass cockpit' and a heads-up display, to numerous structural upgrades, the Talon has embodied the phrase, 'flexibility is the key to airpower.'"

The general went on to recount the T-38's history, beginning with its first flight as a test aircraft in 1959, in the shadow of NASA's human spaceflight program.

"What you may not know about the T-38 is that its maiden flight was on April 10, 1959 -- the day NASA (officials) held their first press conference with the Mercury astronauts who went into space," he said. "While the eyes of the nation were fixed on space flight and later on a voyage to the moon, the T-38 team was quietly building a foundation of excellence upon which the Air Force would build its pilot force for decades and decades to come."

General Rice said the effectiveness of the T-38 was proven during the Vietnam War and continues to this day.

"Just a few years after its first flight, the T-38 graduates were tested in combat in the skies over Vietnam," he said. "It is difficult to overstate the legacy of the T-38 Talon and the effect it has had on sustaining the finest pilot training program in the world."

In honor of the aircraft's 50th anniversary, retired Lt. Col. Donald Wheeler, one of the first graduates of the T-38 training program, arrived at the ceremony in the rear seat of a T-38 painted with a special commemorative color scheme, giving the plane an appearance similar to its original 1961 look.

The colonel said he believes the Air Force has one of the best pilot training programs in the world, and that his training aboard the T-38 was advantageous to his career as a pilot.

When asked if the T-38 feels different now than it did on his early flights, he said, "Yeah, I'm older now."

Though the T-38 has served the Air Force for 50 years, General Rice said it will continue to serve as a training platform for future Air Force pilots.

"Over the next few years, new pilots will continue to learn their craft in this wonderful, wonderful aircraft, the T-38," he said. "And one day, these young men and women will ascend to fill the ranks of Air Force senior leadership. So no matter what the future holds, the legacy of the T-38 Talon is secure in the experiences and the memories of this new generation of Air Force aviators."

Colonel Murphy said that while much has changed in the world since 1961, there is one thing that has not changed.

"Our mission remains the same as it was in 1961: produce the world's greatest pilots and instructors," he said.

Volleyball: MDG-A sets an undefeated record

By Airman 1st Class Montse Ramirez
509th Bomb Wing Public Affairs

The 509th Medical Group volleyball team secured their undefeated record of 6-0 by winning two of the three sets versus the 509th Aircraft Maintenance Squadron volleyball team March 14.

"I was very happy we won," said Eva Graney, MDG team captain. "We have a very skilled, competitive team and every player is essential for our offense."

Set 1: MDG began by taking the lead on the scoreboard. With strategic attacks and rapid blocks, they continued to control the tempo of the game with a score of 16-12. AMXS seemed to have the motivation for a comeback and showed it by fiercely approaching and blocking a couple of attacks. AMXS failed the comeback, though, ending the set with a dominated loss of 27-17.

"I think having experienced volleyball players who are very team-oriented has been the greatest factor in our wins this season," Graney said.

Set 2: AMXS scored on the opening serve, starting out the set strong, but it didn't last long; MDG quickly regained control with a score of 15-13. AMXS didn't make it easy for MDG to win with a solid defense, blocking and returning hits. In the end, MDGs decoys and deep sets got the best of AMXS.

"It was a great game against a great team," said Lori Taylor, AMXS team captain. "They played really well; I hope we keep getting better as the season progresses."

ambush-protected vehicles to Afghanistan.

"I worked in the tower with the foreign controllers," he said. "I watched our traffic and theirs, ensuring our operations didn't affect theirs and vice-versa."

"Getting down their airfield standards and how they ran operations was one thing, but when it came to using their equipment it was a whole different side of the spectrum. When I got there it was like I traveled back in time."

Sergeant Caudill said he didn't know what to expect from his deployment, but he was impressed with the coordination between the Airmen and locals.

"We had great relations with the locals," he said. "I couldn't have asked for better assistance. They were out there to help us. They respected us and I respected them."

He said he received great gratification from helping the base get where it was when he left.

"I had a great time out there," he said. "You get so much satisfaction when you compare the base when you get there to how far it has come by the time you leave."
