Air Force leaders issue holiday message

WASHINGTON (AFNS) -- Secretary of the Air Force Michael Donley, Air Force Chief of Staff Gen. Mark A. Welsh III and Chief Master Sgt. of the Air Force James Roy send the following holiday message to the Airmen of the U.S. Air Force:

The holiday season is a perfect time to celebrate the many blessings that we enjoy in our country and spend time with the people who are most important in our lives. As we gather around those we love, we encourage you to strengthen the relationships that enrich your life and sincerely thank those who steadfastly support your service to our Nation's Air Force.

To those who will spend this special time of year far from family and loved ones, our thoughts are with you. The sacrifices you make earn the deep and abiding respect of your fellow Airmen and Americans. For those Airmen and members of our sister Services engaged in combat operations around the globe, we look forward to your safe return.

To those of us with the opportunity to celebrate the holidays at home, remember our deployed Airmen and extend heartfelt thanks to the family members and loved ones who miss them. We ask that you reach out to the families and friends of our deployed Airmen, and in the spirit of giving and support that defines our Air Force family, welcome them into your holiday celebrations.

In the many joyous ways we celebrate this holiday season, we wish you and yours the very best during this special time and throughout the New Year.

Command Post never sleeps, takes holidays off

By Senior Airman Montse Belleau
509th Bomb Wing Public Affairs

A military base is like a human body, with different offices fulfilling different - yet equally vital - roles, keeping the base alive and working properly.

Just like the brain is constantly working to regulate and inform the rest of the body, the 509th Bomb Wing Command Post never sleeps, working 24/7, 365 days a year, continuously keeping information flowing up and down to the appropriate Air Force agency.

"All of the Airmen within the Command Post are very hard workers," said Staff Sgt. Crystal Salierno, 509th Bomb Wing Command Post training manager. "We have a very stringent schedule of exercises and inspections. Even with our hectic schedule, our morale is high; we are like a family."

The family-oriented shop stays close by working 12-hour shifts every day of the year, even through the holidays. Down days, whether directed by the secretary of the Air Force or the base commander, do not apply to the CP controllers, either.

"It can be difficult at times having to work on the holidays and not be with our families," Salierno said. "Our management does a great job of working the schedules so that if a controller works one holiday, they will try their best to give him/her the next holiday off."

Staff Sgt. Kennecia Williams, 509th BW/CP NCOIC of records, also understand and implements the "service before self" core value.

"Working through the holidays is disappointing at times," she said. "Having been in the Command Post career field for 11 years, I have grown accustomed to the hours and responsibilities the duty requires of me."

Without the Command Post, commanders would be unable to access information and receive real-time updates to operations and situations occurring on base, directly impacting their ability to accomplish the mission. The information and messages received in and shared by the Command Post are crucial to the mission's success.

"We [inform] the base populace of all notifications, from weather to an on-base attack," Salierno said. "All information regarding the base flows through us to the appropriate agency."

In addition to enabling Whiteman leadership, the hard work all 16 personnel in the Command Post have put in has led to well-deserved recognition.

The Command Post won the Air Force's Command Post of the Year award in 2010, and took home multiple awards in 2011 from Air Force Global Strike Command, including Senior NCO of the Year, awarded to Master Sgt. Jennifer Lyons, and NCO of the Year, presented to Salierno.

Part of the job is consistent preparation and training. For example, to ensure their operational readiness, the CP controllers must take a closed-book test every month, which they must pass with a 90 percent score or greater.

"We rely on our professionalism, discipline and teamwork to perform our mission with excellence," Salierno said.

Dirt Boyz: clearing a holiday path

By Airman 1st Class Bryan Crane
509th Bomb Wing Public Affairs

Picture Christmas morning - children are enjoying their gifts, friends and family are enjoying each other's company, and Mother Nature has provided a snowy winter wonderland.

For many Team Whiteman members this is a cozy Christmas morning, but for the members of the 509th Civil Engineer Squadron's "Dirt Boyz" shop, it means time to get to work.

As others continue their holiday adventures, the Dirt Boyz remain alert, watching the weather and preparing for a 48-hour snow watch.

"Normally we work just day shifts," said Staff Sgt. Adam Mellen, 509th CES heavy equipment operator. "But when we get put on 48-hour snow watch, we bring in four to five guys for a night shift to be prepared for the snow."

Since Mother Nature's schedule can change without notice, planning holiday events and time with family can be difficult for members of the shop.

"We can't make plans right away like some people," said Senior Airman Mike Carle, 509th CES heavy duty equipment operator. "And the plans we do make have to be within the local area because we need to respond to a recall within 30 minutes."

Along with 48-hour snow watch, Dirt Boyz members are also on-call for emergencies, including damage to the outer fences or pipes bursting.

"There [are] usually two people, a primary and an alternate, on call at all times," Mellen said. "We have to be ready in case anything happens during the holidays."

"With snow removal being an integral part of our mission success here at Whiteman, we only allow three or four Dirt Boyz to take leave at a time, and snow removal augmentees have to clear their leave with the snow removal NCOIC," Mellen added.

Being away from home and family is never easy, particularly during the holiday season, but the Dirt Boyz try to make everyone feel at home and part of the family.

"We are a big family here, so we look out for each other during this season," Carle said. "Most of us won't have the opportunity to go home to our families for the holidays, but ev-

Dec. 18-29, 1972: "Operation Linebacker II"

By David Easley
509th Bomb Wing Historian

After peace talks between the United States and North Vietnam aimed at ending the Vietnam War broke down, President Nixon ordered the bombing of strategic targets in and around Hanoi using B-52 Stratofortress-heavy bombers.

The air offensive was also known as "The December Raids," "The Christmas Bombing," and "The 11-Day War."

Strategic Air Command released more than half of America's manned bomber fleet for the offensive, with 153 B-52s operating from Andersen Air Force Base in Guam, and a further 54 B-52s based at U-Tapao, Thailand.

It was the largest sustained use of heavy bombers since the end of World War II.

In addition to the bombers, more than 2,000 Air Force, Navy and Marine tactical fighters, fighter-bombers and support aircraft participated in the campaign.

Overall, Linebacker II succeeded in its mission of bringing the North Vietnamese back to peace negotiations, but not without significant American losses to SA-2 surface-to-air missiles, anti-aircraft artillery and enemy fighters. In all, 15 B-52's were shot down (along with 12 tactical aircraft) and a further five heavily damaged.

Thirty three B-52 crewmen lost their lives, with another 33 captured. During the raids, more than 700 B-52 sorties dropped 15,000 tons of ordnance (fighter-bombers added another 5,000 tons), and destroyed much of North Vietnam's electrical power grid, petroleum stocks and rail capabilities.

American aircraft also shot down six enemy fighters.

This included on Dec. 18 the first enemy aircraft shot-down by a B-52 tail gunner, when Staff Sgt. Samuel O. Turner destroyed a MiG-21.

Tips to help you enjoy a worry-free vacation

By Heidi Hunt
509th Bomb Wing Public Affairs

Many wait all year to enjoy a little time off to spend with family or loved ones. While planning for a holiday vacation can be fun and exciting, nothing will ruin the Christmas spirit faster than becoming a victim of crime.

“A vacation is a good time for relaxation and fun, but do not leave your common sense at home,” said Jerry Osban, 509th Security Forces Squadron Crime Prevention manager.

There are a few things to keep in mind while on vacation to help Team Whiteman enjoy a well-deserved break.

The 509th SFS Crime Prevention Resource Protection Office offers the following tips to consider when making travel plans:

- Before leaving your home, even for a few minutes, be extra cautious about locking doors and windows.
- Lock your car at all times and lock luggage and packages in the trunk.
- Contact your local post office to stop mail and suspend deliveries.
- Leave your key with a trusted neighbor along with emergency contact numbers.
- Use timer lights when applicable. Use the Operations Quarters Watch Program.
- Stay alert to your surroundings and other people's actions.
- Always carry a minimum amount of cash; use traveler's checks when available.
- When driving, use main roads and use a map with the route marked; have your car serviced before leaving.
- If your car breaks down, turn on flashers and call or wait for the police or the highway safety department.

- Never pick up hitchhikers or accept a ride from someone you are not familiar with.
 - While staying at a hotel/motel, the first thing you should do is locate the fire exits, elevators and public phones. Plan an escape in case of fire or other emergency.
 - Ensure you know who is at the door before you open it. If you are ever in doubt contact the front desk or service center.
 - Leave the television on when leaving your room to make it appear occupied. Report any suspicious activity to the management or security.
 - Always take cash, credit cards, and keys with you when departing the room. Keep extra cash or valuables locked in the hotel/motel safe deposit box or in the room safe if one is provided.
- “When traveling on vacation to unfamiliar towns, do your homework on unsafe neighborhoods or other areas you should avoid,” said Staff Sgt. Jeremy Woods of the 509th SFS Police Services division. “Always be conscious of your surroundings. Woods suggests remembering street signs, business names and the routes you take when exploring.
- Most importantly, if you feel something is not right, follow your instincts and take the necessary precautions.
- “Vacationing during the holidays is a special time, and meant to build lasting memories,” Woods said. “Safety is just as important, whether you are here or on vacation.”

“Safety first always”

By Senior Airman Montse Belleau
509th Bomb Wing Public Affairs

“Safety first” is a popular phrase, often incorporated into an organization's values, but the phrase poorly defines the overall concept of safety.

“Safety isn't part of a checklist; it's a core value that must be integral to all operations, missions and decisions at all times,” says Staff Sgt. Michael DeWandeler, 509th Bomb Wing ground safety technician. “Safety first implies we should never accept risk.”

Whiteman Air Force Base's mission is to put bombs on target, a mission which compels Airmen to accept a lot more risk than many organizations.

The Safety Office's mission is to prevent mishaps and thereby preserve combat readiness. Their key responsibilities are to plan, organize, direct and control safety activities, as well as analyze mishap causes and trends.

“Our goal is to mitigate risk and accept it only when absolutely necessary for mission accomplishment,” DeWandeler says. “In other words, we must value safety always.”

“There are twelve personnel in the Safety Office assigned to one of three sections - Weapons Safety, Flight Safety and Ground Safety,” DeWandeler says. “My area of responsibility is ground safety, in which my coworkers and I focus on keeping base facilities safe and ensuring Airmen conduct on- and off-duty activities in a safe manner.”

A mishap can occur at any time, so safety personnel are on call 24/7.

“When a mishap occurs, we conduct investigations to determine the root cause in order to prevent future mishaps,” says DeWandeler.

“Investigating a mishap puts all other work to the side, so after an investigation is completed, we have to play catch up with our other duties.”

“Our workload is pretty even throughout the year, but the ‘Critical Days of Summer’ period is the riskiest for off-duty mishaps; [however,] effective campaigning puts Whiteman's mishap rate for that period roughly the same as the rest of the year,” he says.

During the last year, the 509th Bomb Wing has had zero fatal traffic accidents, and zero reportable mishaps during major inspections.

“An important part of our mission is helping commanders manage and conduct their safety programs,” DeWandeler says. “We assess and inspect areas and activities to eliminate mishap potentials. Successfully incorporating safety into the mission keeps us from weakening the Air Force's combat capability by unnecessarily losing valuable personnel and hardware.”

DeWandeler says they have no annual unit inspections scheduled from October through December, so they use that period to develop policies and procedures for the next calendar year.

“We are fortunate to have a team of individuals who come from a variety of previous career fields,” he says. “Our mission requires us to know a little bit about every job on base; therefore, we can utilize our in-office experience to effectively evaluate every work center

Airmen with the qualities above, along with experienced NCOs who are self-motivated and thrive on being challenged, make the Safety Office an environment of excellence.

“Our chief of safety and our safety managers appreciate that they can tell us what they want done and we do it with little or no leadership oversight,” he said.

Staff Sgt. William Daniels, 509th Bomb Wing chaplain assistant, deployed to Eskan Village, in the Kingdom of Saudi Arabia, from January-July 2012. While deployed, Daniels ministered to Service members' spiritual needs and helped accommodate religious functions and ministries.

By Senior Airman Montse Belleau
509th Bomb Wing Public Affairs

In a world full of chaos and confusion, many military members seek peace through spirituality, especially during a deployment.

Staff Sgt. William Daniels, 509th Bomb Wing chaplain assistant, is one such Airman. During a six-month deployment to Eskan Village in Saudi Arabia earlier this year, Daniels helped others cope with the stress of serving overseas and administered to Service members' spiritual needs.

During his time there, he performed many of the same duties as he handled at Whiteman, doing peer-to-peer support counseling and ministry of presence.

As a chaplain assistant, Daniels' responsibilities are to ensure the free exercise of religion in the Air Force by enabling the chaplain professional ministries to provide religious instruction, spiritual renewal, involvement and recognition, pastoral counseling, crisis and suicide intervention, and critical incident stress management, spiritual nurturing and pastoral visitation.

"I am the eyes and ears for our chaplains on our enlisted personnel," Daniels said. "Stripes speak to stripes."

Daniels said in the desert his days always started around the coffee pot.

"That was where most of the Airmen would gather, so we had an awesome coffee house ministry," he said. "It was great meeting so many new people and being able to use my skill set as a chaplain assistant!"

Daniels said the main difference at his forward location was that he had fewer additional duties, and therefore more visitation time with Airmen.

"My mission is for Airmen and their families to be able to worship how they want and make sure we are there for their spiritual aspect," Daniels said. This was Daniels' first deployment and though he enjoyed the experience, he also learned a lot.

"It's important to always look out for your wingman," Daniels said. "Even if you don't know them, just make sure they are taken care of. Don't forget about our sister services either; they have a hard job, too."

"I know a lot of people don't know about what we do...but let me say that from the chief to the airman that was manning the entry control points or watching traffic, every one of them knew what they were there for, and [they] did our Air Force and nation proud," he said.

Daniels said he would deploy again in a heartbeat.

"Where we are needed, we will go," he said.

everybody in our shop will invite you over or make sure you have plans so that you get the family atmosphere."

The family atmosphere produced by the Dirt Boyz keeps the shop close together and makes it easier for Airmen who are away from their families during the holidays.

"Most of us NCOs are used to being away or have families of our own," Mellen said. "So it's important for us to make the new Airmen comfortable during these times. It's what my supervisors did for me and it's what I want them to do when they are supervisors one day."

In any event, the Dirt Boyz plan to enjoy whatever downtime they can. They are ready and prepared, and now await Mother Nature.

509th Bomb Wing Public Affairs

Civilians are a critical part of everyday operations across base. However, the individuals who handle employment-related issues for this vital group often tend to fly under the radar.

The men and women of the 509th Force Support Squadron Civilian Personnel Section offer a “one-stop shop” service for Team Whiteman civilians providing a wide array of information and resources on key personnel issues.

“Our main purpose is to handle all human resource issues for the civilians,” said Brian Nash, 509th FSS civilian personnel officer. “We deal with everything from the hiring process right up through retirement.”

The Civilian Personnel section provides advice and guidance for all civilians on base.

“We service 660 employees here,” Nash said. “We work with civilians from the 509th Bomb Wing, 442nd Fighter Wing, all detachments on base. We also work with some employees’ off base at Rosecrans Air National Guard Base, Mo., Fort Leonard Wood, Mo., and Fort Leavenworth, Kan.”

The main areas Civilian Personnel handles are staffing and employee management/labor relations.

“Staffing deals with all civilian job movement on base,” Nash said. “Our employee management and labor relations section deals with anything concerning bargaining unit employees, the union (local AFGE 2361), the installation’s Labor Management Agreement, benefits, leave and employee conduct.”

In recent years, a large portion of civilian personnel services has been centralized at the Air Force Personnel Center. Although there have been changes, Nash and his team are available to civilians for all types of questions.

“Most employees feel it’s quicker to go through our office...; we can answer the basic benefits questions,” Nash said. “We want to make things easier for all of our civilians.”

“Employees prefer coming to us with their questions,” said Chrystal Hampton, 509th FSS human resources assistant. “We will try to answer it right away, or we have the resources to find out the answer to nearly every question.” Nash added that employees are encouraged to call AFPC first regarding their questions concerning benefits and worker’s compensation, as AFPC has trained specialists who are able to answer their questions.

Civilian Personnel is also the place to go to for a civilian spouse who holds a federal job and whose spouse is PCSing.

“When a civilian’s spouse gets orders, it means they themselves will have to find a new job at their next base,” said Terri Rizzolo, human resources specialist. “We can place them in the Priority Placement Program, which tries to match them up with another job at the base they are going to.”

This program helps ease the stress on the person PCSing – the main focus of Civilian Personnel in general, said Nash.

Civilians are encouraged to call 660-687-6475 to schedule an appointment to discuss personnel issues. Walk-ins are also welcome.

Chrystal Hampton, 509th FSS human resources assistant, helps a customer fill out a form at the Civilian Personnel Office, Dec. 10. The team’s employee management and labor relations section handles issues concerning bargaining unit employees, benefits, leave and employee conduct.

Terri Rizzolo, 509th FSS Human Resources Specialist, and Brian Nash, 509th FSS civilian personnel officer, review a file at the civilian personnel office, Dec. 10. Civilian personnel provides advice and guidance all squadrons and detachments on base.

Person on the Street: What is your most memorable holiday moment?

“My favorite Christmas memory is from last year. It was my first Christmas with my boyfriend, John, and my daughter. We took her to see the Christmas lights in Alabama.”

-- Senior Airman Kaitlyn West, 509th Contracting Squadron

“One year we went camping over Thanksgiving and we deep fried a turkey.”

-- Jennifer Brennan, 509th Bomb Wing Legal Office

“When I first moved to Whiteman I didn’t have anything at all at my house, except a Christmas tree for my girls and blow-up mattresses, PCSing during the holiday season is an adventure.”

-- Master Sgt. Mary Madison, 509th Bomb Wing Legal Office

“I had a close encounter with some Christmas lights a few years ago. I was turning a bulb and it shocked me and turned my hands black. I have definitely been more careful ever since.”

-- Capt. Michael Pierson, 509th Bomb Wing Legal Office

“In 1983, when me and my wife went into a German pub during a snow storm and met a group of drunken German men who were telling us jokes we couldn’t really understand. It wasn’t until later that we found out they were remembering their fallen friend who had died in WWII by telling jokes and stories about their time with him. It was fun hanging out with them even though we couldn’t understand them well.”

-- Chief Master Sgt. (retired) Terry White, 20th Reconnaissance Squadron

“Last Christmas, I was going home for the first time after basic training and technical school and I surprised my family. I was so happy to see them so surprised and excited. The holidays definitely have a new meaning now that I don’t get to spend every one of them with my family.”

-- Airman 1st Class Stacey Moore, 509th Civil Engineer Squadron

Professional Development Center: Giving Airmen Power through Knowledge

By Senior Airman Montse Belleau
509th Bomb Wing Public Affairs

“Education is the most powerful weapon which you can use to change the world,” -- Nelson Mandela.

The Whiteman Professional Development Center’s mission is to provide Airmen with the tools they need to obtain that weapon.

There are 24 personnel available to help Airmen throughout the PDC – in the Airman Leadership School, First Term Airman Center, base library and the Education Center.

“We enable global strike capability by providing unrivaled force development to Whiteman’s defenders and avengers,” said Darla Rush, 509th Force Support Squadron force development flight chief.

As an Air Force institution, Rush said their daily challenge is to provide the necessary support to Airmen so they can accomplish their global reach mission without having to worry about the administrative side of registering for classes and military tuition assistance.

“The staff is always very professional, respectful and always do the best to help me out,” said Staff Sgt. Rafael Franjul, 509th Bomb Wing Judge Advocate NCOIC of civic law. “They are responsive and attentive to the needs of Airmen.”

“The most effective method of data-gathering in my organization is customer critiques,” Rush said. “We continually ask our Airmen and their families what we can do to help them to better achieve the Air Force mission. The information gathered changes based on what’s going on in their lives, and we just have to do the best to address them all so that our Airmen can continue to successfully accomplish the mission.”

During the last year, the PDC hosted an on-base graduation combining Community College of the Air Force, State Fair Community College, Park University and Webster University graduates. In total, 174 Whiteman Airmen earned CCAF degrees.

“We also hosted a national education fair with 25 accredited colleges, [with] 150 programs showcased to more than 200 Airmen,” Rush said.

The can-do attitude of the education center employees is second to none according to Rush.

“When an Airman comes in looking for guidance on educational programs, we are there to assist,” Rush said. “The thing that stands out to me is that we have many Airmen who leave Whiteman who still call back with education questions. I don’t think they would be doing that if they hadn’t had a positive experience while stationed here.”

Helping Team Whiteman enjoy the outdoors

By Airman 1st Class Bryan Crane
509th Bomb Wing Public Affairs

Winter has finally passed, it is a nice warm spring day in the spring and you want to go out on a fishing trip, but you do not have a boat. Where is the best place to rent one?

The Whiteman Outdoor Recreation Center is a great option, offering most items at a 40- to 50-percent discount from rental dealers in the surrounding community.

“Outdoor Recreation offers a wide variety of rental equipment,” said Tim Allen, 509th Force Support Squadron Outdoor Recreation manager. “We have anything from boats and canoes to chairs and tables.”

Outdoor Recreation offers equipment for rent to all DOD members, and anyone with a valid DOD identification card is allowed to rent from them.

“The things people rent from us are usually items that would cost $600 to buy and you would only use it once and then have to store it away,” Allen said. “Customers can come here and rent these items and they do not have to worry about storing them away or maintaining them.”

Not only is Outdoor Recreation convenient for members on base, but the discounted prices can really help.

“If you go to the lake in the summer and rent a fishing boat, it’s going to cost you approximately $200 dollars a day,” Allen said. “Whereas you can rent one from us and an entire weekend will only cost you $135.”

Within the last year, Outdoor Recreation has updated its stock, purchasing all-new boats.

“The newer equipment and the strict maintenance schedule we keep on our items have increased our products,” Allen said. “People know when they’re renting from us they are getting well taken-care-of equipment and [they] trust us.”

Outdoor Recreation offers discounted prices for people looking to rent during the weekdays, as well. They also have boating and other out-of-season equipment still available during the winter months.

“We can also assist getting people good rental deals on winter equipment in the area,” said Allen.

Outdoor Recreation also organizes trips throughout the year to different outdoor locations throughout Missouri. Previous trips have included horseback riding, mountain biking and whitewater rafting.

“We are trying to organize trips to get people interested in the outdoors,” Allen said. “We want people to go on our trips and return to these places to do it again on their own.”

Department of Defense releases 2013 BAH Rates

WASHINGTON (AFNS) -- The Department of Defense released today the 2013 Basic Allowance for Housing (BAH) rates, which take effect Jan. 1, 2013. Overall rates will increase an average of 3.8 percent this year.

For members with dependents, average increases in BAH are approximately $60 per month. A typical E-6 with dependents, for example, will find his/her BAH about $60 per month higher than last year, while an O-3 with dependents will receive about $55 more than last year.

In areas where rates will decrease, the decrease will only apply to members newly reporting to those locations.

Members are protected by individual rate protection which ensures that those already assigned to a given location will not see their BAH rate decrease, however, they will receive the increase if the rate goes up.

This assures that members who have made long-term commitments in the form of a lease or contract are not penalized if the area’s housing costs decrease.

Three components are included in the BAH computation: median current market rent; average utilities (including electricity, heat, and water/sewer) and average renter’s insurance.

Total housing costs are calculated for six housing profiles (based on dwelling type and number of bedrooms) in each military housing area. Basic Allowance for Housing rates are then calculated for each pay grade, both with and without dependents.

An estimated $20 billion will be paid to more than 1 million service members in 2013.

For more information on BAH, visit <https://www.defensetravel.dod.mil/site/bah.cfm>

FREE Classified Advertising in the Whiteman Warrior READ ALL RULES BEFORE PLACING AN AD

- Advertising is free to all active-duty, guard and reserve military members and civil servants who work on base or at the MoARNG in Warrensburg only. Military or civil service rank must be included in the space for "rank." We do offer free advertising to retired military members.
- Ads of a commercial nature such as baby-sitting, lawn maintenance, house cleaning, product sales, apartments or houses for rent, work-at-home opportunities or any other service in which the person makes a profit must be prepaid. Paid ads must be placed directly through the Sedalia Democrat at 1-800-892-7856, dropped off at 700 S. Massachusetts Ave., Sedalia, Mo., 65301 or e-mailed to theclassifieds@sedaliademocrat.com. They accept VISA, MasterCard, cash, personal check or money order.
- Free ads are for one-time sale of personal items only. Free ads can't be placed for churches, groups, clubs, organizations or friends not affiliated with the military. Each item must be sold for $150 or less.
- Only one free ad*, maximum 30 words, will be allowed to run at any given time by the same household, for a maximum of eight weeks. Ads over the 30-word maximum will be edited at the publisher's discretion. *People who are PCSing may place more than one ad and sell the items at any price.
- Include your home phone in the ad so people can contact you. USE OF DUTY PHONES IN ADS IS AGAINST AIR FORCE REGULATIONS.

- Print legibly, and place punctuation and spaces where necessary. Use only one word per line.
- Free ads aren't taken over the phone. They must be dropped off at or mailed to the 509th Bomb Wing Public Affairs Office, 1081 Arnold Ave Blvd, Bldg 59, Whiteman AFB, Mo., 65305. Ads may also be faxed to 660-687-7948.
- Many offices on base are using old forms. If you would like a copy of the new ad form to keep in your office, call 687-6123 and we'll fax a new form for your use. Or, you can download it at <http://www.whiteman.af.mil> and click on "Whiteman Warrior Classified Ad Form."
- Homes for sale that are listed with a realtor must be paid for. Only people who are PCSing and selling homes FSBO (for sale by owner) qualify as a free ad.
- Free yard sale ads are for active-duty, guard, reserve and retired military members living on or off base. People who live on base must have their yard sale approved by the housing office first.
- The deadline for placing new ads, canceling or making changes to ads is 10 a.m. Friday, one week before desired publication.
- Ads that don't meet these guidelines will not run. Free advertising is a privilege extended to you by the publisher, and your cooperation is greatly appreciated. Submissions do not guarantee publication. Publication is on a space available basis.
