Calling all innovators: Whiteman AFB Spark Tank is looking for your ideas

Airman Parker J. McCauley
509th Bomb Wing Public Affairs

Members of Team Whiteman are invited to submit their innovative ideas to the Whiteman Edge Spark Tank program through February 22, which is the program's initial deadline, though innovation is always encouraged to be ongoing.

The Spark Tank program offers Airmen and other members of Team Whiteman the opportunity to showcase ideas that can help the Air Force and the base save money, time and lives.

When it comes to innovation, "you've got to keep an open mind," said Brig. Gen. John J. Nichols, commander of the 509th Bomb Wing. "It might be the most junior Airman in your organization, someone who maybe has no stripes on their sleeve, who has the very best idea."

An example of innovation at Whiteman AFB is from Senior Airman Ryan Thompson, a defender with the 509th Security Forces Squadron. His innovative idea reduced the amount of time Security Forces spends on generating rosters and assigning Airmen to their posts around the base. The Integrity Information System keeps track of the training, qualifications and other factors to determine which Airmen are qualified to work in different parts of the squadron.

Whiteman's innovation efforts are in line with the larger Air Force AFWERX innovation initiative, envisioned by Secretary of the Air Force Heather Wilson to solve challenges the Air Force faces.

According to the AFWERX website, "The Air Force has recognized that venture-backed start-ups are innovating at 10 times the speed of other organizations, and by employing this model we hope to encourage intrapreneurship, retain innovators, and speed adoption of emerging technologies, especially those developed by Airmen to bring game changing impact to our Force."

The Whiteman Edge webpage has a submission form for the base's Spark Tank program and additional information to help ideas go from their source to senior leadership to implementation.

Submitting your innovative ideas as part of the Spark Tank program is easy:

Remembering a legend: Air Force Medal of Honor recipient Col. Joe Jackson

Secretary of the Air Force Public Affairs

WASHINGTON – Nearly 50 years after receiving the Medal of Honor, Air Force retired Col. Joe M. Jackson died Jan. 12, 2019 at the age of 95.

Known as an Air Force hero of the Vietnam War, then-Lt. Col. Jackson was awarded the prestigious medal on Jan. 16, 1969, by President Lyndon B. Johnson, for his selfless and heroic actions in combat.

“We are saddened by the loss of Medal of Honor recipient Col. Joe Jackson. His amazing story of humility, courage and Airmanship will be remembered,” said Secretary of the Air Force Heather Wilson. “Our heartfelt condolences go out to his family and friends.”

On May 12, 1968, Jackson, commander of an unarmed C-123 transport aircraft, flew on an emergency mission from Da Nang to Kham Duc, South Vietnam, after a special forces camp at Kham Duc was overrun by enemy forces. They had taken the forward outpost and were in complete control of the airstrip, which was surrounded on all sides by mountainous terrain.

While orbiting over the battle area, Jackson learned by radio about a three-man combat control team that had been inadvertently left behind after the camp was air evacuated. Another C-123 transport was ahead of Jackson in the traffic pattern. Though the rescue aircraft landed successfully on the debris-littered airstrip, it failed to evacuate the team. Jackson answered the call by descending rapidly from 9,000 feet and making an assault landing on the strip while under heavy enemy fire.

After he stopped, a rocket fell in front of the transport. A dud, it bounced harmlessly toward the nose of the plane without exploding.

Jackson landed near the spot where the combat control team was reportedly hiding, and ultimately rescued the men. With the team safely on board the aircraft, he quickly took off under a mortar barrage and intense automatic weapon fire from the surrounding hills. After landing at Da Nang, the crew found that not a single bullet had touched their aircraft during the entire flight.

“As one of only two living, Air Force Medal of Honor recipients, his story of courage and leadership was uniquely preserved through his own account of that mission, the decisions that led up to it and the life he aspired to lead,” said Air Force Chief of Staff General David L. Goldfein.

Retired Col. Joe Jackson poses with a permanent Medal of Honor display in this file photo from March 24, 2015, at the Pentagon in Arlington, Virginia. The display depicts Jackson along with other medal recipients. Jackson was in the Pentagon with fellow Medal of Honor recipient retired Col. Leo Thorsness for a question-and-answer session with members of the Air Staff, hosted in the Hall of Heroes. (U.S. Air Force photo by Scott M. Ash)

Alexis Ellingson, both 379th Expeditionary Aeromedical Evacuation Squadron aeromedical evacuation technicians, inventory and store a shipment of blood in the Blood Transshipment Center (BTC) Jan. 9, 2019, at Al Udeid Air Base, Qatar. Ellingson and Gates volunteered to prepare blood products for transport at the BTC. # Medical Airmen, volunteers keep blood supply flowing

By Tech. Sgt. Christopher Hubenthal
379th Air Expeditionary Wing Public Affairs

AL UDEID AIR BASE, Qatar – Al Udeid Air Base's Blood Transshipment Center (BTC) is a one of a kind place.

While it is the only blood transshipment center in U.S. Central Command's area of responsibility, it also houses one of the few missions on base that regularly uses volunteers from other career fields.

"We are the sole suppliers of blood units to our customers," said Tech. Sgt. Federico Arriaga, 379th Expeditionary Medical Group BTC logistics craftsman. "Because we are here, we're able to provide that blood. We're saving lives and we're able to bring our people back home."

Arriaga is one member of a four-person team who organizes the transport of blood and platelet products to 72 forward operating locations and eight mobile field surgical teams. The team is responsible for sending out an average of 45 shipments and 3,500 units each month.

In order to more quickly and reliably deliver the life-saving assets, the team augments itself with Airmen across Al Udeid who volunteer their time to help.

"The volunteers speed up the process immensely," said Staff Sgt. Jessica Kinser, 379th EMDG BTC lab technician. There's only three of us that handle the blood when it comes in. Without the volunteers, the process time would be in hours. Sure, we would make it work on our own, but the volunteers significantly reduce the risk. Because of the strict temperature requirements of the products, you have to be fast in order to get it back into its ideal environment. Volunteers just make it happen."

Volunteers build boxes that keep blood products cold, take inventory of items and organize them in a refrigerated storage unit by expiration date to ensure they are shipped out at the appropriate time.

Kinser also said that the influx of diverse backgrounds into their work center helps make processes better.

"Having volunteers from other career fields brings ideas and insight," said Kinser. "We have a lot of volunteers who handle the blood from different arenas ... They help us ship it out so we learn how their process works and it gives us a better understanding of how to do our job. We learn the big picture, which we wouldn't know if the volunteers weren't here to educate us."

Staff Sgt. Jasmine Gates, 379th Expeditionary Aeromedical Evacuation Squadron AE technician and BTC volunteer, said being part of a team that enables potentially life-saving medical care has broadened her perspective on her deployment.

"They ship it out to so many places," she said. "So being involved and having such a big impact in saving lives is rewarding."

The Best Day - Deployed Reflections

Chaplain Lt. Col. John W. Shipman
509th Bomb Wing

To reflect on times past and to envision hopes for the future is important as we move rapidly toward 2019. I encourage you to reflect today on your best day in 2018 and the promise of what your best day may be in 2019.

To recall the past and reflect on its varied lessons is another opportunity to learn from and grow.

My reflection from the past year is from a deployment to Afghanistan.

Afghanistan is a land that inspires people. Many civilizations came and sought to conquer, and Afghanistan still remains unto itself. I spent over seven months in-country and I experienced the people, the place and atmospherics.

Reflections on deployments are both a joy and source of sadness, and anyone who has deployed knows these transcendent issues. During my time in this combat zone, I experienced a medical emergency, death, attacks, counseling sessions concerning suicide, the issues of combat, divorce, relationship stress, safety, loss, faith and the desire to leave. In each of my 10 deployments, I had a best day – something that stood out as a singular celebration. My deployment to Afghanistan was no different.

In the spring, I asked the faithful people in the United States for 200 backpacks filled with school and hygiene supplies. I received over 400. These items were packaged by volunteers (military and civilians) from around the world who were deployed with me. Most of these backpacks were distributed to Afghan children who had a military family member killed in action. Others were packaged for an orphanage.

The best day for me was June 30, 2018, when the willingness and the hope of faithful people came to fruition in those who gave and those who received a gift. This day stood out from the rest because of the partnership between Afghan and U.S. military leaders was celebrated in a service event; it was a positive accomplishment, an opportunity that culminated in the proclamation of peace found in relationship.

As preparations were being made for the event, 50 children arrived and one young boy of 5 years old came to me and wanted to play catch with a ball. I played for short time and started to leave to interact with other children, and he ran up to me, grabbed my arm and motioned for me to stay. I did for a little longer, and I stood up to leave and again he was insistent that I stay and play catch. I understood that he was an orphan, but I found out later that this child had lost everything, that his heritage was unwelcomed in Afghanistan, and he was alone. For him, he wanted to know that someone cared enough to share that which is most precious: alacritous, compassionate time. The time we shared was brief, and yet his laughter and joy remain with me today, and my prayers are with him.

Shared deployment reflections are important for families and couples, for within them there is strength. This commentary would be incomplete without a statement from my spouse about her best day during this deployment. She had a number of special days, where she spent time with others helping them to be stronger during times of sorrow, times of retirement and times of transition. She found strength in helping others. Her strength also inspired my action while deployed.

December and January are times where people gather and some reflect on the past. Some will celebrate Christmas and Hanukah, while some will find the sacred in gathering with others at community events. Again, I ask that you reflect and decide, what was your best day this year? Was it in helping others or helping yourself?

What will your best day be in 2019? My challenge for you is to find your best day in serving others – not in a vision of superiority or arrogance, but rather an understanding that we are a community that is strengthened in caring for one another. There are so many opportunities to help: veteran's homes, humane societies, children's homes. So many people in this world want to know that someone cares enough to share that which is most precious: alacritous, compassionate time. What I learned again this past year is when you give of yourself, you will find another best day.

NO TAX CENTER AT WHITEMAN THIS YEAR

Other help available

Whiteman Air Force Base Legal Office

It's that time of the year again – time to file income taxes.

Despite the current partial federal government shutdown, taxes are still due to the Internal Revenue Service (IRS) by Monday, April 15, 2019 (residents of Maine and Massachusetts have until April 17, 2019). The IRS begins accepting tax returns January 28, 2019.

The IRS encourages people to file their tax returns electronically to minimize errors and for faster refunds.

The base's legal office will not be offering in-person tax preparation assistance this year, there are several free options available to help you file.

Tax preparation assistance and software is available for military members, retirees and dependents. Most programs also offer customer support either online or via telephone.

- PRIMARY AVENUE FOR MILITARY: The DoD-funded Military OneSource website provides free online tax software (H&R Block Premium) for military members and their dependents at <https://www.militaryonesource.mil/financial-legal/tax-services/miltax-free-tax-services/miltax-free-tax-services-from-military-onesource>. The Military OneSource MilTax program also provides access to tax consultants with military expertise to answer your specific questions seven days a week (7 a.m. – 11 p.m. EST) at 800-342-9647.

- INCOME OF $66,000 OR LESS: IRS Free File (<https://www.irs.gov/filing/free-file-do-your-federal-taxes-for-free>) is a partnership between the IRS and the Free File Alliance, a group of 12 industry-leading private-sector tax preparation companies that have agreed to provide free commercial online tax preparation and electronic filing for those with adjusted gross income of $66,000 or less. Only some offer free state tax preparation as well.

- RETIREE ALTERNATIVE TO IRS FREE FILE: The American Association of Retired Persons' (AARP) Tax-Aide program offers free, individualized tax preparation for low- to moderate-income taxpayers, especially those 50 and older. Tax-Aide locations can be found at <https://secure.aarp.org/applications/VMISLocator/searchTaxAideLocations.action>.

- Turbo Tax: For E1 to E5: Free federal and state filing with TurboTax's free or deluxe Edition, or a $5 discount off of premier, self-employed and TurboTax Live federal products. For E6 and above: $5 off discount. <https://turbotax.intuit.com/personal-taxes/online/military-edition.jsp>. USAA members can save up to $20 with TurboTax. <https://www.usaa.com/inet/wc/advice-tax-center?showtab=turbotax>

- TaxSlayer: Free Federal return for active duty military with TaxSlayer Classic. <https://www.taxslayer.com/efile/discount-military-tax-filing>

Tax information, including how-to information, FAQs, contact numbers and links, can be found at <https://www.whiteman.af.mil/taxcenter/>.

Keep an eye out in future issues of The Warrior for articles on changes to tax rules for this year, Missouri-specific tax issues, residency for military members and their spouses, and filing deadline extensions.
