June is the Great Outdoors Month

2nd Lt. Michael Hardy 509th Bomb Wing Public Affairs

Summer is here and it's time to get outside! June is the start of summer and is also the Great Outdoors Month. On May 31, 2019, President Donald Trump signed a presidential proclamation making this observed event official.

Outdoor activities can double as social events with friends and families. Hiking on trails, swimming at a lake, camping under the stars, and having s'mores around a fire with friends and family can be great ways for Team Whiteman to celebrate.

Here at Whiteman Air Force Base, there are many opportunities to escape the indoors.

The Arnold and Ike Skelton Parks and lakes on base provide Team Whiteman with places to get together. Families can get together for picnics and birthday parties or to play on the playgrounds. The parks also have barbecues.

The lakes here allow for catch and release fishing.

1st Lt. Allen Palmer, assigned to the 509th Bomb Wing Public Affairs office, qualified for the Missouri's Fish and Game Master Angler Award in May of this year by catching a 46-pound fish here on base at Arnold Lake.

The Missouri Fish and Game has several opportunities for locals to try fishing and reward their efforts from awards like the "First Fish" certificate for catching your first fish to bigger accomplishments like the "Release a Luncker" award. To achieve this award, you must catch a luncker that is at least 18 inches long in 4 approved spots around Missouri between March and October. More information can be found on the Missouri Fish and Game website at <https://mdc.mo.gov/>.

There are also a number of ways people can enjoy the great outdoors outside the base gates.

Knob Noster State Park that allows camping, hiking, running biking and even boating. Trails in the park start at 1 mile and build up to 7 miles!

Other approved activities include fishing and even horseback riding.

Park staff members also host classes and regular events where participants can learn about basic navigation and bird watching!

More information about classes and events the State Park can be found at <https://mostateparks.com/park/knob-noster-state-park>.

While enjoying the sun, it is important to keep safety in mind.

More information staying safe during the summer can be found at <https://www.cdc.gov>.

There are many amazing opportunities here in the local area for service members and their families to enjoy. So turn the TV off, put down the controllers, and get your bags packed! Go outside and spend your time with family and friends.

Whiteman AFB traffic changes during construction

509th Bomb Wing Public Affairs Staff reports

The Whiteman Air Force Base Safety Office asks members of the base to avoid cutting through the parking lots and streets between 8th street and 9th street while on-base construction continues.

Drivers should go all the way down 9th street until they reach Vandenberg Avenue.

There will be increased signage and barriers to enforce these temporary traffic changes and Team Whiteman cooperation will be appreciated.

Consequences during Whiteman AFB athletic field, track construction

509th Bomb Wing Public Affairs Staff Reports

All Whiteman Air Force Base personnel and family members are advised that the base track and athletic field are still under construction and their use is strictly prohibited until further notice.

Maj. Leigh A. Baumbaugh, the 509th Contracting Squadron commander, said that portions of the track have been repaired as part of an overall effort to upgrade the athletic field.

“These repaired areas need time to cure and absolutely cannot be utilized during this time,” said Baumbaugh. “Unfortunately patrons have already stepped on or ridden bicycles through the repaired portions of the track, causing further damage and potentially causing costly additional repairs.”

Continued use of the athletic field before construction has been completed has significantly delayed the re-opening of the track.

Members of Team Whiteman, military and civilian alike, now face consequences should they decide to disregard posted signage and other notices about ongoing construction.

“If you run on the track or try to use it while contractors are completing their work you run the risk of disciplinary action for damage to government property, trespass, or violation of a lawful order to stay off the track,” said Col. ___ Thompson.

Both Baumbaugh and Thompson urge the base to be patient.

“Thank you for your understanding and compliance with this temporary closure, which will create better recreational and fitness facilities for our community,” said Baumbaugh.

Gen. of the Army Dwight D. Eisenhower, the supreme allied commander, speaks to soldiers with the 101st Airborne Division and orders them "full victory-nothing less" on June 5, 1944, in southern England. After the briefing the soldiers embarked onto planes and gliders en-route for Normandy, France. (National Archives courtesy photo)

75th Anniversary of D-Day

Seventy-five years ago on June 6, 1944, the allied powers in World War 2 embarked on the largest amphibious landing of all time and one of the largest airborne assaults with more than 150,000 troops onto five beaches on the northern coast of German-occupied France in Normandy.

The Airborne Assault
During the early hours of the operation, American and British paratroopers and glider-borne infantrymen landed around key bridgeheads behind the beaches where the main wave of troops would later land. The 82nd and 101st Airborne Divisions of the U.S. Army and the British 6th Airborne Division were the first troops to land in Normandy.

German armored units from attacking the allied forces landing on the beaches while they were most vulnerable.

The Battle for Normandy and Closing the Falaise Gap
After the landings, allied forces pushed inland and expanded the beachheads rapidly. American forces from Utah beach encircled the Cotentin Peninsula and advanced towards Cherbourg, a critical deep-water port to allow more supplies to make it through to the front lines.

Omaha beach was the most heavily defended of the beaches in Normandy. (U.S. Coast Guard photo by Chief Petty Officer Robert F. Sargent)

By that time, France had been occupied for almost four years after the German invasion in 1940 and subsequent surrender of the French government. A year after the fall of France, German forces along with those of their fellow Axis powers (excluding the Japanese Empire) invaded the Soviet Union.

The terrain in Normandy is well suited to defensive fighting with narrow roads and dense hedgerows breaking up the landscape.

As the gap closed more than 50,000 German troops west of the Seine River were surrounded where they were quickly destroyed or captured leaving the road to liberating Paris open. The liberation of Paris marked the end of Operation Overlord at the end of August 1944.

Churchills armed with flame-throwers and heavy mortars to clear out fortifications.

anti-aircraft defenses and interceptor aircraft.

After those battles and crossing the Rhein River in Germany, allied and soviet forces would race to Berlin bringing an end to the war in Europe by early May of 1945.

Extensive training was also needed for the many airborne forces and the soldiers who would be taking part in amphibious landings as they carry additional considerations from embarking on gliders and landing craft to clearing coastal fortifications.

Bombers upgraded with better defensive armaments, escorted by fighters with drop tanks filled with extra fuel, flew deeper into German-occupied Europe.

What Made it possible
Operation Overlord and the chain of events that followed June 6, 1944, would not have been possible if it wasn't for the extensive preparation that preceded it.

Whiteman AFB, originally the Sedalia Glider Base, and later the Sedalia Army Airfield, operated as one of the eight bases responsible for training glider pilots who would prove essential during airborne operations.

In addition to the operational and training aspects of the preparation there was extensive deception that also played into it.

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE

Soldiers, Sailors and Airmen of the Allied Expeditionary Force!

You are about to embark upon the Great Crusade, toward which we have striven these many months. The eyes of the world are upon you. The hopes and prayers of liberty-loving people everywhere march with you. In company with our brave Allies and brothers-in-arms on other Fronts, you will bring about the destruction of the German war machine, the elimination of Nazi tyranny over the oppressed peoples of Europe, and security for ourselves in a free world.

Your task will not be an easy one. Your enemy is well trained, well equipped and battle-hardened. He will fight savagely.

But this is the year 1944! Much has happened since the Nazi triumphs of 1940-41. The United Nations have inflicted upon the Germans great defeats, in open battle, man-to-man. Our air offensive has seriously reduced their strength in the air and their capacity to wage war on the ground. Our Home Fronts have given us an overwhelming superiority in weapons and munitions of war, and placed at our disposal great reserves of trained fighting men. The tide has turned! The free men of the world are marching together to Victory!

I have full confidence in your courage, devotion to duty and skill in battle. We will accept nothing less than full Victory!

Good Luck! And let us all beseech the blessing of Almighty God upon this great and noble undertaking.

The statement given by Gen. of the Army Dwight D. Eisenhower, the supreme allied commander, to the forces under his command during the beginning phases of Operation Neptune, the plan for the initial assault in Normandy as part of Operation Overlord. New York National Guard responds to Lake Ontario flooding Service members assigned to the New York Army National Guard and New York Naval Militia, along with employees from the Department of Transportation, fill sandbags at Sodus Point, N.Y., May 20, 2019. The sandbags are being used to mitigate the effects of flooding along Lake Ontario as a result of rising water levels that followed up with the activation of the troops by Gov. Andrew Cuomo. ROCHESTER, N.Y. — Members of the New York Army and Air National Guard, the New York Naval Militia and the New York Guard have filled 230,730 sandbags and emplaced 78,966 of them since being placed on duty May 4 in response to flooding along the Lake Ontario shoreline.

Each standard 14 by 26-inch sandbag weighs around 40 pounds when filled two-thirds with sand. It takes 600 sandbags to make a 1-foot high wall 100 feet long, according to the New York State Division of Homeland Security and Emergency Services.

The sandbags that were not emplaced along the lake shoreline by New York Military Forces members were picked up for use by government agencies or property owners.

On May 4, New York Gov. Andrew M. Cuomo ordered 100 troops to state active duty to help cope with rising water levels in Lake Ontario.

On May 13 another 100 troops were brought on duty to help deal with rising water levels. On May 20, the governor directed an additional 200 troops to be placed on standby.

The New York Naval Militia and New York Guard are state forces assisting the National Guard in the mission.

Heavy rains throughout the Great Lakes region, combined with flooding rivers in Ontario and Quebec, have resulted in higher than normal water levels in Lake Ontario, according to the International Joint Commission.

The commission regulates water levels in the Great Lakes and St. Lawrence River.

The higher water levels increase the danger of flooding to buildings along with the lake and shorefront erosion.

As of May 31, Lake Ontario is two feet higher than normal, according to Chief Master Sgt. Shawn Peno, the New York National Guard's staff weather officer.

The record set in 2017 of 248.95 feet was matched on Wednesday, May 29, according to the International Joint Commission.

The commission said May 27 that "potentially higher levels are possible should wet weather continue."

As of May 31, the New York National Guard had 200 military personnel and 25 vehicles on duty as part of the Joint Task Force Ontario response element.

Three patrol boats from the New York Naval Militia are stationed in the Rochester area to provide assistance as needed.

The state response has included 800,000 Sandbags, 15 sandbag-making machines, hundreds of pumps and bladder-filled water containment systems that employ a rubberized tube filled with water.

The governor also declared an emergency in the eight counties that would be impacted by rising Lake Ontario water levels: Cayuga, Jefferson, Monroe, Niagara, Orleans, Oswego, St. Lawrence and Wayne.

"We are preparing now for the reoccurrence of the 2017 flooding situation, which as people remember, was devastating and caused a lot of damage and a lot of hardship for thousands of New Yorkers. We're talking about the entire shoreline of Lake Ontario, so it's hundreds of miles of New York State property," Cuomo said on May 20.

"The emergency order also gives us flexibility in dealing with local governments and private property so we can install aquadam and other equipment to protect the shoreline," the governor explained.

New York Military Forces personnel have been working since the initial mobilization to fill sandbags and have built sandbag berms in key locations along the Lake Ontario shoreline near Rochester.

In 2017 Lake Ontario water levels rose to the record levels, and the New York National Guard mobilized 400 troops in response during the spring and early summer months.

Whiteman AFB reopens Arnold Gate

Senior Airman Bailey Janes 131st Bomb Wing Public Affairs Leaders from Whiteman Air Force Base, Missouri, celebrated the reopening of the installation's Arnold Gate with a ribbon cutting ceremony on June 4, 2019. Intermittent closures of the gate began in December of 2018 in order to start the $900,000, "Replace Arnold Gate Active Vehicle Barrier (AVB)," project. The 509th Civil Engineer Squadron collaborated with civilians to replace the old wedge style barrier with a Ground Retractable Automobile Barrier (GRAB) as well as moved 500ft down the road. Staff Sgt. Nicholas Bara, construction inspector for the project, highlighted the benefits of the new GRAB system at Arnold Gate. "This not only allows security forces personnel more time to react to a possible gate breach attempt from unauthorized entities, but also gives the driver of the vehicle more time to realize they made a mistake before they would encounter the barrier to safely stop and avoid collision," he said. Bara elaborated on the improved features of the new barrier. "The old wedge would protrude the vehicle to disable it, which could cause severe or even fatal injuries to the occupant(s)," said Bara. "The new GRAB system is not only safer, but is it stronger, more reliable after incidents and cheaper to maintain." Construction will continue on Arnold Gate and drivers should be cautious when entering and exiting the base.

CAPTION INFO: The new barrier is engaged at Arnold Gate on Whiteman Air Force Base, Missouri, on June 4, 2019, during a ribbon cutting ceremony. Updates to the barrier were made to improve safety and security. (U.S. Air National Guard photo by Senior Airman Bailey Janes)
